You push and I'll pelt
They so smote the garden bed
That the flowers actually knelt
And lay lodged—though not dead
I know how the flowers felt."*

NEW ANTHROPOLOGY LABS FOR SAINT MARY'S

There is one school of thought which holds that if you know where you've been, you'll have a better idea of where you're going and just how to get there.

A somewhat simplistic philosophy perhaps and one that is hardly etched on stone tablets but it does tend to focus on the general intent behind the study of anthropology. On October 5, Saint Mary's University will have officially enhanced its ability to follow through on that general tenet with the opening of the new anthropology laboratories—probably the best and only ones of their kind in the Maritimes.

Anthropology Department Chairman Dr. James R. Jaquith says, "Actually, there are five labs—physical anthropology, archaeology, ethnology, communications and darkroom facilities. For about two years now we have had archaeology and physical anthropology capabilities. Adding communications, darkroom and ethnological facilities has increased our ability to provide the best instruction possible."

Of course, to most laymen the term "laboratory" conjures up visions of controlled chemical or physical reactions being induced in a maze of esoteric equipment. What many may not realize is that as complex as these reactions may be, they often pale beside the complexity of Man's physical and social development—so the term "laboratory" in this context is decidedly apt. The controls, however, are largely within the investigative process because . . . well, man's development, while subject to a variety of influences, has also been prey to and benefited from Lawrence's "irrational tenth".

To Dr. Jaquith's way of thinking, that same "irrational tenth"—that inspirational flash—has its own place in anthropological studies. He says the new labs add immeasurably to the learning process because they let students get the feel of things.

"It's one thing to sit around in the classroom and to lecture about anthropology in a kind of abstract way . . . but letting students into a lab situation where they can touch and analyze anthropological materials is another. It makes the subject a great deal more real to them."

Of course, it also exposes them to an understanding of some of the elements which mold their own lives. The communications division, for instance, goes beyond—far beyond—the basics of how and why men transfer ideas. It also investigates the overt and more subtle meanings behind, say, television advertising and, through videotape feedback, also allows students (and instructors) to study their own personal methods of physical presentation and oral communication.

Equally communicative to the eye-in-training are the archaeological artifacts which, although ravaged by time, can spell out a fairly detailed story of societies which have faded even from memory. And, of course, casts of man's prehistoric skeletal remains along with examples of his more recent development have their own story to tell.

The Anthropology Department offers two programs. "Simply put," Dr. Jaquith says, "we conduct a straight Bachelor of Arts program which a student can enter on his or her first day in university. On top of that we have an Honors Bachelor program."

Simply put perhaps, but not necessarily simply achieved. Anthropology is, after all, an exceedingly complex subject encompassing a wide variety of disciplines—and it's not all lecture rooms and lab work.

Students do get to go on extensive field trips because, as Dr. Jaquith points out, "This region does contain a wealth of archaeologically interesting and anthropologically productive sites."

There are, of course, some facilities which the new Saint Mary's labs cannot provide—and for good reason. Sophisticated dating equipment, for instance. Carbon 14 dating and pollen analysis is an important function of anthropological and archaeological studies—but it is prohibitively expensive when one considers the equipment involved.

However, the lab does have access to these processes through other institutions—most notably in Ottawa—so students here can make use of what TV commercials often acclaim as space age technology.

One question the would-be anthropologist eventually has to face is: "This is all very well, but of what immediate practical use is anthropology?"

Often, the answer is not easily given but there are some startling examples which the more commercially minded might keep in mind.

Dr. Jacquith says, "I know of one anthropologist whose specialty is ethnology and who works solely in advertising. As certain ethnic groups develop their purchasing power he seeks out these new markets and the best way to introduce established or new products to them."

He also notes that anthropologists are active in space exploration programs and apply their skills in a variety of ways which relate to man's physical and psychological needs in a foreign and hostile environment. Perhaps the most simple and obvious example would be the matter of seat design for space vehicles.

He admits that the private sector has hardly been a wide open field for anthropology graduates and that governments and government-backed research institutions have been the primary job-focus of graduating anthropologists. That tradition, he says, is beginning to crumble, however.

Do the new labs indicate an increased interest in the subject? Is it perhaps a guidepost to an expanding anthropological field, or is it a sign that student interest in anthropology is growing?

