Message from the President

Dear Friends of Saint Mary's:

Much has happened at Saint Mary's University since the last Maroon and White. On behalf of your Executive Committee, I want to welcome Anne Mussett, our new Alumni Director, and Gregor Sperry, our Alumni Officer. If their early enthusiasm and confidence is anything to go by, I am sure each of these individuals will serve us well. I also want to thank Betty Jean Frenette of the Alumni Office — B.J. was extremely helpful over the last number of months. You were a life saver B.J.

In addition to sponsoring an Environmental Lecture Series, our committees have been active planning the 1991 Annual Meeting, the Annual Dinner and of course, the upcoming Golf Tournament. We are anxiously awaiting the results of the Alumni Survey and we have high hopes that it will provide the basis for further strengthening our Alumni ties.

I will complete my term as President on May 14, 1991. I want to thank each member of the Executive for their continued assistance and support over the last two years. Good luck to the incoming Executive.

To all Alums — have a good summer!
Yours very truly,

Karen Oldfield

"Ontario Golden Horseshoe Alumni are Alive and Well!"

by Guido Kelly

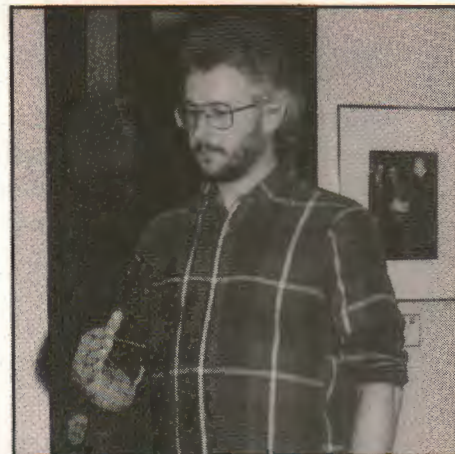

On April 11, 1991 an alumni reception was held in Hamilton and attended by a number of alumni and guests from Hamilton/ Burlington and the surrounding areas at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The reception was held to coincide with a visit to McMaster University in Hamilton, by Don Keleher, Director of University Advancement and two deans Dr. Bill Jones, Dean of Science and Dr. Mike Larsen, Dean of Arts who each gave an update of the many faces of Saint Mary's University. Attending the reception from the 60's were Rick, John and Tony Harper, Denis Reardon, Bob Tatti, Bill West and Carmine Lancia. Carmine who won a large SMU towel says he can finally have showers! From the 70's were: Bernie Goulet, Steve Garland, Jane and Linda MacPhee, Pat Cambea and Joe Shark. Recent alumni were Peter Murray, Carol Skillen and Steve Short. The event was organized by Phil Duffy and Guido Kelly both of 60's fame. (Remember the Inglis Street Animal Farm — they have come a long way!) By popular demand, there will be a repeat reception held in late May spear-headed by Linda MacPhee, Phil Duffy and Guido Kelly.

Ottawa Branch — Spring Extravaganza Wine & Cheese Reception

By Bob Hayes

Bob Hayes, Executive Assistant to the President attended the Ottawa Branch, Spring Extravaganza Wine & Cheese reception held on April 8, 1991 at Centre Block, House of Commons in Ottawa on behalf of the Alumni Association. Bob informed the alumni in attendance about the appointment of a new Director of Alumni, Anne Mussett, BA '79, LLB '86, the appointment of Dr. Colin Dodds as Vice President Academic & Research and gave them information on the budget, sports etc. on behalf of the President, Dr. Kenneth Ozmon. Approximately thirty alumni were in attendance. Some alumni in attendance were Bruce Garvin BSc '75; Lynn Andrews BA '77 (former SMU counsellor), Angie Britten, BComm '91, and Ron Pate BA '74, MA '76 who is a new teacher in the Ottawa area. Ted Hoganson, President of the Ottawa Branch spoke of the need for more volunteers to assist them. Ann Rowe suggested an Ottawa alumni support group for new arrivals in the city. The reception was a great success thanks to organizers Paul Lynch, Ted Hoganson and Ann Rowe.

Environmental Lecture Series

The Saint Mary's Alumni Association, in conjunction with Bolands/IGA, presented an environmental lecture series, "It's easy to be green," in March and April. Topics ranged from an overview of environmental issues, recycling in the home and office, modifying purchasing habits to protect the environment and teaching kids to be 'green.' Here, John Sipos, environmental consultant to Edmonds Landscape and Construction Services, tells how to grow a healthy garden and lawn without the use of chemical pesticides, herbicides or fertilizers.

Alumni Office News

by Anne Mussett, BA '79, LLB '86
Director of Alumni

On behalf of the Alumni Association, many thanks to Betty Jean Frenette who has kept the Alumni Office running in the absence of both an Alumni Director and Alumni Officer since January. For the many of you who know B.J. it will come as no surprise that both the office and the affairs of the Alumni Association have been handled with enthusiasm and dedication. The hard work and extra efforts over the past several months have been greatly appreciated. As well, thank you B.J. and Kim Squires (Manager, Annual Fund and alumni executive member) who have put this edition of the Maroon and White together.

Gregor Sperry has recently been chosen as Alumni Officer to replace Heather Brown. Greg graduated from Saint Mary's University in 1989 with a Bachelor of Commerce, cum laude with a major in marketing. He comes to the university from Landmark Sports Group Atlantic where he worked as Event Co-ordinator. Greg has been active in the community on a volunteer basis coaching midget and juvenile sports programs. He brings enthusiasm, experience and an eagerness to meet the challenges of our alumni work. Welcome Greg! 🍷

"Born on the kitchen table," Arthur Inglis says, showing the date of his birth certificate, May 10, 1896.

Saint Mary's oldest living alumnus (Engineering '18) now lives in the Veterans Memorial Building, Camp Hill Hospital, Halifax

"I've got an incurable disease . . . old age!", he laughs. Otherwise, he is hale and hearty and his 95th birthday party was a dandy.

Saint Mary's president Dr. Ken Ozmon, alumni director Anne Mussett, university advancement director Don Keleher, student Robert Hessian, and Edmund Morris, brought a cake — "39 again!" quipped Arthur — a Huskies jacket, and a crested pin. Arthur blew out the candles with a single puff.

