UBC STUDENTS MAY STRIKE

VANCOUVER (CUP) - The Students Council of the University of British Columbia has asked students to strike the university if the B.C. government does not vote $66 millions to higher education in the province next year. UBC students vote Tuesday in an all-campus referendum on whether or not to follow their leaders to the picket lines.

The strike, to be held in early March, after the department of education estimates come before the legislature, would mean that all buildings and roads on campus would be closed for at least one day. Student picket lines would be organized to prevent campus access to all but researchers engaged in uninterrupted projects. The 17,000 students will have a chance to vote yes or no, for or against the council strike plan in the referendum which is worded:

"If the B.C. government does not allocate $66 millions to higher education in B.C., as recommended in the Macdonald formula, would you support an AMS-sponsored week of concern including a strike within that week, and would you serve on a picket line?"

The referendum needs a total turnout of 20 percent of students and a two-thirds majority of those voting to pass.

UBC PRESIDENT URGES PLANS DROPPED

The President of UBC, John Macdonald, urged student leaders to drop their strike plans. He felt that the needs of the universities in B.C. had already been made clear to the government.

"That is as far as the universities have a right to go. The decision in respect to the universities is exclusively a decision of the government and the legislature placed in power by the people of this province.

"Any talk or threat of strike by the students is completely irresponsible and inconsistent with our form of parliamentary government which all Canadian should hold dear."

DEBATE UPCOMING ON CONTRACEPTION

The St. Mary's Debating Society will take the platform against a team from King's College Monday night to debate the resolution, "Resolved, that the policy of the Roman Catholic Church concerning the use of contraceptives is archaic".

Bob Shaw and Rick Minichiello will represent St. Mary's.

The King's team will take the negative by supporting the controversial Catholic doctrine, while the SMU contingent will attempt to back up the Resolution.

The match is set for 8 P.M. Monday in the Debating Theatre on the third floor of the SMU Administration Building.

HALIFAX (JNS) - Although there are eight names on today's SRC Executive ballot, one post has already been filled by acclamation.

Brother Peter Geary S.J. will serve as Secretary of next year's SRC. The Presidency is being contested by Gerry Beech, Arts III, Terry Hill, Comm. III, Joe Polito, Comm. III, and Bob Shaw, Comm. III; there are two candidates for the Vice-Presidency, Roger Aubin, Arts II, and Mike O'Sullivan, Arts II, Allister Byrne, Comm. III, and Russell MacInnis, Comm. II, are running for Treasurer's post.

Another candidate, Wendell Sanford, withdrew Sunday from the race for the position of Secretary. He had been nominated by a petition of the students, but explained after his withdrawal, "I don't want the job". Brother Geary said he was "not worried" about the fact that the Secretariat is an unrewarding job.

Brother Peter is the first Jesuit to occupy a post on the student's Council at St. Mary's. He is also the first Jesuit to attend this University as a student. He deplored the fact that he had come to office by acclamation, claiming that "acclamation is a sin".

The Secretary-Elect claimed that his position in the Order would not in any way affect his stands on various issues which may come up during the coming year. He said "My being a Jesuit has nothing to do with my being a student ... I'll fight for the students' rights." He explained also that his superior in the Jesuit Community holds no position in the administration of this institution and that Father Fischer and he are equal as far as being Jesuits is concerned. "He is only above me in my role as a student and his as President", he remarked.

This is the second year in a row that the post of Secretary has been won by acclamation; incumbent Paul Goldring ran unopposed in 1966. However, it is the first time in recent years that more than two candidates have run for the Presidency. Complications which arose last year in the three-man Vice-Presidential race have been cleared up by the introduction of a Preferential ballot system, in case no candidate should get a clear majority.

Elections for eleven non-executive posts will be held one week from today.

The results of today's election should be posted later tonight.

Chaplain Appointed Counselling Services Expanded

The administration has taken a much-needed step towards providing adequate counselling services for the students by the recent appointment of Father Mulrooney, S.J., as University Chaplain.

He will work with Fr. M. O'Donnell and Mr. L. Smith, who currently provide student counselling.

