Police Raid Loyola Drug Connection

by Colin MacMillan and Charles Russell

Late Friday night Saint Mary's University's Loyola Residence was the target of a drug raid by Metro Police. Five people were detained and a quantity of marijuana and hashish were confiscated.

A total of 13 charges were laid including two counts of possession, three counts of possession with intent to traffic, and five counts of trafficking. Arraignments were scheduled for last Monday and Tuesday.

Four of the five were arraigned Monday and entered no plea. They were rescheduled for a trial date in February. The one person scheduled for Tuesday is expected to face charges including possession of an illegal weapon and two drug related charges. The weapons charge is the result of a search yielding a switchblade knife.

The raid is the result of an undercover operation spearheaded by the Illegal Substance department of the police. The defendants are appearing in front of Judge Hughes Randall and are being prosecuted by the Crown.

University disciplinarians Residence Director Clay Fowler and Director of Student Services Keith Hotchkiss as well as President Dr. K. Ozmon stated that they had no prior knowledge of the raid and were concerned about the image that this may create for the University. They stated that even though spot checks are permitted in residence, the administration would be very reluctant to utilize this form of search and would not entertain the idea in the future.

It is reported that the accused will be permitted to attend classes and reside in the residence until the verdict is handed down, at which time the situation will be re-evaluated according to the decision of the judge.

It is suspected that this raid cracked a drug connection that was not only part of an off-campus connection, but also served the off-campus population.

The verdict is expected to be handed down at the trial on February 17 at 2 p.m.

Companies Contribute to Capital Campaign

by Heather Brown

Saga Foods and Central Trust have recently made installments of 10,000 and 3,000 dollars respectively on their pledges to Saint Mary's Capital Campaign.

A campaign that after almost two years has amassed nearly sixty-four percent of the anticipated 13,000,000 dollars. According to Mr. Donald Keleher, Director of Development, the campaign at present has in excess of 8,000,000 dollars pledged. Mr. Keleher stated that he was "extremely pleased" with the first two years of the campaign, but he added that the final three years will be the toughest.

The campaign objective is scheduled over a five year pledge period from 1984-1989.

and the anticipated fund sources are divided into several categories. Mr. Keleher stated that there has been "phenomenal success" in a number of these categories. For example, the faculty and staff section has pledged in excess of 125% of their anticipated objective, and regional corporations have pledged nearly 95% of their objective.

Mr. Keleher also noted that the donation from Saga Foods was extremely generous and demonstrated the company's interest in Saint Mary's.

The appeal to corporations across Canada has also proven to be very productive. Mr. Keleher stated that nearly 150 national corporations have been approached, and their response has been very favourable.

The next group to be approached for funding is the student body at Saint Mary's. Mr. Keleher stated that he is "anxious to have the students support in a generous way." Mr. Keleher also noted that the benefits of this campaign for students is tremendous.

To date, there have been over 1100 donations from all sources into the capital campaign. While the donor may designate where the money is to be spent, the majority of pledges are unrestricted. At the present time the majority of the funds are being channeled into the construction of the recreation center.

Overall, the campaign to date has been a success, and the organizers are looking forward to more of the same in the future.

Employment Centre to Close for Summer

by Doug Walsh

Besides helping students to find summer employment, the Employment Centre located on the 4th floor of the Student Centre also aids students in finding permanent or part-time work. In September they help grad students to find postings for after their academic year, which are usually found by Christmas. The Employment Centre on campus is different from other employment centres because it promotes Saint Mary's students and tries to place them in employment according to their needs. The Employment Centre not only services the students of Saint Mary's, but it also services employers. Other services that are provided are workshops that cover making resumes, interview skills and filling out application forms. It also provides information on the labour market.

In previous years the Employment Centre was open during the summer to help students find employment. They found work for students that was related to their degree or skill. This allowed students to expand on their skills, unlike other employment centres which may not expand on their skills but would create new skills. Bruna Caracristi, Manager of the Employment Centre, said the reason for the closure this summer was due to cutbacks in the services by the government. Students looking for employment during the summer are able to go to Student Employment Centres in Halifax, Dartmouth or Bedford. The Employment Centre will be closed at the end of April and will be reopening in mid August.

