Board of Governors Re-appoints Jabbra

Dr. Joseph Jabbra, Academic Vice-President at Saint Mary's University for the past six years, has been re-appointed for another six year term.

Dr. Jabbra is a member and former chairperson of the University's Political Science Department.

Educated at the Universite Saint-Joseph, Beirut, Lebanon, and at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., Dr. Jabbra came to Saint Mary's in 1971.

He has served on several committees, and has held a number of appointments including positions on the Academic Senate and the Board of Governors for the International Education Centre. He currently chairs several University committees and is a member of the Maritime Provinces Higher Education Commission. He is also chairperson of the AAU-MPHEC Academic Advisory Committee.

Dr. Jabbra is the author of several publications on the Middle East and Canada, and has delivered a number of scholarly communications at meetings of learned societies in Canada, the United States, and the Middle East. In addition to his administrative responsibilities, he continues to teach courses on the Middle East, International Law and Public Administration, and to be actively engaged in Research.

Dr. Jabbra has been the recipient of several awards for research in his field, including a Canada Council grant and a Secretary of State grant for research on the Lebanese and Syrians in Nova Scotia, which he received with his wife, Dr. Nancy Jabbra.

Dr. Jabbra will be on sabbatical leave in 1986-87, when he will be a visiting scholar at the University of California in Los Angeles. While at UCLA he will be working on two research projects — one dealing with accountability and the public service, a comparative perspective, and the other dealing with the rise of fundamentalism and its impact on domestic public policy in the Middle East.

New Club Formed

by Curtis Swinimer

A new organization has sprung up on campus this year. The "Saint Mary's University Red Cross Club" has been established to look out for the wellbeing of people on and off campus. It has been in the planning stages since last year and its constitution was finally passed last week by the SRC.

The club's constitution had been previously approved by the Canadian Red Cross Society and Saint Mary's Student Services. The group plans to assist Student Services in promoting services and programs to assist disabled persons.

The Red Cross Club provides students with an opportunity to show society that we, students, are not takers, but rather, givers. Greater still, students will be able to achieve a high level of pride and satisfaction through serving their fellowman.

The club's main objective is threefold. Firstly, to provide service to the community, such as blood donor clinics. Secondly, to promote health education, through such events as first aid seminars. Lastly, to promote international friendship and understanding.

The group (at the time only the founders) will be holding their first membership-drive meeting on March 20. The meeting will include a slide show and guest speaker from the Canadian Red Cross Society, as well as free coffee and doughnuts. This meeting should be brief, so bring a friend and come on down to Room L226 at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday.

PDR, Lunch With a Catch

by Doug Walsh

The Private Dining Room in the Loyola Building is now serving lunch to cash bearing customers, and the difference in the prices between it and the Residence Cafeteria has some students irked.

Food Services officials say the price change is not that large and that the main difference is the lack of choices in the Private Dining Room compared to the Cafeteria.

Jill Linquist, Director of Food Services, explains that the Dining Room was set up for faculty to use while the students use the Residence eating area. Only cash is used, no meal cards, because students are not wanted in the Private Dining Room.

Miss Linquist also stated that due to the low numbers of faculty purchasing lunches in the Private Dining Room there has been a decrease in service. There is no table service and the number of waitresses has been reduced to one. Miss Linquist remarked that over 50 per cent of faculty buy their food in the Residence Cafeteria and then eat it in the Private Dining Room. The Room was closed in September due to the small numbers of faculty using the facility but was forced to reopen.

There have been no complaints as yet from students concerning the Cafeteria situation.

S.A. Ambassador Refuses Debate

OTTAWA (CUP) — South African Ambassador Glen Babb decided March 4 to refuse the Carleton University Press Club's invitation to a debate this month. His decision came after he learned his opponent could be Donald Woods, former editor of the East London Daily Dispatch in South Africa.

"Mr. Woods was news to us," said Babb's Second Secretary Wesley Johanneson in a telephone interview, "we never knew Mr. Woods would participate."

Now living in England, Woods had to flee South Africa in 1977. "It's obvious his journalism is antagonistic to the government," said Robert McKenzie, vice president of the Press Club.

On February 3, Babb accepted the club's invitation to debate "Freedom of Expression in South Africa." Johanneson said at the time Babb's opponent was expected to be Peter Kent, a journalist with NBC-TV in Miami.

But when McKenzie called the South African Embassy to set a date, he said Johanneson told him: "We won't debate Donald Woods."