Father Mulrooney's experiences as a counsellor consists of several years as a parish priest and some time spent as a High School counsellor in his native British Columbia.

He informed the JOURNAL that as Chaplain he will be available at all times to everyone. He plans to have no official office hours. This does not mean, however, that he won't be available. By moving around the university, he will make contact with more people, he said, while he will also get to know the university better.

Mr. Smith, appointed earlier this year as a student counsellor particularly for educational and vocational matters, commented that "All professors have office hours and are anxious to see students. Most professors have few requests for interviews until after examination results are released".

He hoped that once students are aware of the opportunities open to them for discussion of their problems, they will make use of the three counsellors now available.

WHY LENT

By
Fr. P. Kerans
S.J.

It seems academic to speak of Lent when God is dead. Still, if we do a post-mortem, we might discover something.

There is need for a post-mortem, since a nagging question remains: did Christians kill him, or did he simply die of old age? The case against the Christians is strong. They have made the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob into a kind of cosmic glue to hold their universe together. Lacking the inner coherence which would enable them to face reality (including life and death, they have tried to construct an ersatz coherence "out there". The source of this coherence they called God. Then along came Science. (Is he the villain of the piece? The Hero? Or just an extra, trying to do an honest day's work?) Science claimed to have found the source of coherence in the world, and it wasn't God after all. So God became another victim of technological advance. Perhaps, out of a job, he simply starved to death.

But the Christians have a defence. They can argue that this isn't a case of murder; it is only a matter of fraud. For like Monsieur Oscar in "Irma la Douce", God the cosmic string-puller has quietly disappeared. It is only the God Who Never Was who is gone. The Christians have been caught red-handed in their confidence game, but that is hardly murder.

Can the defense prove its case? We would have to produce the real God; and it has been so long, we have forgotten where to look. If it is the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob we are looking for, we had better look in history. Besides, we had better look behind the obvious, we had better look at the fundamental.

Take an example. Right now, while you read this, you have your feet planted on something solid. That is obvious. What is not so obvious, but what is fundamental is that this solidity is the result of electro-magnetic force. The entire universe, in fact, is a dipolar field of force. Take another obvious fact. Each of us, in the day-to-day grind, is trying to learn to live with other people and, with them, to build a meaningful life. What is not so obvious, but what is fundamental, is that we work out our lives within history which can also be termed a field, a bipolar field of meaning. The two poles of history are love and hate, selflessness and selfishness, giving and taking - whichever pair of names you prefer. Self-giving love dwells in light, for it seeks the full truth; self-centered taking dwells in darkness, for it stubbornly clings to its own narrow viewpoint.

Now physicists have not yet determined the location of the poles of magnetic force. But Christians (the real ones) have discovered where the poles of the meaning of history are located. They are both to be found in each person. Each person is capable of good; each person is capable of evil. Still, this bipolar field in each of us is grouped around historical poles. The negative pole, pulling us towards self-centered taking, is the historical event we call the sin of Adam, "the man," whether that means the first of us or all of us. The positive pole, pulling us towards self-giving love, is the historical event called the Passover of Christ.

Christ is the New Adam, the new man who has set up the historical counterpole to our self-seeking. He was among us, but he "passed over" to his Father. That is, he was beaten, brought before a kangaroo court, and crucified: He experienced the pain, the misunderstanding and the loneliness which are the historical working-out of the sin of "the man". Why is this important? In the very experience of the situation which arises from sin, he transformed it into an act of self-giving love.

What is Lent? It is a time to find the God we have lost, the God whose death has brought us life. It is time to learn that if we want to live we must be willing to die; that if we want to find fulfillment, we must stop being preoccupied with ourselves and become interested in others. Lent is a time to find out what love is. God is love.

AID TO DRAFT DODGERS - IS IT JUSTIFIABLE?

BY JAMES J. QUINN, Assoc. Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: The University of Waterloo Students' Council became the first student government in Canada to state, as endorsed policy, opposition to the United States draft.