They brought a special certificate, too, for Arthur from Mayor Ron Wallace (Class of '49) on behalf of the City of Halifax.

"Put it up there with the Canary Islands, where I can see it" — the honored place in his room, festooned with photographic memories of the islands where, until very recent times, he spent several months a year.

Saint Mary's College calendar for 1916-17 lists two students in engineering and fifteen in arts. Tuition was $40. "I can remember taking the money to Monsignor McManus and getting a receipt".

Boarders paid another $140. "The boarders!", Arthur snorts. "They didn't know from nothing. One was the local bully until I came along, but I took good care of him".

"We were the only college then that had its own rink" (the Rorum!). "From 4:00 to 6:00 every afternoon we were there to play anyone who showed up. We weren't individually outstanding but we knew how to go about things as a team".

He vividly remembers, too, the morning of the Halifax Explosion, December 6, 1917. "I was walking up to Saint Mary's" (the family home, since demolished, was at the corner of Robie and Morris streets) "and I was a little bit late".

"I met a former Saint Mary's student, who had gone into the seminary, at the Willow Tree. I was facing north and noticed this big grey puff, so I said to him, 'Ben, look at that'."

"Just then a big yellow flame shot up. Next thing we knew we were across the street, sucked there by the vacuum created by the explosion".

"Good thing I was late. If I'd been on time, I might have had broken glass in my eyes".

"The next day was pelting snow something terrific. The day after that, folks in Boston had a full hospital rigged up in Saint Mary's College. They brought their own nurses, beds, blankets, a whole hospital outfit. God bless them, they did a marvelous job".

Oldest Alumnus celebrates his 95th Birthday!

"Me? Kind of happy. We didn't have to go to school for a while!"

Arthur Inglis received his engineering diploma from Saint Mary's, went on to the Technical College (now Technical University of Nova Scotia) and a stint in the Royal Flying Corps. After World War I, he became a building sub-contractor in marble, tile, terrazzo and floor coverings.

He remembers all the others.

And he always speaks affectionately of Saint Mary's. ☺

Atlantic News Owner Passes Away

by Ryan Van Horne

Patrick Doherty 43, a graduate of Saint Mary's University and Saint Mary's High School, died of cancer in late February. Doherty was the owner of Atlantic News, the popular newsstand on the corner of Queen and Morris Streets. Doherty was diagnosed with cancer just before Christmas and was recovering from an operation in London, Ontario during which two tumors were removed from his brain.

Doherty is survived by his wife Oonagh, his mother Ruth, older brother Michael, now a teacher at Gorsebrook School, younger brother John (who works at Atlantic News), and a sister, Joan, who also works at Atlantic News.

The March 2nd funeral at St. Thomas Aquinas Church on Oxford Street attracted hundreds of mourners. Many were patrons of the store and had developed a friendship with Doherty over the years.

The customers at Atlantic News were as diverse as the magazine titles they stocked, said John Doherty.

"My brother was a voracious reader himself and had a wide variety of interests," said John Doherty. "He was not the type to have a surface knowledge of something, he was able to converse intelligently on many subjects. It was interesting listening to him hold court with the customers."

"Pat did many things at a very high level. Pat was one of the leading stereophiles in the city," he said. The elder Doherty started out building his own amplifiers, the ones you could order through the mail. "He started doing that when he was a student at Saint Mary's High School and I think he sold them to the university to put a stereo system in the teacher's lounge — this would be in 1960 or 1961," John Doherty said.

George Hallett, an English professor at Saint Mary's who taught Pat Doherty 30 years ago, said the day of the funeral, "I've never met a livelier mind in my life, I suppose that was his most obvious quality. He was interested in virtually everything and seemed to know a great deal about almost everything."

As a student, Pat Doherty was "uncommonly bright" and loved learning. He went through both the high school and university on scholarships. "He could have done anything he wanted to do," Hallett said. "He was exceptional — no question about it. He was a valuable asset to this community." Hallett said the two remained close friends after Doherty graduated from Saint Mary's with a Commerce degree in 1963.

"I suppose I saw him two or three times a week for years and years, and I couldn't number the phone conversations I had with him over the years," Hallett said. "He was just a very interesting person."

After graduation, Doherty went to work for Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, an accounting firm. In the early 1970's he started a motorcycle business with his brother John and Bernie Scheffman, who was then owner of the Downtown Book Mart on Argyle Street. Pat and his wife then opened up Atlantic News with Scheffman and took it over in 1975.

"He knew an awful lot about accounting and business, and he was always destined to run his own business," his brother John said.

Despite many attractive offers to go into malls all over Atlantic Canada, Pat Doherty never accepted any of them. "He wasn't interested in running a chain. He wanted Atlantic News to be unique and to do his own thing his own way," John Doherty said.

Frank Baldwin

by Catherine Kentridge

Frank Baldwin received the degree of Doctor of Civil Law honoris causa at Spring Convocation. He's "Mr. Basketball" to anyone who knows the sport in Nova Scotia. His career has spanned half a century as both coach and administrator in the basketball arena. His connection with Saint Mary's began almost forty years ago, in 1952 when he arrived as manager of the canteen and bookstore. At the same time, he founded the Saint Mary's Basketball Huskies and coached them for ten years. He gave them a great start in the field, and set them on the track of excellence which they have striven to follow ever since. In 1962, he became recreational director for the Canadian Martyrs' Church.

But Mr. Baldwin was coaching basketball long before he came to Saint Mary's, beginning with the Oxford Junior High School team. He also coached the Queen Elizabeth High School team for the Canadian Juvenile Championship in 1950. Throughout the 1970's he continued to coach at the provincial and national levels. His service to the game has brought him many honours, including induction into the Canadian Basketball Hall of Fame in 1979. He was co-founder of the Halifax Juvenile Boys Basketball league and from 1972 until his retirement in 1986 was co-ordinator for basketball at Sport Nova Scotia.

These facts and figures tell something of the story of Frank Baldwin, but there's a lot more to him than that.