The Press Club then decided to withdraw its invitation because Babb's objection to Woods was against the "spirit of our invitation", said McKenzie. Last month, the club frequently argued for "freedom of expression" when students objected to providing Babb a platform for racism.

McKenzie said this is not true. Journalists were sought only after the club received Babb's response, he said, therefore "it's impossible that we could have mentioned Peter Kent."

"We had to pursue several people, since they are all busy. Peter Kent agreed first."

Kent and Woods are the only two journalists who agreed, in principle, to the debate. Woods is preferred because he has more knowledge of South Africa, said McKenzie.

McKenzie said he asked if Babb refused because Woods is a banned individual in South Africa, but the embassy gave no reasons.

The principle at stake is freedom of expression, said McKenzie. "They're asking us to deny one man's freedom of expression in exercising another's.

"If they're willing to debate Donald Woods, then we'll reissue the invitation," McKenzie said, but at the moment, there will be no debate. The club still wants Woods to speak, he added.

Students Screwed Again

Charter Day, as most students realize, is that time of year when the Students' Association thanks societies and individuals for their contribution to university life. This year however SMUSA has deemed it proper to provide students with a token handshake and quickly rid themselves of the nagging element of the people who elected them.

Quality of Teaching Lecture to be Presented by Patricia Brown

Friday, March 21, Saint Mary's Quality of Teaching Committee will present Dr.

Christopher Knapper, speaking on ways to improve content and standards of university education through the means of a Teaching Resource Centre. Dr. Knapper, who is Director of Teaching Resources and Continuing Education at the University of Waterloo, will be speaking to faculty and students in the Faculty Lounge at 2:30 p.m.

Saint Mary's Quality of Teaching Committee was set up over a year ago with the purpose of initiating projects and getting input concerning teaching standards and goals of teaching. The Committee would like to see a Teaching Resource Centre set up on campus because it would benefit the entire university community.

Dr. Knapper has travelled extensively in North America, Europe and Asia and spoken to a number of university groups. His aim is to help universities become more vital and relevant by improving standards and methods of teaching.

The brief talk is open to all interested students and members of the faculty and will be followed by refreshments and a discussion period. All who are concerned with any aspect of teaching and learning at Saint Mary's are urged to at-

Other concerns are the Royal Commission's proposals regarding Core Curriculum and ways of improving students' use of English. Committee members hope to take steps toward implementing some of their proposals in the near future.

Beer Shortage

by Heather Brown

The claim that there was a shortage of beer at the Moosehead sponsored bash on March 8 is apparently untrue.

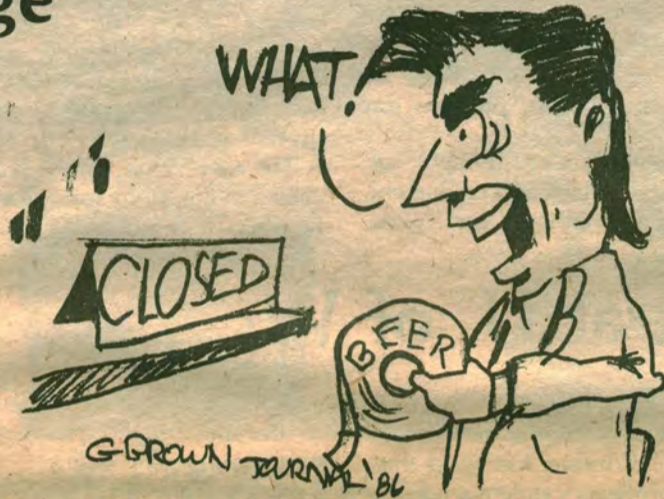

According to Mr. Chris MacKinnon, who was in charge of the bash, there was only a shortage of one type of beer, James Ready.

The video bash was exclusively sponsored by Moosehead and therefore only Moosehead products were available.

Mr. MacKinnon stated that even though not enough James Ready had been ordered, Liquor Services provided all that they could and there were plenty of others there.

Mr. MacKinnon confirmed that there was no last call on Saturday night because he had to return to the Student Centre for more beer.

Returning to the dance with more beer, Mr. MacKinnon reports that he served the two people who were waiting, stayed until 12:30 and then left as usual.

When asked about people being upset when the bar closed, Mr. MacKinnon replied that "no one is ever entirely satisfied when you close."

One person in particular who was not satisfied was Mr. Paul McLean. He made the claim that the bash was poorly organized.