Chinese New Year Celebration

by Pat Brown

Saint Mary's Chinese Students Association presented an evening of colour and cultural richness as they celebrated Chinese New Year with a banquet, play and dance. The annual event was held Saturday, February 1, and marked the beginning of the Year of the Tiger. Special guests included Mayor Ron Wallace, Dr. and Mrs. Ozmon and CSA's advisor, Dr. James Morrison, Dean of Arts.

Following the preliminaries a film was shown which depicted the traditions and customs of several of China's ethnic groups. Then came the long-awaited meal which, although disappointingly cold, was deliciously prepared. Because the association is 15 years old in 1986 a giant birthday cake, complete with candles, was served for desert.

Several sponsors provided door prizes, one of which was an all expense paid trip to Shanghai or Hong Kong, valued at over $6000. The trip was won by Mrs. C. Khroya who has a son attending Saint Mary's.

After the meal the over 500 guests moved to the Theatre Auditorium where they were treated to a taste of the Orient in music, dance, and the martial arts. The most interesting feature was an exciting Lion Dance performed with swirls of colour and life like movements.

The evening culminated in a Disco Dance in the MPR. Despite a few drawbacks the Association is to be commended for their hard work in providing a unique evening's entertainment.

SMUDS Has Twain By The Tail

S.M.U.D.S. Has Got Twain By The Tale!

The Saint Mary's University Drama Society has started preparations for their Spring Production and it promises to be an exciting project for everyone involved. The Drama Society will be presenting the play Twain By The Tale from March 19th to the 22nd. Twain By The Tale is a revue of short sketches, stories and monologues by Mark Twain, adapted by Dennis Snee. A brilliantly composed theatre piece, it brings to life the unpredictable wit and timeless perceptions of the great humorist.

This being the 75th anniversary of Mark Twain's birth and his death, it is very apt that the Drama Society should choose to perform this particular play. Halley's Comet, which is making its way through our skies throughout this winter and early spring heralded Twain's birth and death and fascinated the irrepressible wit during his life. It is only fitting that this tribute take place at such a significant time.

The Drama Society is as active now as it has ever been in its 30-odd year history. A workshop on Improvisation/Theatresports and one on Set Construction are planned for this spring as well. The Drama Society strives to provide education in every aspect of the Theatre, an outlet for the creativity of Saint Mary's students and Alumni, and a feeling of camaraderie and lots of fun for all its members.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of the crew for Twain By The Tale is invited to attend the Production Meeting Friday, February 7th at 2:30 p.m. in the Board Room on the Main floor of the McNally Building, next to Mr. Guy Noel's office. Anyone may attend but it is important to keep in mind that when volunteering to be a crew member, you are making a commitment that can, at times, be time consuming. Once making that commitment, you must be prepared to stick with it. The rewards, however, are many and all the hard work seems more than worthwhile in the light of the finished product.

Anyone who cannot make the Production Meeting but who would like to get involved, please feel free to call Katherine at 423-0473.

Bulletin Overbudget

by Linda MacIntosh and Angela Thompson

The Saint Mary's University Students' Association monthly newsletter, The Bulletin, is over budget. The financial allotment for the publication, drawn up in the summer of 1985, allowed for the same costs of production in 1986 as those incurred in 1985.

In an effort to reduce costs, SMUSA decided in September to produce only six issues instead of eight.

In a prepared release Mark Bower, SMUSA president, said, "The Bulletin is costing approximately the same this year as last. The budgets at SMUSA are very tight." Even so, the Students' Representative Council allotted the Bulletin an extra $1000 on Sunday, January 26.

Bower also stated that "declining revenues and an extremely low student fee mean there is very careful spending required. The Bulletin provides a very unique service for the Students' Association and the student body. This service would have been lost if budget lines were not revised."

The Bulletin is distributed monthly in residence and the Student Centre.

The Comm Lane

Summer employment, to some students, it is a crucial element in alleviating summer boredom; however, for the majority of us, it is a little more than a necessary evil.

If you are considering obtaining a summer job now is the time to start applying. Summer jobs are not easy to come by these days but there are still some available. Whatever you do, do not hesitate looking for a job now. The majority of summer job applications close this month. In fact, applications for many positions have already closed.