Sitting in his apartment surrounded by trophies, cartoons and signed photographs of teams and individuals he has helped over the years, he spoke of how he first became involved in coaching basketball. A friend of his was coaching the junior high team at Oxford Junior High and asked him to step in one day when he couldn't be there. Says Baldwin "Of course, I'd played the sport before, but when I was a kid there was no program or physical education teachers. So we just played at the Catholic Boys' Club on Barrington where the old infirmary is today."

He says it may seem strange for a canteen and bookstore manager to have founded a university basketball team, but when he got there, he was coaching as a pastime. Then when the team went into the building at Oxford Street he was invited to do some serious coaching. "In those days I did practically everything," he recalls, "from running the canteen and bookstore to singing at funeral masses. About the only thing I didn't do was work the switchboard."

Over the decades, Mr. Baldwin has gained deep insights into the game and more especially into what makes not just a good player or a good coach, but what makes good people. Several ingredients seem to be required to be a good coach, the biggest being infinite amounts of patience. "Especially with the really tall players, who don't generally have good co-ordination, and are inclined to be a little clumsy, you need the patience of Job." But he is quick to add, "a good player is what makes a good coach as well as vice versa."

In a career that has had its share of highlights and moments of glory for Mr. Baldwin and the many teams he has coached, there is one thing that makes him prouder than anything else. "If anyone I have coached has learnt something other than basketball from me and that I have had a good influence on anyone, that will make me feel my time has been well spent." He adds, "I have always tried to drum it into my players that there's more to life than basketball. And when I see people I've coached who have become doctors and lawyers and are good people, I like to feel I've had something to do with that and that the game was secondary." And from the deep friendships he has made over the years and the cards and letters he receives from former players, it would seem his hopes are well founded.

Mr. Baldwin says that sports coaches who work with young people are at a tremendous advantage. "You get people who really want to do something, you get them at their highest and at their lowest, winning and losing. And they all have different attitudes. I try to give them perspective. Sometimes when they feel desolated by a loss I remind them that a billion people in China don't even know they've lost — it makes them laugh but it also puts the whole thing into perspective. I also tell them that losing is an experience in life. If you have never lost, you can't ever know how to win anything."

His advice to players is "have some fun while you're playing, even though at the same time you should take the game seriously. This is a time of your life which is free and easy, so enjoy it now or you never will." Although Mr. Baldwin officially retired in 1986, he is having a very active retirement. "Lots of people when they retire say that's that, and there's the end of it. Not me. I can't go by a place where they're playing without stopping to watch. I go to all kinds of games, especially college games but I get a little saturated with pro games." And he still coaches at summer camps for school children at the University College of Cape Breton and at Acadia.

But with all his talk of basketball, Mr. Baldwin makes it absolutely clear that it is not now and never has been the only thing in his life. He has another great passion — singing. He sang with the St. Mary's Basilica church choir for more than forty years. And for twenty-five years he's been a member of the barbershop group, the Atlantic Swells, and of the Chebucto Singers. "I'm seventy years old and can still sing in tune. And let me tell you, some of the tenor stuff in the barbershop music is vocal gymnastics."

With the balance of sporting, humanitarian and cultural elements in his makeup, his mens sana in corpore sano, Mr. Baldwin is a great example of the philosophies he has preached all his life. ☪

Four honorary degrees at Convocation

Saint Mary's conferred honorary degrees on Frank Baldwin "Mr. Basketball" retired, co-ordinator of basketball at Sport Nova Scotia, President of Mount Saint Vincent Dr. Naomi Hersom, Dr. Gerhard Herzberg, research scientist with Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics and Chairman and President of Sobeys Inc. David F. Sobeys at Convocation on May 13, 1991.

Naomi Hersom,
Doctor of Civil Law,
honoris causa

Dr. Naomi Hersom is completing a term of office as President of Mount Saint Vincent University. She received a BA, BEd and MEd from the University of Manitoba and a PhD from the University of Alberta. Her distinguished teaching and administrative career began in the elementary schools of Winnipeg and led her to teach in the faculties of education of the Universities of Alberta and British Columbia. In 1981, she became Dean of the college of Education at the University of Saskatchewan, where her work included the expansion of technical and vocational teacher education programs, and the development of distance education.

Dr. Hersom has made substantial contributions to the cause of education. She has served as president of the Canadian Society for the Study of Higher Education, and the Canadian Society for the Study of Education, as a vice-president of the Canadian Education Association, and a member of the Advisory Academic Panel of the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada (SSHRC). For her work in education and other areas of public service, notably the Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship of Canada, she has received numerous awards, including YWCA Woman of the Year. In 1987 she was invested Grand Dame of Merit, Order of the Knights of Malta.

Dr. Hersom has been tireless in her teaching, writing and administrative efforts to promote many causes, not least those concerning the role and well-being of women. She has been a member of the Canadian Research Institute for the Advancement of Women and the UNESCO Status of Women Sub Commission. Dr. Hersom, who holds honorary degrees from McGill University, York University, the University of Ottawa and the University of Manitoba, has published fifty-eight papers on a wide range of subjects. In addition, she has given her time to research and delivers a staggering 153 talks and addresses to bodies as widely ranging as a pregnancy crisis centre and SSHRC.

Dr. Gerhard Herzberg,
Doctor of Science,
honoris causa

Dr. Herzberg was born in Hamburg, Germany and received his undergraduate and doctoral degrees from the Darmstadt Institute of Technology. He escaped from Nazi Germany to Canada in 1935 and became Research Professor of Physics at the University of Saskatchewan. From 1945 to 1948 he was Professor of Spectroscopy at the University of Chicago, and in 1948 he joined the National Research Council (NRC) as Principal Research Officer, Division of Physics. He remained with the NRC to serve as Director of divisions of physics and pure physics, and in 1969 was appointed Distinguished Research Scientist, Division of Physics. He is now Distinguished Research Scientist with the Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics, which was named in his honor.

Other honors which have been bestowed upon this distinguished scientist include the Nobel Prize in Chemistry, 1971, and the Linus Pauling medal from the American Chemical Society, 1971. In 1987 the minor planet 3316=1984 CN1 was officially named "Herzberg".