The draft-resistance program planned by the University of Waterloo is intended to help those Americans "acting out of moral principles". To help these "immigrants" (sic) adjust to Canadian life, legal information, employment opportunities and other backgrounding that may be necessary will be made available to them.

The underlying trend of thought that has motivated this movement is that the war in Viet Nam is illegal and thus to force persons to fight in this "bloody persecution" is not only unjustifiable but in the eyes of those persons a criminal offence of the worst type. For these persons, Lyndon Baines Johnson is an arch-criminal if not an arch-demon and any party connected with his military cabinet are considered to be no less diabolical.

What the persons involved with the draft-resistance fail to see or perhaps conveniently ignore is the position of responsibility of one who lives in a country that has conscription. Regardless of the citizen's personal attitude towards the policies of his country, to act in any manner that advocates rebellion against the government of that country, (which in effect is what draft-resistance does do) is without doubt - TREASON. It would be very curious to observe these Canadians who support draft-resistance, whether Royalists or not, if an American student government were to proclaim that Canadian students had license to flee from the Dominion of Canada that was "being suppressed by the domination of a foreign Queen".

Another point that one must seriously question is the use of the term "immigrants" to describe persons who enter Canada under false pretenses in an attempt to denounce the ir country. It is highly questionable if the government of Canada would grant to recognized criminals, which is exactly what draft dodgers are in light of the fact that it does constitute a federal offense, the legal status of immigrant. Further, a question that naturally would follow from any such granting of legal status to draft dodgers would be: would the government of Canada, not exactly well known in recent years for being very decisive when it has been faced with the problem of having to choose sides, take a stand that smacks of anti-U.S. internal policy.

It would be interesting to find out if these "responsible" representatives of university student government realize that since the act of draft dodging is considered to be criminal, their program is likewise criminal as it constitutes aiding and abetting. This then is more serious than just advocating civil disobedience, it is the preaching of sedition.

The reason that can be forwarded for the involvement of Canadian university student governments is comparatively easy to understand. It does not take a fantastic amount of intelligence to realize that the draft can stand in the way of a person's completing his education or at least add a definite element of uncertainty to any plans that he may care to make about his future. Certainly the element of tension and fear that is placed on the student waiting to be classified is not conducive for the formation of an atmosphere of study.

On the other side of the coin, it would be unfair to look at this question without considering those parties who have lifted the dark veil and cause the problem to be a topic of consideration. Without the protests of the American students, the discussions of Canadian students would be meaningless. But as much as the American students may protest the unfairness of the draft, it is the law of their country. As a citizen, one cannot choose to reap only the privileges and ignore the responsibilities. In this manner the responsibility of defending one's country by the use of arms is not a burden but part and parcel of claiming citizenship of the United States.

To have this policy of conscription understood and intelligently discussed by Canadian student officials would in all truth require that they be subjected to the same test of their nationalism and love of country. It is very unfortunate that these leaders have not stemmed their energies more in the direction of developing a Canadian Student image of nationalistic involvement in the affairs of the student-government relationship in Canada.

APOLOGIA...

BY J.P. GOLDRING - Editor-In-Chief

This is most probably the last issue of the JOURNAL under the present Editor, so it might be in order to sum up what we have done since last March.

The JOURNAL is not a great newspaper. By normal Canadian University Press standards, it is not even a particularly good newspaper. But for the first time in 32 years, the JOURNAL was an effectively-run organization, and more, important, appeared regularly and frequently. In the course of a massive re-organization, building from the ground up, it managed to keep up to date on campus news while maintaining a lively - sometimes inflammatory - string of editorial comment.

In so doing, we stepped on a few toes. It is impossible to take a stand on any issue (even Motherhood) without offending someone. But for our few genuine mistakes we apologize, although these, too, serve a purpose. The mistakes of this year have provided the "Experience" which will help the JOURNAL continue in its role as an effective campus organ during the coming years.

The JOURNAL has made every effort to reflect an accurate picture of SMU which is both informative and entertaining to our readers, the student body itself.