The questions are unfair, of course, because they imply that the respondent has to come up with a final and definitive response to the chicken-or-the-egg type of query.

But they can be answered.

The new labs are there because they're needed. The field of anthropological studies is opening up in a variety of ways; some of them eminently practical in a commercial sense, some of them vitally important in the traditional sense—who knows?—some of them so esoteric that we haven't yet perceived their potential for beneficial application.

And, of course, if facilities like Saint Mary's new anthropology labs were not to come into being we may never perceive them.

Perhaps out of the one hundred or so students the new lab is able to handle one of them will someday find his or her own "irrational tenth" in the near future.

That alone will make it worth it.

Understanding China

Faculty Member Has Television Series

Dr. Mary Sun, Associate Professor of History at Saint Mary's University, has written, organized and performed in a television series dealing with the history of China—the transformation of a despotic, Imperial, loosely integrated country into a working-class proletarian government. China's progress has been more rapid in the years since the Communists came to power than the previous 30 centuries and these lectures will assist Canadians in a better understanding of contemporary Chinese planning and concerns.

The series, produced here in Halifax, will be seen on CJCH television "University of the Air", starting October 16 with the final program being seen on November 13. The time is 6:00 a.m. It's a weekly program.

Saint Mary's/Dalhousie Co-Host National Physics Conference

by Michael Swift

The Canadian Undergraduate Physics Association (C.U.P.A.) will be holding its National Conference in Halifax for the first time in its fourteen-year history. The event, which commences on October 12, is to be co-hosted by Dalhousie and Saint Mary's Universities. C.U.P.A. is a registered non-profit organization which is funded entirely by the donations of governments and physics-related institutions and industries, and by the fund raising efforts of the undergraduate students hosting the Conference. This year's Conference is being run on a budget of approximately $20,000.

The four-day Conference features student papers, guest lecturers and tours of physics facilities in the area. The guest lecturers for this year's Conference include Dr. W.J. Archibald, Dr. Chris Garrett and Dr. B.E. Paton, all from Dalhousie University; Dr. Alain Caille from Université de Sherbrooke, Dr. David DuPuy from Saint Mary's University, Dr. John King from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (M.I.T.), Dr. W.P. Long from Saint Mary's University and Dr. Hans Bethe, Nobel Laureate from Cornell University. The Conference organizers are pleased to hold the Conference concurrently with the E.W. Guptill Memorial Physics Lecture. This public lecture will feature Dr. Freeman Dyson from the Princeton Institute for Advanced Study and is to be held on October 12, at Dalhousie University in the McInnis Room, starting at 8:00 p.m.

The long list of distinguished physicists speaking at the Conference will attract undergraduate students from as far away as the University of British Columbia. In addition to the lectures and laboratory tours, social events have been planned for the attending delegates.

The Chairman of this year's Conference, John Robinson, anticipates that all physics students attending universities in the Atlantic Provinces will want to take advantage of this Conference, it being the largest event of its kind ever to come "down east". Registration forms and information packages may be obtained at the Physics Departments of Dalhousie and Saint Mary's Universities. Students who are majoring in Physics or are enrolled in any Physics classes are encouraged to submit a completed registration form along with the $22.00 fee as soon as possible.

The C.U.P.A. gratefully acknowledges the financial support provided by Dalhousie and Saint Mary's Universities, the Provincial Government and by physics-related industries.

[Michael Swift is an Honours Physics student.]

CBC Radio Announces Literary Competition With Cash Prizes And Broadcast of Winners

CBC Radio is inaugurating a literary competition to be judged by some of Canada's leading writers including Alice Munro, P.K. Page and Heather Robertson. There will be prizes for original literary works by Canadian writers in three categories: a short story of 15-30 minutes in length; a long poem or suite of connected poems of 15-30 minutes; and a memoir or autobiographical sketch of 15-30 minutes. The submission deadline is January 5, 1979.

In each category, the first prize will be $2,500; second prize will be $2,000; and the third prize, $1,500. These prizes constitute a licence to perform the work once on all of the CBC's owned and affiliated radio stations. The prize-winning scripts will be broadcast in 1979.

Each category will have three judges, two from outside the CBC and one staff person.