Dr. Herzberg's scientific work has been in the fields of spectroscopy, atomic and molecular structure and astrophysics. It has been said of him that "His work has added to our knowledge of the atmospheres of the stars and planets and has enlarged our understanding of the bonds between atoms and molecules." He is an honorary fellow or member of learned societies around the world and has given many memorial lectures. In addition, Dr. Herzberg has published over 275 papers in scientific journals in his fields and six books. He holds honorary degrees from thirty-six universities, including doctorates of science from Oxford, Cambridge and the University of Chicago.

David F. Sobeys,
Doctor of Commerce,
honoris causa

David Sobeys is the grandson of the founder of Sobeys Inc. and began his working life sorting vegetables in the basement of a company store in Stellarton. Today he is chairman and president of the company which employs 10,000 people, operates more than one hundred retail stores from Ontario to Newfoundland, and has annual sales of $1.6 billion.

After studying at Dalhousie University, Mr. Sobeys joined the family firm and, except for one year with First National Stores in Boston, has been with it ever since. After a period managing a Sobeys store in Halifax he became director of merchandising and advertising. In 1961, he was appointed vice-president, and in 1974, president. In 1990, he was made a Knight of the Gold Pencil, an honor which recognizes personal commitment and a significant long-term contribution to the Canadian food industry.

Mr. Sobey's community service includes work with Junior Achievement of Canada and he is a director of the Retail Council of Canada, and the Food Marketing Institute. He serves on a number of boards of directors, including Atlantic Shopping Centres Ltd., CHC Helicopter Corp., The Clover Group, Dominion Textile Inc., and Evangeline Savings and Mortgage Company. He was appointed to the Board of Governors of Saint Mary's University in 1986.

Dr. Douglas Williamson, Dean of Science Emeritus

Dr. Douglas Williamson was honored by Saint Mary's with an appointment as Dean of Science Emeritus. Dr. Williamson was Dean of Science at Saint Mary's from 1980 to 1989. In a tribute published on his retirement, Dr. Jaroslav Dostal wrote: "Dr. Williamson's term as Dean of Science was an unqualified success. His dynamic personality, unfailing integrity and constant striving for the highest academic standards will be remembered for many years. His legacy in the Faculty of Science is a vastly increased level of research activity and outside financial support."

Williamson came to Canada in 1953 after four years as a Royal Air Force pilot during the Second World War, and six years at the University of Aberdeen where he earned a BSc and PhD in geology. He joined the Geology Department at Mount Allison University, and in addition to teaching and administrative duties, he conducted extensive field and mineral exploration studies and published papers and reports on his findings. In 1966, Williamson undertook to plan and start the geology department at Laurentian University in Sudbury. He became Associate Dean of Science in 1969 and Dean of Science in 1975.

During his years at Mount Allison and Laurentian, Williamson showed dedication to broader issues in the academic environment through involvement in committees on research and academic excellence at both the provincial and national levels.

At Saint Mary's, Dean Williamson was active in university affairs and on academic boards and committees, but found time to teach a course in geology in order to stay in touch with students. Dr. Dostal said, "As a teacher, his exuberant style, love of his subject and genuine concern for students were guaranteed to inspire all those who attended his classes."

In his retirement Dr. Williamson is busy catching up on all kinds of things he did not have time for during his working life. Of his appointment as Dean Emeritus he says, "I am delighted and glad that my years in the dean's office have been recognized. They were not always easy ones." ☺

The relentless pursuit of Ethics

by Anne West

What should have been a half hour interview turned into a two hour philosophy lesson! Dr. Richard Beis retired in September after teaching at Saint Mary's for twenty-five years. He was honored with the title of Professor Emeritus at Convocation, so I decided to write an article about his career. Easier said than done! Each question, even "Why did you come to Nova Scotia" elicited a complex and carefully reasoned answer, and his frustration at having no blackboard was evident throughout the interview. Most of my questions never did get answers, but I, who have never been to university, received a wonderful lesson in philosophical thought.

It appears that philosophy chose Dr. Beis, rather than the other way around. He says, "I came across it at a young age, I think I always liked it, even when I did not know what it was." He still loves it and says, "I am very lucky, after thirty years I still love my discipline." He has also always enjoyed teaching and says, "Right up through my last day of classes I enjoyed the exchange of ideas with students."

Dr. Beis and his wife Frances came to Canada in 1965, from Chicago. They came in search of land, clean air (both have allergies) and work. Nova Scotia provided all three and they have loved it ever since. At first they rented homes at Mason's Point and Allan Heights, then built a place at Allan Heights. They moved into Halifax to bring up their two children on Mumford Road, but moved back to their ocean view once the children were grown.

Dr. Beis' career has been devoted to the study of ethics, but he is quick to say, "I teach ethics, I do not preach ethics." His work is deeply rooted in the great Greek philosophers Plato, Aristotle, and Socrates, as well as Saint Augustine, Saint Thomas Aquinas, Descartes, Hume and Kant. He explains that the Greek philosophers "tried to develop a consistent and rational kind of ethical system," which is what moral philosophers have continued to do over the centuries, encountering many problems and creating many theories in the process.

Dr. Beis has researched widely on the questions of sexual ethics. Asked why, he says, "It is a very vital concern for most people. If you think of other things that are important to us, for example, investing money, think how careful we are when we invest money. Yet one of the things I found was that when we get talking about sex, we get silly. We refuse to use that kind of hard-nosed approach to it." He believes, "We pay a bitter price for that. I think there has been incredible suffering for aeons because we refuse to use hard-headed analysis with regard to sex."

In his search for truth in sexual ethics, he has touched on many of the moral issues of our time. He says "I wrote about contraception in the 60's, homosexuality in the 70's and pornography in the 80's."

After a life devoted to the relentless pursuit of ethical questions, one must ask, what are Dr. Beis' own conclusions? Although he grew up a Roman Catholic and even spent some years in the seminary, he eventually abandoned Christianity and says, "I despise ideology." He adds, "Religious ideology, political ideology, you name it, I do not subscribe to it." This does not mean he is against all theory, but that he has found ideologies fall down in the light of hard experience.

Teaching has always been very important to Dr. Beis. "The excitement of teaching is when students see whole new worlds," he says. Dr. Beis always pushed himself and his students, and agrees with the philosopher Spinoza that, "Things that are of great value are as difficult as they are rare." He has always tried, "To get students to think very deeply about ethical positions and why they hold them." For many students, he believes, "This is a whole new experience." Of his teaching methods he says, "I have never been able to lecture, I naturally create a dialogue between myself and the students."