If you do not know where to start looking, perhaps you should pay a visit to the Canada Employment Centre — On Campus (CEC-OC). The CEC-OC is there to help you find jobs for the summer as well as permanent positions.

Every year there are many career-oriented jobs available. These jobs can add valuable insight and expert experience to your future. They provide students with an even greater opportunity to develop marketable skills in their chosen fields.

For those of you who do not know what you want to do this summer, go up to the CEC-OC and just have a look around. Peggy Maloney and Bruna Caracristi, staff members of CEC-OC, would only be too pleased to help you out. "Anything we can do, we will do," says Peggy.

The main employment services offered by CEC-OC include: labor market, occupational, and employment information; job counselling; job selection and referral service; resume assistance; job search techniques; and on campus recruitment.

Among the jobs applicable through the CEC-OC are COSEP and Challenge '86 (Seed Programme). COSEP is a "Career-Oriented Summer Employment Programme" offered by the government of Canada. This programme offers students employment in a variety of federal government departments in career-oriented jobs. These positions are available in various departments in every province across Canada. Challenge '86 is a programme where professors subscribe to hire a couple of students to serve as assistants throughout the summer. Application deadlines for these programmes are in February.

The majority of summer positions offered by Saint Mary's University and the Saint Mary's University Students' Association, i.e. barstaff and security, are available through the CEC-OC.

Go up and register yourself with the CEC-OC now. This will assure that you are aware of jobs available. Your registration provides the CEC-OC with records of students available for positions and referrals.

Upcoming commerce events are as follows:

Feb. 5 — Commerce Society general meeting at 7:00 p.m. in the Commerce Lounge (L169).

Feb. 6 — Commerce Society Blood Donor Clinic at 2:00-4:30 and 6:30-8:30 p.m. in the Multi-Purpose Room (L230).

Feb. 13 — Twelfth Annual Business Dinner at 7:00 p.m. in the Multi-Purpose Room. Tickets are available daily from the Commerce Society Office (Rm. 512) in the Student Union Building.

Agriculture Prank Kills Five Chickens

EDMONTON (CUP) — Two University of Alberta agriculture students will appear in provincial court Feb. 20 in connection with the death of five chickens during the university's engineering week.

Reginald Shandro and Earl Greenhough were among five students who, acting independently of their faculty club, tossed a bag of chicken feathers and then five live chickens off the second floor balcony in the student union building during a noon engineering week rally.

"They thought they would flutter down," said director of campus security Doug Langevin, "but they fell like rocks."

The chickens were "half-dead," said engineering students' society executive Dale Hildebrand. "Two of them couldn't even lift their beaks off the ground."

The engineering students running the event disposed of the chickens by wringing their necks and tossing them into a dumpster, Hildebrand said.

Greenhough and Shandro are charged under section 402 of the criminal code with willfully causing unnecessary pain, suffering or injury to an animal or bird. The maximum penalty is a $500 fine or six months in jail.

"We didn't want to hurt anybody or the chickens," the two told the Gateway, U of A's student newspaper, last week.

They said they organized the stunt "in order to maintain the ongoing rivalry between the ags and engineers."

They thought the chickens would land safely because chickens can fly short distances.

The chickens were bought from a local farmer. "We told him it was engineering week and that we were going to use the chickens in a prank against them," the students said. "He said he didn't like engineers either."

Drunk Test 'Bad Business'

TORONTO (CUP) — Pub-goers at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute don't have to wait for a police officer to pull them over to find out they're unfit to drive. The Filling Station bar is one of a handful of student pubs in Canada equipped with a breathalyzer, bought earlier this year.

Slip in a quarter, breathe through a straw and a digital display tells you if your blood alcohol count is above or below the legal limit of 80 milligrams of alcohol in 100 millilitres of blood.

The wall-mounted Alcohol Guard machine was installed at Ryerson by the local chapter of Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students (BACCHUS), begun six years ago at the University of Florida. BACCHUS has 256 U.S. and five Canadian chapters.

Ryerson chapter president Barry Hayward said the instrument was installed as "part of a broad educational thing BACCHUS wanted to do" to convince drivers they should drink in moderation.