In the short category, the judges are: Joyce Marshall, Alice Munro and Howard Engel. Joyce Marshall is the author of two novels as well as a collection of short stories, A Private Place. Her translation of Enchanted Summer by Gabrielle Roy won the Canada Council Translation Prize for 1976. Alice Munro has published two collections of short stories, Dance of the Happy Shades (winner of the Governor General's Award for fiction) and Something I've Been Meaning to Tell You, and a novel, Lives of Girls and Women. A third book of stories, Who Do You Think You Are, will be published this fall. This year Alice Munro became the first Canadian writer to win the Canada-Australia Literary Prize. Howard Engel is executive producer of literary programs, editing the weekly CBC Radio literary series, "Anthology", and has published poetry, fiction and reviews.

Judges in the poetry category are P.K. Page, Eldon Grier and Don Mowatt. P.K. Page has published several collections of poetry including The Metal and the Flower (winner of Governor General's Award). Eldon Grier has published eight collections of poetry; The Assassination of Color is to be published this year. Don Mowatt, executive producer of Radio Features and Humanities in Vancouver, has produced work by many west coast writers for "Anthology". In 1977 he won an ACTRA award for the best radio production, "The Assassination of Christopher Marlowe".

Judges in the memoir or autobiography category are Heather Robertson, John Robert Colombo and John Douglas. Winnipeg-born Heather Robertson has published four books: Reservations Are for Indians, Grass Roots, Salt of the Earth, and A Terrible Beauty, The Art of Canada at War. She now lives in Toronto and is president of the Periodical Writers' Association of Canada.

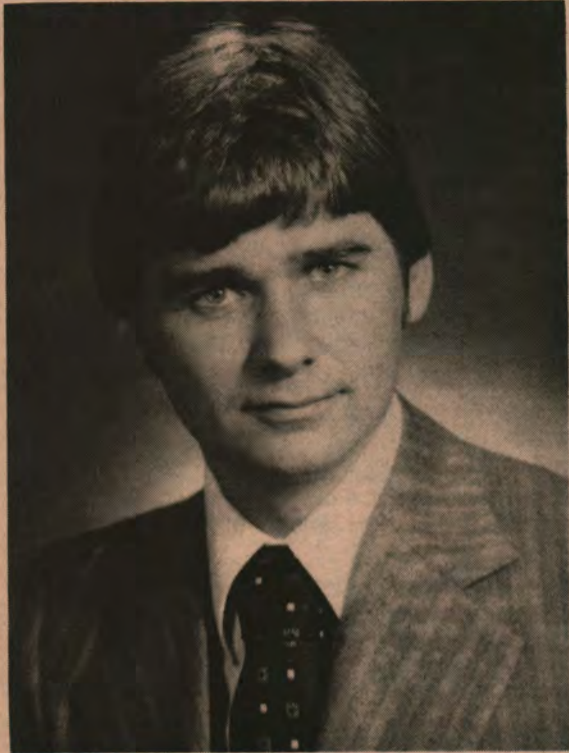

John Robert Colombo is nationally known as the author of Colombo's Canadian References, and Colombo's Canadian Quotations, and this fall will publish The Poets of Canada, and Colombo's Book of Canada, a primer of basic Canadiana consisting of unusual and out-of-the-way selections of poetry, prose and drama. John Douglas is an executive producer of drama in the CBC Radio Drama and Literature department. He has been dramaturge with the Neptune Theatre, Halifax and with the St. Lawrence Centre in Toronto.

A prize may not be awarded if, in the opinion of the judges, it is not warranted. Members of CBC staff and competition judges are not eligible to submit manuscripts.

Manuscripts must be written in English, typed, double-spaced and must include the author's name and address. Submissions will be returned but it will not be possible to offer editorial comments about them.

Submissions should be sent to Robert Weaver, executive producer, literary projects, Radio Drama and Literature, CBC, Box 500, Station A, Toronto, M5W 1E6 postmarked no later than January 5, 1979.

Williams Professor of History and Political Science at Harvard University, on CHINA AFTER MAO: A NEW AGE?

Professor Schwartz will discuss the new directions China appears to be taking after the death of Chairman Mao. Policy decisions economic development and foreign relations have been announced in recent months by the new leadership—are these fundamental changes ushering in a new age for China?