Mr. McLean stated that when he went to the bar there were only two types of beer available, Golden Light and Ten Penny. He also stated that no last call prevented people from using their remaining tickets.

Mr. McLean said that when he and several friends went to use their tickets Liquor Services had packed up and left. Mr. McLean cites himself as just one example and reports that there were many more.

Liquor Services does not refund money for unused tickets and tickets may only be used at the bash where they were purchased.

The Comm Lane

Here It Is

by Curtis Swinimer

March is a month when schoolwork is as high as energy is low. Time has come to concentrate on the academics and put everything else on the back burner until, say, September.

The frantic efforts of most societies has paid off. All of the commerce societies have achieved their goals for the year. Students can show their appreciation for deserving societies by submitting nominations for the Saint Mary's Society of the Year and to Most Improved Society, as well as individual awards of distinction. Nominations can be submitted to the SMUSA offices on the 5th floor, Student Centre, before Monday, March 24.

Each year the Student Council, on behalf of the students, honor outstanding students and societies "who have contributed to the student cause at Saint Mary's," to show appreciation for their efforts. The awards are presented at the annual Charter Day Banquet to be held on April 4.

Recipients of Charter Day awards are selected by a committee consisting of five to seven members. Students are urged to submit nominations. This will make the decision process a fair, easier and more thorough decision.

Congratulations go out to the new executive of the Commerce Society. Successful candidates of last week's elections were:

President — Tina Harris, Vice-President — Angela Pulsifer, Treasurer — Chris Mackenzie, Secretary — Wendy Thomas, Promotions Director — Sheila Redmond, Senior Representative — Connie Smith, Junior Representative — Virginia MacInnis and Sophomore Representative — Victor Whitlock.

Upcoming events are as follows:

Marketing Society Elections for President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer on Thursday, March 20 in the Loyola Colonnade from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Accounting Society Elections for President, Secretary and three (3) Student Faculty-Representatives on Monday, March 24 in the Loyola Colonnade from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Accounting Society meeting with guest speaker, Ken Nader, FCA, from Maritime Life Assurance. Mr. Nader will be speaking on the topic "The Future of the Accounting Profession." Meeting to take place on Monday, March 24 at 7:00 p.m. in the P.D.R.

Budget Hastens 'Brain-Drain' to U.S.

TORONTO (CUP) — Canadian scientists are warning that an exodus of faculty members to the United States is imminent unless the research climate here improves.

And some suggest that the federal Tories, who vowed in pre-election speeches to put Canadian research on par with other countries, may have hastened the "brain drain" with their February 26 budget.

Stuart Smith, the head of the Science Council of Canada, said that professors may not have left yet, but "I believe it's going to happen and it's going to happen in extremely substantial quantities."

He said while Canada languishes in a commodity-based economy, the U.S. is creating jobs for researchers because it has advanced to a knowledge-based economy — developing new products and getting into areas like bio- and high technology.

Other Canadian scientists say faculty are liable to leave because the government has for 10 to 15 years failed to provide enough money for quality research.

"It's like running a small business," said University of Toronto chemist Geraldine Kenney-Wallace as she described how scientists here have to search for funding sources. She estimates they spend 25 to 30 per cent of their time searching for money and, in her care, 50 per cent of the funding comes from U.S. industry and foundations.

The bucks, it seems, are greener on the other side. Both industry and the universities south of the border have more money and the billions of dollars the Regan administration plans to spend on Strategic Defense Initiative research will increase the amount.

Gordon Slemon, U of T's dean of engineering and applied science, said although none of his staff have left yet, it's not as though they haven't been tempted.

"I am aware of excellent offers that have come to a large number of our key people," he said. "I have put this forward to government — and others as being our biggest problem for the future."

The seductive thought of bright new labs and equipment is equally enticing for young scientists. Half of the 140 post-doctoral fellowships granted by the Natural Science and Engineering Research Council are currently held by Canadians studying in the U.S. NSERC president Gordon McNabb fears that, because of an increasingly frigid research climate in Canada, "probably we would find that we are not bringing back as many."

The Canadian Association of University Teachers is also concerned about the shaky state of research and development.

While he has heard of only a few professors leaving, executive director Ed Anderson said the situation "doesn't look promising, that's for sure."

The association, which launched a major lobby for research funding in February, is afraid that, among other consequences, there won't be enough qualified Canadian professors after many of the current crop retire in the 1990s.