When a newspaper comes into conflict with its own student body, the fault lies to a large extent with the newspaper. We admit this readily. But to a great degree the JOURNAL has been operating this year without precedents, without having any real way of knowing what exactly the mass of the student body wants from its paper. Yet with one blatant exception, we feel we have given the students what they wanted, as much as we were able with our new staff and limited budget. Ultimately, though, if the newspaper is to be better appreciated, the students will have to make their opinions felt through letters to the Editor, or any form of comment. We appreciate the efforts of those who have offered any of this sort of comment or criticism over the past year, but if we are to know what the attitude of the general student body is, the silent 90% must speak up.

The SRC poses a more serious problem, a problem which is complicated by the fact that Council's opposition has not yet come to a head. Our situation has been both confused and aided by the fact that, once again, there is no precedent and no written rule to either guide or protect us.

The most dangerous aspect of Council's position is that it has claimed a power over the JOURNAL which, if it were real, would threaten the whole meaning of the paper. This is the power of control over the paper's policy and operations which Council has claimed and may soon attempt to exercise. SRC's have no knowledge or experience qualifying them to dictate anything with regard to the paper, and their position vis-a-vis the administration places them in a situation where the best interests of the student body would be served by Council's having no direct bearing on the work of the paper. Such a power may also restrict the JOURNAL's role of commenting on the activities of student government.

If the Council acts in accordance with the interests of the students and shows enough wisdom to recognize that the JOURNAL should be permitted to continue in spite of three or four errors due to "growing pains", then the JOURNAL has a bright future. If not, it will be an admission to ourselves and to the rest of Canada that our "student leaders" are not mature enough to accept what is the norm throughout the country, and will quickly destroy the JOURNAL as it has been known this year.

THE DOMINO THEORY TRUTH OR MYTH?

BY JERRY VINK

Since the beginning of the troubles in South Viet Nam a great deal has been said about the Domino theory. Many men, notably U Thant, have declared that this whole concept is invalid and false.

The whole of the American foreign policy aimed at this embattled country is based on the Domino Theory. Unfortunately many Canadians and perhaps many Americans, are ignorant of the very meaning of the word. In order to understand the theory one must examine each neighbouring country in detail. Due to limited space only the most superficial fact can be mentioned in this article.

First, we must suppose that the Americans and other allies have pulled out their troops out of the whole of South-East Asia. This would mean that the South Vietnamese regime of Air Marshall Ky would soon fall and be replaced by a united but communist orientated state.

CAMBODIA, which borders onto South Vietnam, has in the past allowed Viet Cong (Communist) troops on her soil. Officially her foreign policy is neutral, though in reality she is one of Red China's closest friends. With a strongly entrenched Communist government on her border, Prince Sihanouk would be forced to completely join the communist camp.

LAOS, shares a common border with Red China, Vietnam and Cambodia. Already this nation is split by three factions: Right wing, Neutralist, and left wing. A neutralist government is in power largely because of right wing support. If its neighbours should become communist it would seem only logical that Laos would do the same thing.

THAILAND, probably one of the stablest nations in southeast Asia, has a number of Vietnamese refugees in the Northeastern Provinces. These, together with former communist terrorists from Malaysia in the south, form a fifth column which could be used to set the country aflame. Especially in some remote rural areas, communist agents encourage resentment against the government in Bangkok. This, if the communists are not occupied in Vietnam, they could easily increase their influence in Thailand.

BURMA, is a leftist neutralist nation, which is plagued by small bands of communist terrorists. This problem, together with a falling economy and much poverty, could again mean another nation lost to the communists.

MALAYASIA has a pro-western government. During the 1950's this nation (then called Malaya) was bled by a terrorist campaign conducted by the communists much the same as the present Vietnamese conflict. Those elements who once supported the rebels could take heart if they saw their neighbours join the communist camp. Again a nation would be lost to the West.

THE PHILIPPINES, a large group of islands off the Southeast Asian coast, is struggling to raise the standard of living amongst its people. The climb is hard and slow but not unsuccessful. Unfortunately, those people are again trying to destroy the gains made by the Philippine government.

