My dear Jane,

I haven't written to you for ages. I know I should be ashamed of myself, and I am. Many apologies, but I have been busy. In this last paragraph there seems to be too many "I's." In other words bad English, or bad prose.

I certainly miss you Jane, and wish that this war would come to a end soon. That will be a marvellous happy day for us. We then can start to paint again together, with hopes to be married. What of course if you will have me. I know we would be very happy together, and we could do so many interesting things, such as travel in our yacht, but the one at present as she is too small. As you know I am a navigating officer, and have bought myself up a lovely sextant. That instrument can take us around the world, any place we wish to go. After this war it will be hard for me to settle down right away in one step, because I have got interested to see what the other parts of the world looks like. I hope you feel that way also Jane.

With my love this is just a note to tell you how much I love you, and we could be together.

Peace of love & best your loving sailor

Tommy