Hayward said he expects the $2,000 machine to pay for itself by the end of this year, but admits students aren't using it as much as when it was first installed.

"The novelty's wearing out a bit," he said.

Of the four Filling Station patrons interviewed, two had used the breathalyzer, but said they were just trying it out for fun and not to judge their impairment.

"I know when I'm not fit to drive," said Ryerson student Ed Whitehouse.

Another one-time sampler, Wayne Lee, said the machine is a "good idea" but questioned the ability of any device to gauge impairment.

BACCHUS's Hayward said two of the group's early concerns proved to be unjustified. People haven't been drinking more to see how much their blood alcohol level would rise. And because the machine's accuracy is not accepted in court, nobody at the school would be liable for damages if a person using the machine was subsequently involved in a car accident.

However, the idea hasn't taken off on other campuses. Apart from the machine at Ryerson and others at three St. Lawrence College campuses, probably no other Canadian campus has one, the former distributor says.

Cogni Instruments Inc. of Toronto pulled out as the Canadian distributor last month because "the response was just horrible," said sales manager Gerald Patt.

He said most restaurants, bars and hotels wouldn't take the machines because they feel they would discourage customers from buying drinks.

Why Waste the Chlorine?

Bug of the Week

by Etta Summerfield

I was rather impressed when I found that Saint Mary's had a pool. Then I saw it, not exactly Olympic specifications but hey, it's better than none at all. The real dilemma is when the pool is available for use.

Last week's letter to the Editor from Angela Ford and Dawn Munroe seems to have brought the problem of scheduling to the surface. I decided to visit the pool myself, hoping to talk to some staff, and look into the problem. Friday afternoon I was sure the pool would be splashing with water fans enjoying the facility, but I was mistaken. The pool was closed, and the doors boasted more hours of the same situation. That was a great comfort to me to know when it was going to be closed again, of course I still didn't know when it would be open but one can't expect too much, can one?

Why are the pool hours not posted? How is the pool expected to be used to its full potential if nobody really knows when it's available? According to the Letter to the Editor last week, there are supposedly regular pool hours, but then those can't be trusted. I noticed on Friday that Saturday evening's pool time would not be available. What is the problem, are all the staff out that night?

I advise whoever is responsible to find some mature, qualified staff to replace those that now feel their pool responsibilities are an inconvenience to their social lives. The pool was put there to use, not to rot. A pool being wasted makes me too furious for words. I cannot believe the incompetence and irresponsibility of some people. The Residence Society, a society for the preservation of the sanity of students living on campus, should add this to their list of works.

To the people of Saint Mary's:

On behalf of myself, Athletics, and the university I would like to extend our apologies for the irregularity of the pool hours first term.

The pool budget is very small; practically nil. To staff the pool, with such a small budget, requires a staff of 5 lifeguards plus one supervisor. Even so the budget only allows a below minimum wage for each employee. These wages deplete the budget and do not allow for any renovations. Pool supplies are at a bare minimum and several attempts to raise the budget failed.

The beginning of this academic year started with all pool hours filled. Two lifeguards then quit halfway through the term. I had to either find two lifeguards to fill the hours or close the pool for these unfilled hours. After several attempts to fill the hours the pool had to be closed. All staff are St. Mary's students and to find new lifeguards had to be left until second term.

Now into second term a full staff has been hired with most hours filled. Athletics has promised some new equipment; which has already been ordered. The new pool schedule and changes to this schedule can be seen on the pool door in Hen Alley. Once again I apologize for the pool irregularity during the first term and hope you enjoy the regular schedule of the second term.

Sincerely,
Michael Hines
(Pool Supervisor)

Dear Editor,

As an off campus student at Saint Mary's University, I viewed the snowfall on Sunday with dismay. During the storm a few weeks ago, conditions of the student parking area behind the SUB and walkways were disgusting! Cars had no control on what would have been more appropriately called a skating rink, and as a good samaritan I helped the joint effort of students aiding those unfortunate stuck in the ice and snow.

I was naive enough to assume that this snowfall would be different and that the University would be considerate enough to use salt and to adequately clear the walkways from the SUB to the library and Loyola. I was wrong and as I listened to the sound of wheels churning uselessly, I shrugged my shoulders and thought, this University's Administration doesn't care.