INDONESIA, one of the largest nations in the Far East, has a long history of communist influence. At present due to the hard work of the army and the more moderate elements in Indonesia the communist flow has been stemmed. If she would ever become surrounded by communist nations it is certain that this country would again go into the Red Chinese orbit.

This list of nations could go on and include Pakistan, India, Japan, South Korea, and Formosa. Eventually New Zealand and Australia would be threatened. Granted, this process will not happen overnight but it will happen in the future if the allies refuse to make a stand.

Still many people refuse to accept the Domino theory. Communism, they say, is not all that bad and all the people should have the right to be whatever they want. The allies have no

Caveat Lector

By Richard C. Morrison

Now that incorporation is about to become formally instituted, some of the students are still wondering what it is all about.

Now, the individual student is no longer just a member of a student body, he is a member of a corporation known as the Saint Mary's University Students' Association incorporated. Therefore, in his dealings with the business world in such things as accommodation, people will be less inclined to try and discriminate against him or charge exorbitant rates, because he has a corporation backing him. Thus, in the annual scramble for rooms for those who don't want to get into residence, or can't get in, the council will be in a much better position to have accommodation available through its housing service.

The SRC has not taken on the role of a corporation board of directors. In the name of the students, they can buy, sell, and hold property, and invest money for the purposes of the association.

The Council can erect, maintain or improve a building or buildings for the association.

Under the new system, no individual, shall be liable in his capacity as an individual, for the debts or the liabilities of the Association.

As a corporation, the students stand as a body in the eyes of the law, as an independent "legal person", and has all the rights, privileges, and responsibilities of such a legally capable person.

This means, that the student have been removed from the position of being under the protective wing of the Administration. They can now carry out all their dealings with the business world in their own right, without someone looking over their shoulders all the time, to make sure it's being done right.

Perhaps the most important part of this, is that it provides for permanency in the student government, for, though the council members may change from year to year, the Association will remain as the same body, and whatever contracts are perpetrated by one council, they will be just as binding on the councils that will follow.

One thing that incorporation is going to do for Saint Mary's, is force the students and their leaders to become more responsible, as they will now stand or fall on what they themselves do, and will not be able to ask the administration to get them out of any nasty situations in which they may land themselves.

right to be in South Vietnam and the war there is cruel and unjust, these are the oft-repeated cries of the Communist pawns.

Are they forgetting Tibet? In that nation people are dying daily to overthrow the communist domination. In Thailand and Vietnam men are killed if they refuse to help the communists. Must we close our eyes to the obvious and wait until the communist threat reaches our shores. It is much better that man make a stand now and destroy those forces which are trying to overturn the world.

CHINA-FRIEND OR FOE?

By Mike Smith

Lately, a great deal of attention has been focused on the problem of the superpower. Until recently there were only two superpowers, but China has almost become one in recent years. The great powers are understandably worried about a possible change in the balance of power. However, the sudden rise of China would be of movement if it were not for her warlike proclivities.

The United States has, for some years, been trying to curtail the activities of China. Even the USSR has become worried. The small countries near her have also found themselves insensibly orienting their foreign relations around her. Some of them have gone to the extreme of alliances with China although most have formed connections with some of the other powers.

The belligerence of China has as yet been manifested only by threats and vituperation. She has offered to aid the Vietnamese in their struggle, but their offer has been refused because of the possibility of further escalating the war.

The only actual shots fired by the Chinese have been those fired at the rebels across the Formosa Straits. This quickly ended when the United States began patrolling the Straits. Thus the only evidence of China's belligerence has been her loud talking. However, it must be presumed that where there is smoke there is fire. The rest of the world cannot allow the government of Chiang-Kia-Chek to flourish unchecked.

Huskies Gain Sweet Revenge Beat Tigers 70-58

Last Saturday afternoon, the Huskies kept their MIBL title hopes alive before a jam packed SMU gym.

The game started slowly with both teams being very cautious. As a result, the first basket was not scored until almost 1 1/2 minutes had elapsed. At this point the Tigers took a 4-0 lead, but it was short lived. Jim Daniels scored six points and the Huskies led 6-5. This lead was increased to as much as ten points, but the Tigers fought back and at the half they had narrowed the score to 35-31.