To an extent, that shortfall is already happening. U of T's Slemon reports that some university positions have been vacant for 30 months — in such key scientific areas as robotics, electronics and polymers.

The technology-oriented University of Waterloo has, more than any other school, reason to fear a major drain. It has lost 13 faculty members since October: nine to the U.S., one to Britain and three who have started up their own businesses.

Profs Steal Students Work at U. of W.

WINDSOR (CUP) — A committee of inquiry at the University of Windsor has ruled that two professors stole a student's work.

Masters sociology student Carl Bertioia was hired in 1984 by two Home Economics instructors as project manager of a Summer Canada-sponsored study of elderly parents and adult offspring.

Bertioia told the committee he spent the summer writing the document. But it was published in January, 1985 listing professors Sue Goerzen and Linda McKay as authors. "When I confronted them, she (Goerzen) said that we made a decision that you aren't really the author of this report," said Bertioia.

The committee supported Bertioia's claim to at least co-authorship. It also recommended the university implement a formal authorship policy.

Bertioia said the instructors told him they denied him credit because he was a paid employee and was therefore not a co-author.

Other reasons, Bertioia said, included the time and effort involved in editing and printing the work.

But, he added, only minimal editing was needed, and was done with both parties present.

The committee found that Bertioia may be the document's principal writer and called for a corrected title page listing him as co-author. It also recommended a letter of apology from Bertioia's employers and that reprimands be placed in both professor's files. The recommendations were presented to U of W president Ron Ianni and are not binding. But Ianni said the suggestions had been implemented.

Two graduate student organizations, the National Graduate Council and the Ontario Graduate Association, presented a brief to the Canadian Association of Graduate Schools' annual conference at the beginning of November which said student research is often published without proper credit.

Students often find it difficult to prove the work as their own, explained the brief. They are also afraid of making waves in schools where they must work closely with faculty.

UVIC Promotes Small Business

VICTORIA (CUP) — A new centre designed to promote small business and would-be entrepreneurs opened in late February at the University of Victoria although the university has no business or commerce faculties.

The Business and Industry Development Centre will be supported by the provincial and federal governments at an estimated cost of $1.1 million over the next five years.

Establishing the centre, which will also receive free utilities and janitorial service from the university, comes at a time when the Social Credit government has published for business and technical education at the expense of the humanities and fine arts.

"The purpose of the establishment is to stimulate entrepreneurial activities and industrial development in the greater Victoria area," said John Driscoll, a UVic Information Officer. The centre is open to the general public and business advice is free.

But some people are not speaking favourably about the organization. Sue Stroud of the Alliance to Defend Education said "I don't think the university is the place for such a centre. The university shouldn't be responding to industry's needs, it should respond to what the public wants." Driscoll, however, cited a UVic research indicating that of the 120 high tech companies in the area, 80 per cent are already using university resources.

"If there is to be any movement or growth of small businesses in a place like Victoria, than a university is a logical place to get it started," Driscoll said. The centre, which provides offices for a number of business-related organizations, has two main branches. The Enterprise Development Office will receive $90,000 next year from the province. It will also be responsible for helping present any potential small business owners with management issues.

The second branch, The Industrial Liaison Office, will receive $650,000 from the federal government over the next five years, and will be responsible for encouraging collaborative research between the university and industry, as well as promoting transfer of technology from the university to the market-place.

Tuition To Rise In Quebec

MONTREAL (CUP) — Students have been targetted as an extra source of government revenue as Quebec's Liberals examine ways to reduce the provincial deficit by $1.5 billion.

In a speech to the National Assembly on the economic state of the province, Finance Minister Gerard D. Levesque suggested that university tuition fees be raised, and cited Ontario's nearly doubled tuition fees as justification.

Levesque also recommended reducing the cost of education by increasing teacher workload or student/teacher ratios. "It would be irresponsible to hide certain possibilities," said Levesque. "These situations are hypothetical and as such all hypotheses must be considered. These recommendations are not binding."

Students think Levesque is testing the waters. "Every time the Quebec government hints tuition fees will rise, it is leaked in a non-committal fashion to the media. The reasons these things are leaked is because they want to gauge whether negative student reaction will outbalance positive public reaction," said Peter Wheeland, student council vice president communications at Concordia University.

"If students make a lot of noise now, then the government is going to say it is only a hypothesis. If students are quiet, then there will be an increase," he said.