Time: 8 p.m.

Place: Theatre B, Burke Education Centre

The public is invited.

"Tech-Press"

The Nova Scotia Technical College in Halifax has established a publishing unit under the Companies Act to be known as Tech-Press.

The first book published by Tech-Press, entitled
The Democratization of Canadian Architecture
by Anthony Jackson of Halifax, is now on sale at Classic Bookshops.

This first publication of Tech-Press is one of a series of publications in the "Library of Canadian Architecture". The second book in this series, jointly authored by Larry Richards and Anthony Jackson, is expected to be published in the fall.
The book will contain pictures, descriptions and comments on the best architect-owned houses in Canada and will be entitled The Canadian House.

The Democratization of Canadian Architecture
deals with aspects of modern architecture in Canada and the author explores 16 different ways that architects are using to get closer to people's taste. The book is illustrated with photographs of 28 buildings across the country from Vancouver Island to Prince Edward Island including local architecture.

Professor Anthony Jackson, professor in the Faculty of Architecture at Tech, has been appointed as editor of Tech-Press for a five-year period beginning January 1978.

Directors of the company include J. Clair Callaghan, Anthony Jackson, Allan F. Duffus, Larry W. Richards, and Leonard A. Kitz.

Tech-Press is the only press solely devoted to publications on architecture in Canada. Its publications will appear twice yearly in the spring and fall, and will provide a continuing collection of architectural topics introduced by notable authors.

News From International Education Centre

The 50th Anniversary International Symposium of the Coady International Institute, St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, will be held October 5-8, 1978. The focus of the symposium will be human development.

Attending from Saint Mary's University will be:
Dr. Mary Sun, Associate Professor of History and Chairman of the Committee on Asian Studies; Dr. T.J. Musial, Dean of Arts and Chairman of the Board of the International Education Centre; Dr.
B. Pachai, Director of the International Education Centre and Dr. Pachai's assistant, Jean Mitchell.

—The Association of Teachers in Nova Scotia will hold its annual conference at Saint Mary's University October 27-28. Dr. Bridglal Pachai will address the conference on October 28. His address will focus on Multiculturalism in Education.

—The Atlantic Provinces Hadassah-WIZO organization of Canada held a conference in New Brunswick September 10-11. Dr. Musial and Dr.
Pachai attended the conference and both addressed the plenary session September 11.

—The International Education Centre has an international program which provides schools with the services of resource persons who are knowledgeable about different countries in the World. The emphasis in this program is on Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Caribbean. Teachers are also invited to bring their classes to the Centre for presentations and discussion.
Teachers may get in touch with the Director, Dr.
B. Pachai, or his assistant, Jean Mitchell, at 422-7361, local 254 or 262.

International Student Association

For the first time at Saint Mary's University there is a student organization which caters to the special needs of students from outside Canada.
This organization is the International Student Association and it operates administratively through the International Education Centre, Saint Mary's University.

It is a commonplace fact that students from outside Canada need help and guidance in a multitude of personal, social and academic matters which crop up from time to time. Faculty who have themselves often been on foreign soil, especially as students, will readily appreciate the tremendous value in a personal counselling relationship between faculty and students. This arrangement will give students access to a faculty member who will be both friend and mentor.

Would you be interested in being a personal counsellor to foreign students? There is no hard and fast rule which governs the arrangement. It simply brings together a faculty member who is in a position to help out one or more students who are in need of friendship, advice and guidance. In short, the PERSONAL COUNSELLOR arrangement could well provide students with a 'home away from home' and a friend in need. The experiment is worth a trial.

Your support and participation are earnestly sought. Please call the International Education Centre, 422-7361 local 254 or 262.

Tennis?

Again this year the Burnside Tennis Club is offering a Corporate Membership to interested people at Saint Mary's University.

This year's corporate fee will be ninety dollars for men, and seventy dollars for women; this represents a saving of forty-five dollars for men and twenty dollars for women on the regular membership.

Each person has full tennis and squash membership privileges with the exception of in-house charging. This corporate membership entitles you to the same privileges as the regular membership.

In order to be eligible for this "corporate" rate, there has to be a minimum of ten people at the University who are interested in becoming members.