In the second half, Captain Rick Dougherty started the ball rolling again as he potted two quick baskets. The Huskies never looked back, although the Tigers did manage to tie the score briefly in the third quarter.

For the Huskies, Jim Daniels continued his league leading pace as he scored a game high of 28 points. Jim also did a very effective job of covering George Hughes who is usually the spark of the Tigers offense. Hughes scored 13 points, but he was restricted to only two field goals.

Other Huskie Marksmen were Rick Dougherty with 18 points and numerous assists for his pinpoint passing. Al Brown and Clem Maynard had 9 points each along with 23 rebounds as they showed Al Yarr just how much they have learned for a couple of freshmen, Joe O'Reilly who has been averaging over 20 points a game, scored only 6 points, but he was a straddout defensively and as a playmaker. "Cool" Joe was particularly effective against pesky little Ed Dumford as he harassed the Dal guard and forced him to make mistakes.

For the close to nine hundred fans, the highlight of the game was the way the Huskies froze the ball for a most ninety seconds in the closing minutes.

STUDENT REPORTER FIRED FROM EXPO

MONTREAL (CUP) - A student newspaperman who exposed discriminatory practices in hiring executive staff of the Expo youth pavillion has been fired from Expo 67's youth advisory council.

Harvey Oberfield, arts 3 and a reporter at The Georgian, student paper at St. George Williams University, was approached last year by the committee and offered the post of public information officer. He had previously written an article rallying support for the youth pavillion. But when 13 or 14 executive staff members appointed turned out to be French-Canadian, the reporter got off the Expo bandwagon.

He then wrote a letter to a Montreal newspaper condemning this action as discriminatory, urging that action be taken to rectify further paid appointments.

The matter was raised in the House of Commons, when Robert Coates (PC-Cumberland) questioned Trade Minister Robert Winters as to the validity of statements made in his letter.

The minister replied he would look into the matter, and later in the week, reported to the Commons that indeed 13 of the appointees were French-Canadian.

But he maintained no discrimination was involved. Meanwhile, Oberfield received a letter from the youth advisory committee informing him he had been sacked by a unanimous vote of the advisory committee.

MEMORIAL GIRL MISS CANADIAN UNIVERSITY

WATERLOO (CUP) - A second year biology student from Memorial University has been named Miss Canadian University at Waterloo-Lutheran University.

Linda Inkpen was crowned Friday after a full day of interviews with five judges, who selected her ahead of 19 other campus beauties.

The queen pageant is a highlight of WLU's annual winter carnival weekend there.

SIMON FRASER REJOINS CUS

BURNABY (CUP) - Simon Fraser University, which withdrew from the Canadian Union of Students early in December, has been readmitted to CUS pending a student referendum on its membership in the national union.

CUS Friday (Jan. 27) granted reinstatement to Simon Fraser, immediately after receiving a letter from SFU council president Stan Wong.

The letter reported council had voted to rejoin CUS, and allow students to vote Feb. 24 on whether they wish to remain in the organization.

A CUS spokesman said in Ottawa it is significant that SFU is approaching the membership question "from a position of membership", and pointed out the students there were 90 per cent in favor of membership in CUS when they voted in a similar referendum a year ago.

CUS CHIEF REACTS TO MCGILL SITUATION

MONTREAL (CUP) - CUS president Doug Ward said here last week that he supports Union General Des Etudiants Quebec and hopes all Quebec students become members of that organization.

"What I am afraid of is that McGill University will rejoin UGEO or stay in CUS and not do a bloody thing in either one of them", he said during a panel discussion here.

He said he is disturbed at what he called McGill's executive's dogmatic refusal to commit themselves on political issues.

"Even student's councils that concern themselves only with year-books and dances are making political decisions", said Ward. "They're allocating money and money is power."

"It doesn't look like anyone at McGill is interested in the significant issues that affect students," Ward contended.

PHANTOM PHONER SWINDLES STUDENTS

TORONTO (CUP) - Two University of Toronto students have been defrauded of $200, by an unknown person or persons posing as a representative of their college or faculty offices, U of T police chief said last week.