Quebec tuition fees, frozen at $570 a year since 1969, are the lowest in Canada.

After a speech at McGill last fall, premier Robert Bourassa told Canadian University Press in an interview, "we plan to maintain the tuition freeze. With all the problems facing youth, we should find the money elsewhere and not increase the cost per student," Bourassa said.

Students Screwed Again

The Charter Day Banquet this year, will not have a dance afterwards and no liquor services during the meal. The SRC, or certain members thereof, have decided that they can't afford it. Students have had to foot the bill but SMUSA finds it impossible to justify a proper thank you if it removes funds from one of their half-baked ventures that loses money hand over fist yet looks good in a pamphlet or on a P.R. poster.

Some of you may be asking what they plan to do with the excess money. Well, do you realize that some of it will be used to pay for a weekend in the Valley for the Council Executive? Plans are underway for a trip this weekend so that incoming executive can sit down with outgoing executive and explain the job processes. Never mind the fact that Mark Bower will meet with himself, treasurer Robert White will not be attending, and incoming V.P. Administration Dave Smart will have to grasp his new job as well as explain his old one to new V.P. Student Affairs Sean Dolter, all in two fun-filled days. I wonder if they will be shipping SMUSA files and records along to the hotel as well, to provide explanation. Why not, the funding is coming out of your pockets — not theirs. How many of you can afford to go away for the weekend? Let alone, London, Eng., as Council plans to do this summer.

Students at Saint Mary's have once again been dragged through the mud and kicked while they weren't looking. An emergency meeting could be called to change the extravagant plans — but that would require SMUSA to admit they were wrong. It would also require the council reps to get into action and demand the meeting — but why should they work for their money when they get it no matter what they do?

Students have been blamed this year for every failed bash or function and SMUSA has taken the credit for successful ones. I think it's time students started to complain and demanded a return on their $56.00 student fee. The reps are the ones to complain to — call the council chambers at 422-1201 or register your complaint through The Journal at 422-1234, 5th floor Student Centre, or leave a note in The Journal drop-off box next to the Residence Desk. Be sure to include your faculty, name, and year.

Please don't let this be another slap in the face that the student population turns the other cheek to. The SRC must become accountable to the students who fund them very soon. Otherwise, they will progress to become another group designed to screw students any way possible.

This editorial is begging for help.

Editor and pissed-off student

Fellow Off Campus Students,

My name is Siobhan Coates and I am a 3rd year Psychology major. I am running for the position of Vice-President of the Off Campus Society. I have been an active member of the society for the past two years (you may have seen me selling those delicious pizzas during Winter Carnival). I have also participated in other events both on and off campus. I hope to further my involvement with the society and with your support I'll be able to do so. Get involved and exercise your right to vote March 24th and 25th. The society can do a lot for you.

Thank you!

Yours Truly,
Siobhan Coates

Fellow Commerce Students,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your support in the recent Representative elections.

I am looking forward to representing the Commerce students of Saint Mary's University on Council next year and welcome any input from you that would continue in giving the Commerce Students a unified voice on Council.

Sincerely,
Rick Buckley
Commerce Rep.

OH, THAT LENNY by G. BROWN
-JOURNAL-

LENNY WAS ALMOST HOME FREE, AFTER THE BIG PARTY, UNTIL THE SOUND OF THE FAMILY DOG LAPPING LENNY'S BARF OFF THE FLOOR IN THE HALLWAY AWOKED HIS PARENTS.

To the editor,

The elections of S.R.C. executive and positions for Board of Governors and Senate on February 18 & 19 were a travesty of the democratic election process. The blatant ineptitude of the balloting procedure would be amusing if one could shake off the feeling that perhaps this is a little more devious than precocious children playing at "grown-up".

The posters indicated that the polls were to be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. on both days. They, in fact, did not open on both days until after 10 a.m.

All campaign posters were supposed to be down by 5 p.m. February 17, pending a fine to the 'forgetful' soul. At least three candidates, our President Mark Bower being one, still had posters up on February 18 at 11 a.m. If this rule is important, then it should be obeyed by everyone. If not, then let's trash it for everyone. Will the offenders receive a fine?

At the polls, one finds a bizarre scheme of Philippino voting procedures. The three polling stations have two people, a voters list, a walkie-talkie, ballots and a ballot box.

problem with the walkie-talkie system seemed to be that the people at the three polling stations were all clamouring to use the system at the same time. During peak hours, students whose names could not immediately be called through to the other stations were written and processed later. There were a backlog of twenty or more names at some points. One student did not have to present I.D. before being allowed to vote in the Colonnade. Another student presented an I.D. which had expired and was still permitted to vote. I wonder how many other students were allowed to vote illegally.