Yours truly,

Dear Editor:

I beseech you to join in the cause to establish a Central Emergency Telephone Number (911), in the Halifax and Dartmouth metros.

In the event of an emergency, do you know who to call; and at which number? If you know the emergency numbers to call in your local area, I commend you; for approximately 90% of the people around you do not share your knowledge. Now, what if an emergency occurs in the neighbouring city while you are at work, shopping, or visiting; do you still know which number to call for help?

The appropriate police department, the closest ambulance, the nearest fire department can all be dispatched to your aid, by calling one number... 911 (presently established in Bedford, N.S.). In the perplexity of an emergency when precious minutes are ticking away, lives can be saved by reducing the response time of the appropriate and closest professional help to your support.

Please, join the fight to establish a (911) Central Emergency Number in Halifax and Dartmouth. We are, potentially, fighting for our lives.

Sincerely,
G.T. Summerfield

Shaky Jake's Vinyl Word

By Shaky Jake

Now that January is over and everyone (well, almost everyone, except those moronic dunderheads who produce those assinine "award" shows) is done with their "Best of '85" lists, I thought it would be a good time to go beyond all that and compile a "best of all time" list of tunes that have made the biggest impression on this amateur music critic (some say "jaded old fart") over the years. So here they are, the tunes which I consider to be the best, most awesome slabs of black plastic ever produced:

1) "All Day and All of the Night" (The Kinks, 1964) — A fast, furious, energetic recording with one of the funniest lead breaks ever recorded. What these guys can do in just 2:02 is incredible.

2) "The Whole World's Goin' Crazy" (Slade, 1973) — An ample supply of beer and a copy of this record sent to each world leader and they'll all be partying too hard to even consider starting another world war.

3) "You Can Dance Your Rock 'n' Roll" (Wizzard, 1973) — A masterpiece of (relatively) modern recording techniques, this number includes guitar, bass, drums, Moog synthesizers, backwards drum tracks, saxophones, a couple of celli, and some of the rattiest singing ever recorded, thanx to leader Roy Wood. (Note: at this point, the band included four ex- and future-members of ELO).

4) "With A Girl Like You" (The Troggs, 1966) — One of the truly great pop-rock hits, clocking in at a mere 2:07.

5) "Summertime Blues" (Blue Cheer, 1968) — The first heavy metal "hit", heavy enough to make today's headbangers wilt in horror and/or disgust.

6) "Cum on Feel the Noize" (Slade, 1973) — One of the great all-time ravers.

7) "Sweet Jane" (Lou Reed, 1974) — A classic hard rocker, done in Reed's own inimitable style, making it one of the few worthwhile records of '74.

8) "Twist and Shout" (The Kinks, 1979) — The Kinks don't know they recorded this one, but a certain bootlegger does. Special feature: feedback and poor harmony singing which adds to, rather than detracts from, this performance. Dirty, grungy, sloppy — an unlikely masterpiece.

9) "Animation" (The Skids, 1979) — Great tune, irresistible beat, and astounding guitar work by Stuart Adamson (later of Big Country).

10) "Midnight Moonlight" (The Firm, 1985) — This is no "Stairway to Heaven", but it is a surprisingly good effort from a bunch of people whom most cynics had written off ages ago.

Lumpy oatmeal makes me crazy

by Mark DeWolf

Contrary to hopes and rumours, it's painfully apparent that Sabbath's original lineup is never to be again.

For Life-Aid, Bill Ward stashed his bottle, and Ozzy came out of detox just long enough to belt out some killer renditions of old classics like Paranoid and Iron Man — just long enough to stir up rumours of another album from the original monsters of rock.

Forget it.

The death throes of the last dinosaur, that's the first analogy that comes to mind. I mean, okay, I can deal with Paul Hyde and the Payolas, or Wham! featuring George Michael, but Black Sabbath featuring Tony Iommi!??