The relentless pursuit of Ethics — Dr. Richard Beis

Dr. Beis has always tried to make the complexities of philosophical reasoning clear to his students by using examples they can relate to. When linking such abstract concepts as "good" and "bad" with concrete terms like "black" and "white," he connects them with such everyday realities as "tables", "chairs" or "cats". He remembers, "At the end of one year, a boy and girl, they were very nice kids, gave me a black cat."

Dr. Beis also has strong views on education. He says, "What you need for an education is to learn how to read, how to write, how to speak and how to think. This is basic stuff and cannot be repeated too often." The role of philosophy in education, he believes, is to teach people how to think. "If you take a variety of courses in a variety of disciplines, you will learn how to think in a variety of ways. In philosophy you will get a certain way of thinking that is different and very useful." Philosophy does not have all the answers, but Beis says, "Understanding the meaning of basic terms and their logic or foundation does not mean you will solve all problems, but you will avoid some of them."

He also believes, "Fifty percent of the people in university shouldn't be there." Universities, in his opinion, should be an intellectual training ground for people for whom that kind of training is most suited.

Expressing this idea, he describes what he sees as a typical North American contradiction: an inconsistent application of a democratic principle. "It is my democratic right that my child should have the opportunity for a university education. I do not, however, believe that it is my son's democratic right to play on the first string of the football team if he doesn't have the physical ability to do so."

Beis still corresponds with many of his students and recently received a letter post-marked Operation Desert Shield. Writing after a day of weapon cleaning, the student commented on Beis' remark that now he was retired, he had no students. "This simply is not the case," read the letter, "I for one will always count myself as one of your students. What I learned from you. . . has continued to help me in my ongoing pursuit of knowledge." Another student recently wrote, "What you have given me is a love of philosophy. This has enriched my life. I often find myself thinking philosophically at work or on the subway. . . What I would not give to stroll into your class on a sunny morning and discuss the verification principle of knowledge!"

Career Planning Course

Saint Mary's University Alumni Association sponsored a Career Planning Course for students from January-March 1991. The instructor for the course was Prof. Ravi Tangri, Department of Marketing.

The course was directed at the student who is in university to train for a job, but still has no idea about what they really want to do. Some of the objectives of the course were to identify a sense of focus/direction in career planning; objectively identify and analyze past behaviours, aspirations, successes, and failures; and develop a five year action plan outlining goals and the processes to attain them in all facets of your life — professional, personal, intellectual, social, emotional, etc.

Dr. Philip Street, Psychology prof wins teaching medal

Recipient 1991 Father William A. Stewart, S.J. Medal for Teaching

"Teaching is a great job, I enjoy it immensely, but I still get nervous. This suggests to me that I still regard it as a challenge," says Dr. Philip Street.

Dr. Street, who came to Saint Mary's in 1973, is this year's winner of the Father William A. Stewart, S.J. Medal for teaching. The medal is awarded annually at Convocation and the recipient is chosen by a committee of the Alumni Association.

Dr. Street's students recommended him for the medal and their comments make it clear why. "His encouragement sent me on to graduate school and I am grateful to be numbered among Phil Street's students," says one, while another comments, "To have been a student in two of his classes has been an honor and a significant element in my growing experience as a student in psychology."

Saint Mary's has grown enormously in Dr. Street's eighteen years. Classes have become larger, which makes teaching more difficult. This year he has tried to counteract this problem. In his "Abnormal Psychology" course Dr. Street has introduced a system which "uses peers to keep instruction as personal as possible; if you like, a way of taking large classroom numbers and creating a small classroom effect." In this system students focus on mastering what Dr. Street describes as "bite-sized pieces of the curriculum." The students then take their work to "proctors," a chosen group of their peers who took the course the year before. These proctors administer tests of the work completed, after which the students move on to the next bite. The course does become more textbook-oriented and Dr. Street says, "I tend to be there for trouble shooting purposes, and to mediate problems." Added to the text book study however, are supplementary lectures, videos and visiting speakers which the students attend when they have reached the appropriate stage. Dr. Street says this system, "is aimed at mastery, which sets up a challenge." Although this was its first year, Dr. Street says, "It seems to be working well." He hopes that the system will help him, "find a way to get back the intimacy that is found in a small classroom. We have to find innovative ways to re-establish those lines of communication." His students attest to the fact that it works. One of them says, "What initially seemed would be a chaotic method of instruction quickly progressed into a very well co-ordinated class, thanks to Dr. Street."

Dr. Street believes it is very important to "keep the person in psychology." He explains, "Psychology tends towards...breaking things down into the smallest components, in which case you lose sight of the whole. It is a trees and forests problem." He adds, "You could spend your whole life trying to understand human vision, but very often the student is not here with a question about vision." This remark highlights the fact that to him the students are as important as the subject matter of his lectures. He says, "Many of our students have important personal questions which they hope psychology will answer. It is our job to make sure they are not profoundly disappointed."

This devotion to students goes beyond the classroom for Dr. Street. He was involved in setting up the peer counselling program on campus, which tries to make the first year experience an easier and richer one for students. As one of his supporters says, "He always shows devotion to his students, whether it be by advising, teaching or encouraging." Another important aspect of good teaching is expressed by a student who says, "The student always knows what is expected academically. Dr. Street's course outlines are thorough and leave little room for ambiguity."

Dr. Street believes that his background and early training led to the developments of his philosophy of teaching. He says, "I come from a very religious family. My father, grandfather and uncles are ministers." In addition to this, his undergraduate degree from the University of Windsor was in the faculty of arts and he took Greek, Latin and philosophy. He was also involved in the performing arts, as a semi-professional violinist with the Windsor Symphony Orchestra, all through his undergraduate years. Yet another influence was the time he spent in psychiatric hospitals on psychological internships. All these things he says, "Affected how I came to look at teaching and what it means to be a student." One of the courses he teaches today is Psychology and Religion.

After receiving his BA in Psychology at Windsor, Dr. Street moved to York University in Toronto, where he studied for his MA and PhD. He actually completed his PhD dissertation after he came to Saint Mary's.