If you are interested please call Ronald Lewis in the Library, Admin. Local 182.

New President For The Mount

Dr. E. Margaret Fulton

The woman who was installed as the sixth president of Mount Saint Vincent University on September 30 seems at first glance an unlikely choice to head an institution founded by the Sisters of Charity: an outspoken feminist, Dr. E. Margaret Fulton is not even a member of the Roman Catholic Church. Beneath this surface impression, however, there are far more similarities than might be first supposed.

Dr. Fulton is a woman whose strong Christian faith reflects the same ideals of service and sacrifice to which the Sisters of Charity have dedicated themselves from the founding of the Mount in 1873 to the present day.

The common purpose of the Mount and its new President extends to their view of women in society. The Mount was opened to further the education of women at a time when only young men went to university and were trained for important work in the world. The Sisters saw that teaching, nursing, home economics and secretarial science were viable professional areas for women and focused on these and on a sound liberal arts curriculum.

Dr. Fulton's own life has been one of a woman committed to developing as fully as possible her own potential. She has often found herself in situations where her ambitions and accomplishments were questioned. University all-male selection committees, she points out, just won't "... provide an opportunity or take a chance on a mature woman who has not a long string of publications or who has not completed her Ph.D. by the time she is 25."

As a result of not getting the kind of academic posts she desired, Dr. Fulton has put much of her energy into encouraging young women to pursue their interests and to train in non-traditional careers regardless of the obstacles. As Dean of Women at the University of British Columbia prior to her arrival in Halifax, she was active in developing ways to facilitate the entry of women into the field of engineering.

"The social obstacles and subtle social pressure of male opinion have kept women out of many sophisticated professional areas," said Dr. Fulton. She also helped organize the Academic Women's Association of U.B.C., and was sympathetic with the goals of the predominantly female secretarial staff who organized themselves into a collective bargaining unit.

"Women's work has been traditionally undervalued by society," Dr. Fulton contends, "and that applies to women working both domestically within the family structure, and working outside the home."

In expressing her concerns for women in general, the President of Mount Saint Vincent University probably will not so much bring change to the Institution as she will in reinforcement of the original purpose. Only the avenues may differ; the route is much the same: dedication to the needs, interests and education of women today.

Don't Miss The Sale

The Faculty Women's Association of Saint Mary's University will hold a Sale on Wednesday, November 8, starting at 9:30 a.m., in the Colonnade area of the Academic Complex (Loyola Building).

Proceeds from the sale will go to the Fund which the Association has set up in order to endow a scholarship for students attending Saint Mary's.

There will be a delicious array of baked goods (including candy), white elephants, books, plants, and in particular, handcrafted items. These handmade items include soft toys, macramé plant holders, household items, purses, coasters, covered coat hangers, and many more. The members of the Association have been busy all summer making the outstanding selection of handcrafts. All prices are very reasonable, and a lot of the items will be of special interest to "earlybird" Christmas shoppers. You'll not only find solutions to some "gift problems" but will assist the Scholarship Fund at the same time.

Don't forget the date—November 8, starting at 9:30 a.m., in the Colonnade area.

Doris Sanborne and Jean Larsen look over some of the handcrafts for the up-coming Sale.

Notes From The Library

LIBRARY SLIDE / SOUND SHOW

"Excellent", "very effective", "superb", "fantastic", "very informative" were a few of the phrases used by faculty members and students to describe the Library's latest contribution to the University's orientation program. To date, the slide / sound show, "Introducing the Patrick Power Library", has been viewed by 375 students and faculty members, and an additional 240 are scheduled to see the show. The Admissions Office is making plans to use the show on its recruiting tours.

The 13-minute presentation is an introduction to the Library and its services and it is recommended viewing for any potential library user. Anyone wishing to see the show may contact any staff member at the Information Desk or call Admin. Local 187. The Library will be happy to arrange showings for groups or individuals. Groups as large as 60 can be accommodated in the Library's Conference Room. For larger groups, the show can be taken to any classroom.

SAVING ENERGY

Effective October 2, 1978, all custodial services in the Patrick Power Library will be carried out during daylight hours. This represents a change from past practice of a combination of night cleaning and day cleaning. The Library's lighting system consumes 85 kilowatts per hour in electrical energy, and the elimination of the lighting requirements for night cleaning will result in an annual saving of $4,000.