Obviously tired of the obscurity Sabbath has lulled into trying to find a lead vocalist, lead guitarist Tony Iommi has given the boot to Bill Ward and Geezer Butler (the only originals

Well, the new Black Sabbath is a plodding exercise in clichés. Not taking any chances, Iommi has sacrificed all the bombast and character that was Sabbath and replaced it with Deep Purplish harmonies and standard blah metal formula swamp gas. Black Sabbath featuring Tony Iommi is like cold oatmeal featuring lumps.

Tony, marry Lita Ford, run away to California, have kids, sell cars.

Don't bother.

Critics in Dust

by Mark DeWolf

This is an E.P. I have no idea what E.P. stands for, but what I do know is that it generally means a 4 song mini record, so Cities in Dust is merely a sample of what the actual album holds in store.

I want that album, and I want it now.

Even if it turns out that the only song on the album worth a damn is the title track, I figure I'll have my money's worth. A classic hook like the song Cities In Dust simply doesn't come around all that often. It'll grab you by the dancing shoes at first, and then with all likelihood by the mind as you begin to focus in on the parallels drawn between the destruction of Pompeii and the slow devolution process taking place in western society.

What a great song. The dance clubs must be having a field day.

The E.P. consists of two versions of Cities in Dust, the dance mix and (I assume) the single version. The other two songs, An Execution and Quarterdrawing of the Dog are more reminiscent of old Souixsie a la Hong Kong Garden and Spellbound. Suès voice (despite rumours of ill health) still has

Class of Promise

by Mark DeWolf

Class Of Promise is a new documentary from the National Film Board that outlines a growing trend in Canadian big business; the emergence of women into the upper echelons of the male dominated, administrative board room.

Beginning with the rigorous and demanding M.B.A. program at the University of Western Ontario, the film follows the achievements and downfalls of a group of women just beginning their MBA, and parallels their progress with that of women newly and already working their way into the ambitious world of business management.

The kinds of problems these women face are exactly the kind you would expect. Even though they have successfully completed the most rigorous and prestigious administration program in Canada, their assumed membership in that elite is a tenuous one, for they must prove themselves under the scrutiny of the male dominated business world that to this day is somewhat uncomfortable with the new influx of women into positions of large responsibility.

Lorraine Trotter explains the pros and cons of being a woman in the male dominated world of management in CBC's Class of Promise, to be aired February 9 at 9:00.

One problem they must deal with is the fact that many of their colleagues will often mistake the ambition one generally assumes to be part and parcel of the business world as "pushiness", or some degree of "radical feminism." Obviously this is a drawback no man would be associated with. Another conflict exclusive to women executives is the conflict between family and career. On one level, she must balance her responsibility as a mother and parent with her responsibilities to her work, while on another level, the woman executive has to deal with the curiosity of her male fellow workers as to how she can do so; inquiries that men with responsibilities at home rarely have to deal with.

Regardless of these drawbacks, it's obvious from viewing the character of these women that there will be no stopping them, because the rewards at this level are great—challenging work, success, power, and the feeling of personal achievement.

Class of Promise will air on the CBC February 9 at 9:00.

that shrill mystical quality it always had, and that's worth the price of the album alone.

Thanks to Charles Russell and CFSM for saving my bucks and allowing me to borrow both these albums.

Huskies Losing Streak Continues

by Shane Ross

After what was shaping up to be a Cinderella-type season, the SMU basketball team has suddenly found themselves with their backs against the wall.

Ever since their shocking upset of the Dal Tigers over two weeks ago, the Huskies have not won a game, and are currently riding a 5-game losing streak. On Saturday they lost to UPEI 84-72, and last Thursday they lost a 69-68 heartbreaker to St. F.X., the team they must pass to gain the last playoff berth. With less than a month to go before the AUSA championships, the Huskies are tied with St. F.X. for that final playoff spot, with St. F.X. holding a game in hand.

How does the team feel about this sudden turn of events? Coach Allan Waye says the team is not ready to throw in the towel yet.

"We are definitely not out of the playoff picture," Waye said. "We are not playing poor basketball. In the UPEI loss we shot 16 of 18 from the foul line, we outrebounded them and they had one more turnover than us, but they shot 55% from the field. We forced them to take the long outside shot and they kept making it. I'm not making any excuses. We simply lost to a better team."