Commenting on the current emphasis on the quality of teaching at Saint Mary's through the work of the Quality of Teaching Committee, Dr. Street says, "This is the right direction for the University to move in and I am pleased to see it. The fact that the administration and the faculty are starting (such initiatives) is great news."

How does Dr. Street feel about receiving the teaching medal? "I am enormously pleased that the students would think of this, and grateful for the support of Dr. Darrell Bruce and my colleagues," he says, "I know Father Stewart and I am an admirer of his. I have always enjoyed the encounters we have had, although they have been brief and infrequent." He adds, "It is an honor to follow in his tradition."

Dr. Philip Street also received a monetary award from the Saint Mary's University Faculty Union and the Saint Mary's Alumni Association at the Alumni Association's Annual meeting on May 22, 1991. 🌟

THE ANNUAL FUND 1990-91

Annual gifts from alumni, parents and friends of the University enable Saint Mary's to maintain its commitment to excellence in education.

Unlike a Capital Campaign which funds major projects, annual giving provides immediate resources for a diversity of needs.

The Saint Mary's University Annual Fund is a yearly appeal to alumni, parents and friends of the University using a phone/mail program and direct mail. Student callers play an integral role in the success of the program. They gain valuable work experience while helping build a better tomorrow for their future alma mater.

The Annual Fund Centre located on the third floor of the Student Union Building is a busy place from October to April when students are working four nights a week from 6:00 — 10:00 p.m. calling alumni and parents of freshman students.

"The students have done a great job," says Kim Squires, Annual Fund Manager, they made 12,673 calls to reach 5701 alumni and parents of freshman students. Gifts and pledges made by 512 of those alumni and parents totalled $100,790.

A Big Thank You is extended to all the donors who contributed to the 90-91 Annual Fund and to the student callers and everyone in the Development Department for all their efforts to make the Annual Fund activities a success.

Leadership Club

Throughout Saint Mary's long history, leaders in academia, athletics, and in the overall community have played an important role. These individuals have expressed leadership through consistent, ongoing dedication and support. Initiated in 1989, the Leadership Club enables Saint Mary's to give special recognition to our major benefactors through publications and special invitations from the University.

Leadership gifts may be restricted to the area of the donor's choice or given to the area of greatest need through an unrestricted donation.

We recognize the following for their renewable annual gifts. Thank you for your generosity and support.

Karen Henderson Fred MacGillivray Chairpersons of 90-91 Annual Fund

While the Annual Fund programs are implemented and carried out using University staff and paid student callers, the various programs depend on volunteer chairpersons for Leadership.

This year we were fortunate to have two committed and dedicated individuals. Karen Henderson, BComm '75, MBA '77 chaired the alumni and leadership club appeals and Fred MacGillivray '63, President and General Manager of Bolands Ltd. chaired the parents appeal.

Both Karen and Fred are very active in the community and many groups benefit from their efforts be it working with the Special Olympics, the United Way or Big Brothers and Sisters to name a few. Despite their busy schedules they found time to write and sign letters, respond to concerns raised by alumni and parents and offer words of encouragement to the student callers. The University recognizes and appreciates their unselfish contributions.

If you have not made your donation to the Annual Fund and wish to do so, please use the enclosed envelope. Make your cheque payable to: Saint Mary's University Annual Fund.

New Alumni Director an old friend

Anne Mussett was recently appointed Alumni Director, taking the place of Tom McDonell, who left in January. Anne is no stranger to the University or the alumni office. She is a dyed-in-the-wool Santamarian, who started her career as an undergraduate in 1975, graduating with a BA in English and Political Science in 1979.

After graduating, she worked as a constituency assistant for Bob Rae, then MP for Toronto, now Ontario's first NDP premier. After that she did her first stint with the alumni office, working as an assistant for a short while. From 1980 to 1982 she worked for a financial services company in Ontario, then in 1982 she came back to Saint Mary's as a student while working as a course assistant in the English and Management departments, doing research and grading student papers.

In 1986, Anne continued her studies, this time as a law student at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton, where she graduated with her LLB in 1986. During this period she managed to spend five months working as Alumni Officer at Saint Mary's.

Anne has always been involved in volunteer work. At law school she served on the curriculum council and the articling committee and was Vice-President of the Law Students' Society. Since 1987 she has served Saint Mary's as a member of the Presidential Advisory Board on Athletics and Recreation, an elected member of the Alumni Association, and chair of the Alumni Scholarship Committee.

Of her new job Anne says, "I am very enthusiastic, it is both an exciting and challenging time at the university and in particular for the Alumni Office. Tom McDonell did a wonderful job initiating new ideas and developing an even stronger Alumni Association. We will work hard to build upon the goals and plans he put in place." One of her first tasks has been to select an Alumni Officer to replace Heather Harroun (nee Brown) who left shortly before Tom. The new Alumni Officer is Greg Sperry, BComm '89 who will be in place sometime in May. According to Anne, one of Greg's chief responsibilities will be the Student Alumni Association which she believes is very important because it gives the University a chance to establish the role of the Alumni Association in the minds of students before they graduate.

Anne is married to Bob Mussett and they have a 19-month old son Spencer. Incidentally, she has yet another strong connection with Saint Mary's — her brother is football coach Larry Uteck. 🍀

Saint Mary's appoints
new Vice President — Academic and Research

Mr. E.J. Flinn, Q.C., Chairman of the Board of Governors of Saint Mary's University and Dr. Kenneth L. Ozmon, President, Saint Mary's University are pleased to announce the appointment of Dr. J. Colin Dodds as Vice President — Academic and Research.

Dr. Dodds came to Saint Mary's in 1982 as an associate professor of Finance and Management Science, became a full professor, chair of the Department and director of the MBA Program in 1984, and was appointed Dean of Commerce in 1987.

Dr. Dodds is looking forward to his new position and the challenges that lay ahead. He says, "It is a very demanding and challenging job." He sees himself as part of a team, "at a time when universities are being challenged financially and in other ways. We are being challenged to provide a vision for the future, including our own future."