The ballots for position on the Senate were not available when I voted at 11:30 a.m. on the 18th. A name had been omitted from the ballot. I was told that I could come back in an hour to cast the ballot.

These remarks are not meant to disparage the sincere efforts of the students who attended the polls. The ballots are aimed at the elections officer and his immediate group. Surely, some pointers could have been picked up from last year's election fiasco.

What irks me about election time at Saint Mary's? We have polling stations that do not open on time so that students can vote once, twice or more with invalid I.D. for candidates whose posters are still up in campaign profile on election day. We hire the same elections officer that had difficulties keeping the election honest last year. We treat elections like a game when we excuse what we call ineptitude as collegiate dilettantism. But what we fail to fully comprehend is that each student is compelled to give the S.R.C. $56.00 per year in Student Council fees giving the S.R.C. about $500,000.00 to play with each year. And from what I can discern, they are not directly accountable to anyone except Us — the student body at large. And the only time that this formidable endorser of any cheques is afforded an opportunity to say, 'well done' or 'you're fired' is on election day.

In this year's election have we really been afforded the opportunity to be heard clearly or have we merely thought that we heard the sound of our voice?

Last Bash Almost A Bomb

by Tina Johnson

Is there a serious problem with the students at Saint Mary's? Don't you people like bashes?

As you can probably guess, SMUSA's last bash was not a success, not even close. It even started out typical — DEAD! The only thing is, I didn't expect it to stay that way. I'm told that there was an estimated 150-200 people present and that doesn't even fill half of the Multi-Purpose Room. As a fellow bash goer described it, "there was an intimate crowd." Perhaps the understatement of the year.

Night Visions didn't even do their best with the requests. They weren't as bad as C100, not by half, but it did on occasion take more than three songs to hear your requests. I shouldn't really complain so much because I had a ball and so did everyone I was with. The smoke machine was working, properly, the fire alarms didn't go off, the CP's didn't turn on the lights too soon and the music was excellent.

I could really say that if more people had shown up it would have been a very successful bash. Maybe SMUSA should think of ways to encourage people to attend their bashes. Some ideas are: keep beer at $15.50 per glass, door prizes, or maybe, just maybe, the President of SMUSA himself should set an example by going to one of his own bashes.

Mighty Max At McInnes

by Mark DeWolf

Mighty Max, Mad Max, Maimum Max — I'm not even a big Springsteen fan, so why am I so hyped, why do I feel so damn good? I'll tell you why, I just got back from Max Wienberg of the E Street Band's show, lecture, clinic, event! at the Dalhousie McInnes Room (why couldn't we have gotten him here!!!) and I feel great. What a guy!

Max is a consummate speaker, musician and showman, he gave us definite insight as to the ups and downs of his life and career, he warned us about the dangers and the joy of the rock and roll excess, he showed us how to play the drums, he jammed with some of this city's baddest bluesmen, he's got me all out of breath ... he made myself and the rest of the capacity crowd feel good, damn good.

The more jaded in attendance may have gotten hung up on the level of emotionalism that pervaded the evening, back ye cynics, he proved to me and a lot of others who've ever had silly dreams of becoming a rock and roll star, and for that matter, anyone with any dreams period, that they are attainable (that old protestant work ethic again) with the right amount of perseverance, and the occasional willingness to make sacrifices it can be yours — just send your left earlobe and any priceless heirloom to ... just kidding. And did he talk about Bruce? Oh yeah, there were pictures of Bruce, concert clippings of Bruce, allusions to the patron saint of New Jersey, but it was Max who had the show. Go Max!

And can he play the drums? No argument, hands down, use me, abuse me, yes! His jam session with our local axemen was intense. They did a basic Blues jam, The Beach Boys' "Fun, Fun, Fun" and the unavoidable "Glory Days". The crowd was simply in awe.

Why couldn't we have gotten him here?

Twain by The Tail

by C. Fisher

It was a very surreal and dreamlike scenario, many exotic and eccentric characters strolling about in near darkness, flowing fluidly to piano plunked emphatically in the mysteriously dark background. Then suddenly, the music abruptly ended, and concurrently came a period of mass confusion, as if the natives had been hypnotized by the tribal mystique of the music.