Scheduling of the cleaning staff in the Library will be arranged to provide a minimum of inconvenience to the users.

LIBRARY INSTRUCTION TAILORED TO ASSIGNMENTS

The Patrick Power Library offers instruction sessions to classes which will be required to use the Library to complete an assignment. On request, the Staff will tailor a session to the needs of a class and guide students to the most useful sources of information related to the assignment. If you would like to arrange a session for your class, please inquire at the Information Desk or call Administration, Local 187.

STAFF CHANGES AND NEW APPOINTMENTS IN THE LIBRARY

The following staff changes became effective on September 11, 1978:

Gwyn Pace was transferred to Interlibrary Loans replacing May Lui who has taken a position outside the University.

Sandra Beauchamp, a new staff member, replaces Gwyn Pace.

Cynthia Tanner, a new staff member, replaces Brent Taylor.

Theresa Doucette, a new staff member, replaces Beth Hunter.

Denise Wong is a new staff member.

Lauren Savary, a new staff member, will be Head of Circulation.

The University welcomes new staff members and extends best wishes to those who have left us.

Higher Education In The U.K.

Higher Education in the United Kingdom 1978-80 (a handbook for students from overseas and their advisers) is now available at the Patrick Power Library. This handbook was compiled jointly by the Association of Commonwealth Universities and the British Council, and is intended for use by students who are thinking of going to the United Kingdom to study at a university or other institution of higher education.

It contains information on subjects and facilities for study, as well as admission requirements and procedures, fees and general costs, scholarships, student life, etc.

Cost of the handbook is £3.25 ($7.95) and may be ordered from: The Association of Commonwealth Universities, 36 Gordon Square, London England WC1H 0PF.

Guess Who?

On Their Way

The Football Huskies are off and running in their 1978 campaign. A convincing 23-14 victory over the UPEI Panthers September 16th launched their conference schedule on the right track, but they met with stiff competition when they invaded the land of the Axemen September 23. The Santamarians ventured onto the valley campus prepared to defeat the defending A.U.A.A. Champions, but even ideal weather conditions couldn't alter the 34-13 Axemen win. Home competition opens September 30 when the Huskies meet a much improved Mt. Allison Mounties ballclub, and Coach Jim Clark looks for an impressive performance from his players to climb back on the winning track.

Key injuries hampered the Huskies in the game against Acadia, but the next meeting of the two powers October 28 in Halifax should see a healthy Maroon & White club looking for revenge.

Coach Kathy Mullane has her Field Hockey Belles hustling to defend their A.U.A.A. title, and already two games have gone into double overtime. Even the overtime didn't alter a 1-1 tie with a tough Acadia team September 20, but a successful penalty stroke by Nancy Collins gave the Belles a 2-1 win over the UNB Red Sticks September 24.

Back to guard nets is Sherry Conrad and veteran Martha Hayes along with rookie Sharon Newman defend the Belles domain. Halfback veterans Darlene Mossman, Nancy Collins, and Anne Murphy control the centre area; and forward newcomer Judy Pelley, second year players Cindy Norton, Monica MacKenzie, and Dianne Chiasson, and junior Irene MacPhee provide the scoring power this year. Substitutes Eveline Keyser, Mary Kelly, and Vivian Mancini are all new to the team and will serve as valuable backups.

Soccer is catching everyone's attention these days, and with the Huskies' potential this season, the fan section is steadily growing every game. Coach Roy Clements (who, incidentally, is recovering from recent surgery) has molded his group of athletes into a squad capable of dethroning A.U.A.A. Champ Dalhousie Tigers, and intends to represent the Atlantic conference at the Nationals in November.

Returning players like Murray Wilson, Austin Boyd, Darcy Walsh, Martin Shannon, Peter Wicha, Kevin Downie, and Mario Nogueira set the stage for a banner year and newcomers Peter Campbell, Gary Carter, Jim Sidey, Rubens Silva, and Ross Webb put the added touches on the club. An impressive 7-3 victory over the Acadia Axemen September 20 and a six goal performance by Ross Webb in that game opened the season, and if the Huskies continue to perform well they will dominate the A.U.A.A.