What comes first for the new Vice-President? "I think the first priority for the team will be to deal with the funding crunch which is likely to come in the next two to three years," says Dodds, adding, "It will be difficult to navigate our way through that, given that Saint Mary's is the most underfunded university in an underfunded system."

The Vice President — Academic and Research has responsibility for both teaching and research at Saint Mary's. Asked how he feels about these two aspects of his job, he says, "I think we have to balance teaching and research very carefully. We must not lose sight of why we are here, and we are here because of our students, and our students, both full and part-time, expect the best. With the excellent faculty we have, the very high quality of our students and the dedication of our support staff and administrative services, we can be rightly proud of our achievements."

Students are very important to Dr. Dodds, who says, "We really have to get back to basics here. At Saint Mary's we have been able to involve many of our students in research projects and with the extension of co-op programs, we are providing the essential linkage between the University and the workplace. In short, we must provide quality education, particularly quality undergraduate education." What does Dr. Dodds mean by quality education? "Simplifying matters," he says, "I repeat what I said when I became Dean of Commerce. We want our students to be able to write and think and speak clearly, to have good interpersonal skills and be able to assist in the challenges of a globally competitive world. This comes back to the importance of liberal arts and sciences as the core of their programs.

Dr. Dodds appointment will become effective July 1, 1991. ☪

Big Business School Plan

Saint Mary's could take over Dal Commerce faculty

by Chuck Bridges

The move toward rationalization within Nova Scotia's post-secondary university system continues. If the plan goes as outlined, Saint Mary's University will become the site of one of the largest business schools in Canada. One of the more important proposals being discussed by the Minister of Advanced Education, the Maritime Provinces Higher Education Commission, the Nova Scotia Higher Education Commission and Nova Scotia's thirteen university presidents is to move the Dalhousie Commerce faculty to Saint Mary's University. During a news conference on January 14, the Minister of Advanced Education, Joel Matheson, said, "The fundamental concept is to avoid duplication of services and courses as far as possible."

Dr. Colin Dodds, Dean of Commerce and recently appointed Vice President Academic and Research at Saint Mary's, says, "The amalgamation of the two faculties would give Nova Scotia the fourth-largest business school in Canada, provide an international focus, and solve several of the critical space problems facing both universities." He adds, "Because of increasing enrolment at Saint Mary's there is an urgent need for a new building to house the larger student body. There are similar space constraints at Dalhousie and the province cannot be expected to fund two multi-million dollar projects. This idea makes excellent business sense.

There are considerable roadblocks to overcome if the two faculties are to be successfully combined. There will have to be a phase-in, phase-out period, done in conjunction with the construction of the new facility at Saint Mary's University. Faculty

Dr. J. Colin Dodds, Dean of Commerce & newly appointed Vice President Academic & Research speaks at Alumni Annual Meeting on Wednesday, May 22, 1991 on "Rationalization of the University" and the proposed merger of the Saint Mary's and Dalhousie business schools at Saint Mary's University.

Union contracts and faculty levels will have to be closely studied.

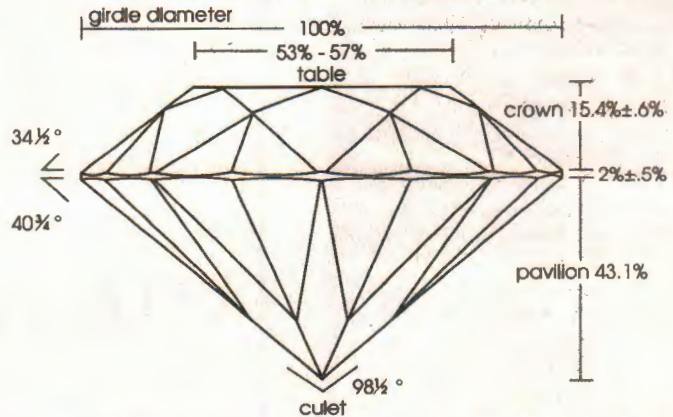

Saint Mary's President Dr. Kenneth L. Ozmon says, "There is also the impact on students and on the various administrative units on campus." Dr. Ozmon believes that any move of this magnitude will have to be carried out with a plan to minimize disruption to students, and in consideration of the already heavy workloads of staff. He says, "The people who work at Saint Mary's have made remarkable efforts during past years, and if we are to see our Commerce faculty grow, then there must be the proper adjustments to the infrastructure and the staffing levels to accommodate the increase in student and faculty numbers. We have met with faculty members to brief them on the rationalization project, and we'll be calling a general staff meeting in the near future to explain to them the implications of the Commerce move and rationalization."

While the faculties of commerce have received a great deal of attention, there are other university departments under scrutiny. Geology, Engineering and Education are all under discussion. There are more than thirty recommendations to the Nova Scotia Higher Education Commission including:

- Consolidating programs now serving small numbers of students at several schools to fewer locations,
- Planned enrolment growth of between two and four percent annually, depending on the university,
- Easier transfer of credits between universities.

Several committees, involving vice presidents, deans, registrars and other administrators from the various universities are meeting to map out plans for presentation to the Council and the provincial government. The minister says there may be changes as early as this winter, while others will take two or three years to implement. ☪

Atlantic Canada Studies Panel Discussion, Maritime Publishing

by Jackie Logan, a student majoring in English at Saint Mary's

In February, the Alumni Association co-sponsored a panel discussion with the Atlantic Canada Studies Student Society. Publishing in the Maritimes proved to be a timely topic as more than eighty students, faculty, editors, writers, publishers and interested public came together to discuss the problems and possibilities associated with this industry.

The voice of the small publisher was well heard and represented by Louise Fleming (Ragweed Press, Prince Edward Island) Phil Buckner (Acadiensis Press, New Brunswick) Kay Tudor (Rosewood Publishing, Nova Scotia) Scott Milsom (New Maritimes, Nova Scotia) and Elizabeth Eve (Atlantic Provinces Book Review). Margaret Harry, an editor and Associate Professor of English at Saint Mary's University, acted as moderator for the evening.