And then the rehearsal started.

The rehearsal in question was for the Saint Mary's University Drama Society (SMUDS to the uninitiated) production of Twain By The Tail, a tribute to Mark Twain — his life and his works. The idea is to present Twain, the whole person through a series of shorts from his more famous works (if you don't know what they are I'm not going to tell you), alongside a series of queries directed to Twain himself — a kind of letter to the editor format in which Uncle Sammy Clemens himself gets to answer. I didn't get to see the entire production, but the bits I did experience probed the depths of hilarity (they were damn funny).

The idea of this bit is to make you aware of what's happenin', and to get you to go out and take this in, it's a great way to gain an insight as to the true nature of one of the United States' most interesting, outspoken and funniest men.

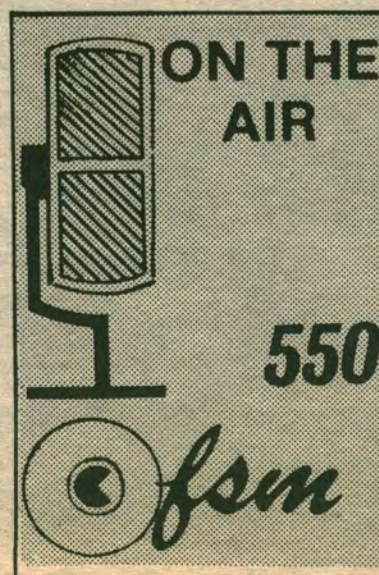

Not to mention take in some fine acting.

Twain by the Tail will be presented from Wednesday to Saturday at 8:00 p.m., three dollars for students and four for adults.

To some, only The Best will do.

New and Improved Read Them Rules Book II

The Unclassifieds are very popular and in order to accompany the demand, we insist on these here rules. (See what happens when you give someone a little power — they turn oppressive.)

1. The "fieds" are free, but to ensure that they get in bribery always helps.
2. The shorter the message, the better chance for publication. Use this simple formula: Length of message divided by the length of a solar year times the coefficient of the speed of sound. Times the value of the bribe equals the likely-hood of publication (should the rest of the rules be complied with.)
3. Typed double spaced. Gargoyle scrawl generally loses something in the translation. We got typewriters available. We might even let you use 'em if you can perform some silly and embarrassing act.
4. Write the little gems on pieces of paper or bricks larger than loose leaf sheets. Little pieces get eaten by the goat or are used in emergencies when toilet paper is missing from the can.

5. Your REAL name must accompany the ad. It is for our protection. Also a phone number or address where you can be reached. To date we have yet to reveal anyone's identity. (No one has offered Mega-Bucks)
6. The Journal pretends to comply with certain standards of non-racism and sexism. Sometimes we get keen and refuse to print such trash. (It gets passed around the Journal Parties however.)
7. Ads will only run once and must be resubmitted if you want to re-run it.
8. Deadlines: Monday at 8:45 in the submission box in residence or bring them up Rm. 517 in the SUB Monday morning at 9:00.

No Atlantic Representative

by Gerald Wood

The C.I.A.U. men's basketball championships took place at the Halifax Metro Centre this past weekend. There was, however, a slight problem in that the A.U.A.A. did not have a representative playing. Even so, east-west confrontations existed in both semi-final games with No. 2 Victoria Vikings looking for their seventh straight title going against the underdog No. 12 Saskatchewan Huskies in one game and No. 3 Waterloo Warriors gunning for No. 11 Western Ontario Mustangs in the other.

The Victoria-Saskatchewan game was a sleeper. The Huskies, who defeated No. 1 Manitoba Bisons in the regionals, could not do anything right. They shot a miserable 35% from the floor and committed so many turnovers the fans wondered how they got there in the first place. The score of 78-70 was a deceiving one as the Vikings laid back and allowed the Huskies to come back. The point spread was 22 at one point. Halftime score was 38-27. The amazing statistic was that all eleven players utilized by Victoria coach Ken Shields figured in the scoring. High man for Victoria was Shawn Kalinovich with 23 points while Byron Tokarchuk paced Saskatchewan with 20.

The second game of the night was another poorly played game. Turnovers and missed shots were the most frequent occurrence as Western came so close only to let a hurting Waterloo team sneak through the back door at the last minute. Forward Peter Savich was the big man for Waterloo as he scored 19 points and was responsible for a 20 foot jumper with 12 seconds to put the Warriors ahead for good. Pete Vandebovenkamp was high man for Western.