An unidentified person telephoned each student, saying he was calling from his faculty dean's office, Chief J.D. West said.

The caller asked the students on information concerning his bank account saying that he needed the information to clarify the students records or for the student to obtain a loan, Mr. West said.

The caller then went to the student's bank and made a withdrawal on his account.

Toronto Metro Police are still pressing the investigation for the unidentified caller.

MCMASTER FILM "BLACK ZERO" BANNED

HAMILTON (CUP) - McMaster University Film Board president Peter Rowe was axed and a controversial student movie banned at a six-hour student council meeting.

The film, Black Zero, directed by former McMaster student John Hofess received somewhat notorious recognition when the Toronto Morality Squad demanded to see the film while it was at a Toronto processing laboratory two weeks ago.

The Morality Squad said that it might lay charges against the film's maker on the grounds that an eight-minute segment showing a partially draped woman in bed with two men was obscene.

However, no further action was taken until the council met to discuss the McMaster Film Board and its much publicized production.

The film had incurred a debt of $1,000 although the MFB's total budget for the year was less than $300, most of which was still in the bank.

Rowe, however, was not fired for allowing Hofess to exceed the budget, for but violating a council by-law which prohibits non-students from having signing authority in any student organization.

Council has forbidden that Black Zero be shown until all debts are paid; Daryl Duke, producer of CBC's Sunday, has been forced to cancel plans for showing the film on his program.

DAL'S WHITE OUT FOR THE SEASON

Kevin White, starry centerman for the league-leading Dalhousie Tigers, is out of action for the rest of the season. In Dal's 70-52 loss to the St. Mary's Huskies last weekend, White suffered bruised ankle ligaments with less than two minutes remaining in the game.

White, a consistent scorer and rebounder, is currently in tenth place in total league scoring with an 18.5 average. The accident cuts his point production for the year at 148 in eight games.

The leg is in a cast and coach Al Yarr said last night that White will be out for at least six weeks. The intercollegiate schedule finishes the last weekend in February.

On the Ice...

With Ed. LaPierre

There were many events in our 1967 Winter Carnival - one which few students know about was the victory of an all-star team picked from our intramural "A" league over Nova Scotia Technical College. The team, put together February 2, consisted of the uncles of next year's varsity team. They dumped Tec 11-3 in a game characterized by a scrambling type of play. The highlight of the game was the smooth puck-handling of Mike Hornby, Bob Woods, and Ozzie Burke, who, playing on the same line, were extremely effective on the ice at all times.

"A" LEAGUE
The Juniors continued their winning ways, handing the Frosh B Team an 18-1 dumping in last week's "A" league action. Bill Barton collected six goals and assisted on three others as he moved the puck with authority in his team's winning course.

The return of Mike Hornby was a factor in the Juniors' win, as he controlled the puck and set up plays all through the game. The score would indicate that the frosh "B" team is out of place in this league, but the fact is more that the Juniors have a very potent team both offensively and defensively. They seem to have a championship team, with Bob Woods and Ozzie Burke and free-wheeling Murrant, who is gradually returning to his old form.

The Frosh A Team makes it look as if they are going to make their presence felt before the season is over. They defeat the sophs in what was the upset of the week in a well played contest. Leading the Frosh to their second victory was captain Rick Fraughton with three goals and one assist. Tom Grantham collected two goals and Benoit one to round out the scoring. Merchant with two goals and Boswick and Bain with one each were the goal getters for the sophomores. In the "B" league, the Seniors, led by the policing of Red O'Brien and Paul Puma, rattled the frosh "C" team 5-3. O'Brien and Puma each collected one goal and an assist.

Al Brown Wins Class of '67 Trophy

This year, for the first time, the Senior Class has awarded a trophy to the Athletic Department. The Class of '67 Trophy for the Most Valuable Player in the Dal-St. Mary's series was awarded to Al Brown, the 6'6" rookie from Linden, N.J.

Al has been an outstanding rebounder all year and recently he has come into his own as a shooter. He could become one of the team's high scorers.