It was interesting to note that although the industry has a wide range of publishing interests, each publisher was positive in terms of the need for the industry's survival, which they feel is vital to the culture of our region. The many problems associated with the industry in terms of declining financial support from national and provincial sources, poor marketing potential, highly specialized audiences or small population bases, did not seem to figure too greatly in deterring industry growth as evidenced by two new publishers: Louise Fleming and Kay Tudor. What is seen by these and other publishers is the small but steady community-based market. It is to this market that many small publishers are interested in providing service, offering "alternative" books which range from poetry and local interest biographies, to regional academic interests and left of centre magazine publishing. The industry plays an integral part in promoting and maintaining our culture in the region — books are important to our identity.

While the tremendous increase in the number of Maritime books being published and the support for Maritime writers in the market in the last fifteen years coincided directly with the support given by governments, a major concern for the industry now is "what will happen to our established Maritime writers if government support continues to decrease?" The industry is being faced with many hardships such as import duty on books, loss of postal subsidies, and the Goods and Services Tax, which in all probability will lead to loss of income, and financial hardship for the small publisher.

The mood of the evening was one of determination: the need to survive is great — the will to survive greater. ☪

Saint Mary's University third year Business student, Tammy Havel was recently named one of the 1990-91 Frank H. Sobey Excellence in Business Studies Scholarship recipients. The scholarship, valued at $4,000, was awarded to Ms. Havel for her exemplary academic achievement and community involvement. Give your employees a healthy alternative to other beverages: Pure Natural Spring Water.

Water is remarkable. In the human body it serves as a transportation system for nutrients. Water lubricates our joints and regulates our temperature. Water keeps us healthy and helps the body fight illnesses like the common cold. In fact, about 60% of the average person's body weight is water. We cannot function without it. That's why Canada's Nutrition Recommendations say we need 2.5 litres per day.

Your employees can enjoy the benefits of cool, pure, Misty Mountain Natural Spring Water for only pennies a day. Call for details.

ORDERING TRANSCRIPTS

It is not nearly as difficult as you think to order copies of your academic record from Saint Mary's University.

Official transcripts are sent directly to third parties, i.e. other academic institutions or business/professional organizations. Unofficial transcripts are issued directly to you and are marked "Unofficial Issued to Student".

When required for scholarship applications etc, "Official transcripts" are put in a sealed envelope with a sticker that states "Official transcript enclosed, invalid if presented with the seal broken". This can be given to a student to include with his/her application.

Transcripts of records are considered to be privileged information and to that end will not be released to those outside the University without the prior written permission of the student or former student.

To request a transcript you must complete the appropriate form obtainable from the Registrar, or forward a letter of request to the Records Office at the University. It is not possible to accept transcript requests over the telephone. Transcript requests are processed strictly in the order in which they are received. Though the normal processing time is approximately ten working days, additional time will be needed at peak periods of the year, particularly at the end of each semester and around graduation time.

The cost is $2.00 for the first copy of the transcript and $1.00 for each additional copy ordered to be sent at the same time.

Transcript requests are payable in advance at the time of request. Please note that requests are not processed if a debt is owing at the Business Office or the Library.

For further information please contact Mrs. Betty Fowler, Transcript Secretary, Office of the Registrar/Records at (902) 420-5400 Ext. 2539, or by Fax (902) 420-5566.

MBA

Kathy Jourdain, MBA '90, and her husband Terence Dwyer are pleased to announce the birth of their first child Jacob Zachary Dwyer on December 20, 1990. Jacob tipped the scales at 8 lbs. Kathy is executive director for the Multiple Sclerosis Society (Atlantic Division).

Beinan (Allison) Zhang, MBA '90, was an assistant professor of international economics at the Beijing Normal University in Beijing, China, before coming to Canada in 1988. She came to Saint Mary's through the Canada-China Language and Culture

Program, which has offices at both universities. A delegation from the China-based half of the program had visited Saint Mary's earlier, and struck an agreement to send one of its teachers to Saint Mary's and Beinan was selected. Beinan already had Bachelor and Masters degrees in economics, but as she says, "I came to Canada to gain first-hand knowledge of the capitalist system." As a teacher of international economics, she says it is critical for her to understand how Western-style economics function. "In 1982 when I was an undergraduate, we were not taught much about Western society or economics. But now, China is becoming more and more open to the world, and the Chinese are learning more about the Western world in university. Lots of courses are imported from Japan."

After she graduates in May, Beinan may decide to remain in Canada. She is unsure when she will return to China, where she has a husband and a five-year old daughter.

SAINT MARY'S PRAISED FOR DISABLED SERVICES

Saint Mary's University was the first university in the Atlantic Provinces to plan and alter its physical structure and services to accommodate disabled students because it recognized the rights of qualified Physically and Learning Disabled students to obtain a university education. Saint Mary's can be proud of its position as a role model in making programs and services available to the disabled, Nova Scotia Social Services Minister Marie Dechman told those attending the opening of the Learning Lab for students with disabilities at the University on April 25, 1991.

The Learning Lab is part of the Atlantic Centre of Support for Disabled Students which officially opened in 1985 at which time there were about 10 disabled students registered. Today, there are 180 students using the Centre's resources, 102 from Saint Mary's Campus and 78 from nine other Nova Scotia universities and community colleges.

The Lab provides support services ranging from counselling to technical aids such as computers, which help users check spelling and grammar, and lap-top computers to help students take notes in class.

Last year, the Atlantic Centre expanded its services with the addition of the Learning Disability Support Program which is funded by the Nova Scotia Department of Community Services and answers a growing need. In 1987, there were only two learning disabled students being guided through the Centre. Today, there are 20. According to Fred McAvoy, Program Co-Ordinator, "it's not a program where students take different courses. The difference is in support".

Also addressing the many who gathered for the ribbon-cutting ceremony of the Learning Lab was Mrs. Martha Jodrey, a member of the Saint Mary's University Board of Governors and an active supporter of the Atlantic Centre. Mrs. Jodrey commended Dr. David Leitch, Director of the Atlantic Centre, for the wonderful work being done at the Centre through the Innovations Project — Making the Employment Connection. Although in operation for only three years, it has been very successful in placing motivated disabled people at the post-secondary level, in permanent employment. The project, said Mrs. Jodrey, "has the added feature of providing role models for future generations of aspiring Canadians who happen to be disabled".

Other universities in the Maritimes are learning from Saint Mary's example and guidance, an accomplishment of which Saint Mary's University can be proud.