The third place game on Saturday was close until the final minutes as Western went ahead and won by a score of 78-71.

The main event for Saturday was the final between Waterloo and Victoria. Victoria dominated the game except in the last minute when Waterloo worked back to within 1 point late in the game but fouls hurt them and Victoria ran the score back to 70-61.

Tournament M.V.P. was 7 foot Cord Clemens from Victoria who was responsible for 27 points in the final game.

Three Huskies Retire

by Cathy Watkins

February 14 was the last day Sandra Mumford, Michele Gaunce and Tracy Vanier would put on a Saint Mary's University basketball uniform as they played the last game of their varsity careers.

Sandra Mumford, a Prince Andrew graduate, has been a Huskie for five years, earning A.U.A.A. honours in her fourth and fifth years. Sandra tied for first place in the A.U.A.A. scoring race and was ninth in rebounds. She plans to graduate in May and will be married in July.

Michele Gaunce, a fourth year management major, is a graduate of Southern Victoria High School in Perth-Andover

N.B. A strong post, excellent jumper and shooter, Michele won the scoring title last year and was second this year. She was named to the A.U.A.A. First All-Star team both this year and last and was the team's M.V.P. last year. This year, Michele lead the scoring race well into the season but was injured, developing a stress fracture in her ankle, but still finished the year and placed seventh in rebounding.

Tracy Vanier, a fifth year marketing major, returned to Saint Mary's this year after a two year absence from basketball, one of which was spent in Angers, France in an exchange program. Tracy graduated from Cobequid Educational Center in 1981 and brought with her a reputation for excellent outside shooting which has certainly been proven again and again at Saint Mary's. The instatement of the three-point line this year has been great for Tracy who has put in more than a few three pointers this season. Tracy finished the year in eighth place in the league in foul shooting.

All three girls will have been awarded both their Athletic Letters and Pins after the Athletic Awards later this week. We wish them luck in the future and thank them for having made such an outstanding contribution to Saint Mary's Women's basketball program, through their skill, dedication and commitment to the "Pursuit of Excellence."

Women's Touch Football Clinic

by Colin MacMillan

It's happening at Saint Mary's, it's open to females who wish to play and both sexes who are interested in administration.

It's a women's touch football clinic, scheduled for the weekend of April 4 and 5, and it's open to anyone who wishes to play the game.

Sponsored in part by the Fitness and Amateur Sport Women's Program and run by the N.S. Amateur Football Association, the clinic's purpose is to improve the skills presently practised by women in the sport as well as draw in and train new players and administrative officials.

According to Ms. Lissa McRae, a participant in the Women's Football Program, over 100 women on 7 teams were involved in the Metro Touch Football League last summer. They also took part in a National Conference — placing third the first year of play.

Organizers of the event are trying to increase the numbers involved in the sport program and perhaps spawn more leagues in other parts of the province.

For more information, or to register, contact Ted Meldrum, Development Co-Ordinator, at 425-5450.

Intramural Banquet Approaching

by Shane Ross

For the first time ever, there will be separate banquets for varsity and intramural athletics. The varsity banquet is on Friday, March 21, and the intramural function is on Wednesday, April 2.

It is hoped that this new system will boost student interest and add more credibility to the intramural program at Saint Mary's. There have been more intramural participants this year than any other and this trend is likely to continue.

Tickets are free to all intramural participants, however, winning team members will have Tuesday and Wednesday, March 25 and 26, to get them before they become available to everyone else. Tickets can be obtained from the Department of Athletics and Recreation on the fourth floor of the SUB.

It is an informal affair that starts at 7:00 p.m. and should not last any more than three hours. Free pizza will be served and a cash bar will be run. Awards will be presented to all-star teams, most sportsmanlike player, manager of the year, as well as to a few "gag" recipients. I am also told there will be "a little surprise" in store for everyone who attends, so let's all get out and make this event as much a success as the whole intramural program was!

In other intramural news, the "Ankle-biters" captured the Women's Volleyball title by defeating the "breaknecks" 9-15, 15-13, 15-6. They rallied from a 12-2 deficit in Game 2 to force the third and decisive game. Members of the winning team are Marcia Kissner, Angie Hutchinson, Allie Verran, Lisa DeSilva, Lisa MacKenzie, Kelly Ford and Marguerite MacEachern.