"We have five games left before playoffs and it is important to win them for two reasons: one, we need them to guarantee making the playoffs, and, two, we'll be hot going into the playoffs. We got a break when UNB beat St. F.X. last week and as long as the guys continue to play well I'll be optimistic of our playoff chances."

One man who would make any coach optimistic of winning is 6'5" star center Mike Williams. Lately, "Spider", as he is known around the basketball circuit, is playing like he really does have eight arms and legs. He is presently leading the league in rebounding and is quickly becoming one of the league's top scorers.

In the Jan. 28 game against the Acadia Axemen, Williams almost single-handedly kept his team in the game; but when the final buzzer sounded, the Huskies were at the losing end of the 73-69 score. "Spider" wound up scoring just under half of the team's total points (32) and grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds.

SMU played sloppy fundamental ball in the first quarter of the game, leading to several turnovers. Luckily for SMU, Acadia didn't play that well either, and the 26-25 halftime score showed that SMU was by no means out of it.

With eleven minutes remaining, the Huskies had their first lead since the opening basket but it quickly disappeared as Axeman Jason Wilson continued to hit consistently from the outside.

SMU successfully used the full-court press to creep within two points with 50 seconds left, but Axeman Peter Morris was fouled in the final seconds of the game, and by sinking the two foul shots he sealed his team's victory.

David Smith, who earlier was the league's leading scorer, was held to just two points against Acadia, and his scoring production has dropped considerably in the Huskies' 5-game losing streak. Smith is a big key to the Huskies' offensive attack, and for the team to get back on track, he will have to regain that scoring touch we all know he has.

Ramblings of a Sports Fan

by Scott Gillis

Unless you're into shovelling snow in the midst of a blizzard, there wasn't much to do last Sunday except relax in front of the tube, right? Well sort of. But if you watched the Georgetown-LSU basketball game, the "relaxing" part of the prescription was hard. The score at the final buzzer was 74-72 for my Hoyas.

It was a long way for Dale Brown's LSU Tigers to travel for such a hard fought loss in Landover. And believe me, it was hard fought. The game was a see-saw affair that showed deadlocked scores on the board on 25 separate occasions. The victory upped the Hoyas' record to 17-3, but they are a much different team, without an "intimidation factor," since the departure of Patrick "In-Your-Face" Ewing to his new home in New York. Dalton and his platoon Mateen are good but, frankly, they're not Patrick on either defence or offence. Michael Jackson, Reggie Williams, David Wingate, and Horace Broadnax, in different combinations, are now heavily relied upon as outside threats with less emphasis on penetrating the zones.

LSU should be very proud of their effort on Sunday. All in all, they controlled much of the game. Indeed, Georgetown's last two marks came from Jackson from the free throw line with six seconds left in regulation. Jackson was named Georgetown's MVP for the game.

But it was LSU's MVP, one John Williams, who was the real star of the day. If you didn't see the game, the best description I can come up with is that at times, the 6'8" forward reminded me a bit of Larry Bird in action. No kidding! The L.A. native racked up 27 points and on some occasions put on a clinic with his shooting and ball control. The most amazing part is that he played the full game without substitution in the late stages of his recuperation from chicken pox. His coach, Dale Brown, has described him as a very "unselfish superstar" in both his play and character. I say: watch out for him and LSU in the future.

SPORTS TRIVIA: An easy one this week. John Thompson's Georgetown Hoyas lost to whom in last year's Monday night classic for the NCAA basketball championship?

ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S TRIVIA: The Chicago Bears' 7 sacks in Super Bowl XX ties the Dallas Cowboys' record established in Super Bowl X in a losing effort against the Pittsburgh Steelers (21-17).

The Search is On

Dr. Ian McGregor, Director of Athletics and Recreation at Saint Mary's University, announced today that Saint Mary's would be searching for a new head coach for their ice hockey team through newspaper advertising within the next few weeks.

Head Coach Lawrence Curry, who accepted an eight month contract as interim coach for the 1985-86 season, has decided not to reapply, but rather to pursue other options.

Both Curry and McGregor feel it is important, for continuity reasons, to appoint a new coach as soon as possible.

McGregor has expressed his gratitude to Curry for taking on the interim job, emphasizing that Curry has worked hard in what has been a very difficult situation.
