Saint Mary's University President

Dear Graduates of the Class of 2015:

Congratulations! You can be very proud of your success. As you move on to the next stage of your career, I am confident that the time you have spent at Saint Mary's University has provided a strong foundation of the values of citizenship that will serve you well in all aspects of your life.

While intellectual experience is at the heart of what we are about as a university, we have never felt that our mission stopped there. A Saint Mary's graduate is someone who, in addition to her/his classroom and laboratory learning, has a strong moral compass, has acquired excellent communication, leadership, cross-cultural skills, a sense of community, and also has developed a sensitivity to the local, national and global issues of our competitive world.

I hope you will return to this book many times in years to come to relive your memories of Saint Mary's your professors, your friends, and the events which took place on campus, particularly in your final year which, as it happens represents my final year as President.

I hope, too, that you will continue to think of Saint Mary's not only as the place at which you studied, but where you became more of a citizen of the world. So please keep in touch with your graduating colleagues and with us. Join an Alumni chapter and be part of the 38,000+ member alumni network worldwide.

My colleagues and I wish you every success in your future career.

Yours sincerely,

SMUSA President

low graduates,

There is no place in the world like Saint Mary's University. I have lived in many provinces from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, and I have visited universities in many places in between, yet I have never found that combined feeling of security and familiarity that I once knew at SMU. I believe this is exactly the role that universities are supposed to play in our lives. We pursue an education to discover as much about ourselves as we do about the world, and in the process of finding ourselves we find where we belong. SMU is only the first stage in our amphitheater of life.

When we began at SMU we were tadpoles. I remember being on the turf during Orientation Week as a freshman and the accompanied feelings of anxiety and excitement. I remember being nervous about experiences un-lived and stories still yet untold. It is hopefully a position we will all find ourselves in again someday, because it is a position that makes us stronger in ways only recognizable later. But tadpoles eventually mature in their small ponds, developing leg muscles strong enough to carry them from the safety of the water and into the uncertain surrounding world. The risks are great, but so are the rewards. For those of us who thrived or even excelled in the pond, the task remains to do the same beyond its protective boundaries.

It seems there are many people who think differently about their time in university. But I am a romantic at heart, and when I consider everything that I have learned in such a short period of time, I cannot help but to think that those experiences were purposeful and formative. I will never forget the people I met, the fun we had, and the many things I have learned, both about myself and what I value, and where my values fit within society at large. We are all, like the world in which we live, complex. There is just as much to discover by looking inward as there is looking outward. The key is in knowing what to look for. Ask questions, seek answers, protect yourself and most importantly, be of service to others. There are so many incredible things left for each of us to learn and do. SMU was our start and beginning.

It is an important lesson that I learned from my two years working at SMUSA. Many people, including my own friends and family, were worried about what I would do when I left. I had become so entrenched with student politics that it had become a large part of my identity. So large, in fact, that many elements of my character fell to the wayside of my ambition, and it was not until I left SMU that I was able to rediscover the many things about myself that I had once considered so important. Never forget that it is never too late to change your path, to admit you were wrong, to learn, and to start anew. It can be exciting, nerve-racking, and terrifying, but it is a part of growing up.

My once fellow tadpoles, thank you for placing your trust in me. Ever more importantly, thank you for being my friend and for giving me the confidence that I can never have found without your trust. It has been my eternal pleasure to serve as your SMUSA president.

Student life

Student life is a huge factor in making our university a place we want to be. Through hours of organization from SMUSA, societies and more we get to make the most of our university experience. After all, university isn't completely about learning, though don't forget to study!! But we get to have fun every now and again too! Whether it's carving pumpkins at Octoberfest, celebrating the rainbow community at Pride Week or shaving your face for Movember...At this home away from home, these activities are what bring people together and change them from being friends to being family.

This year SMU hosted some amazing musical talent. Both the Mellotones and Slowcoaster made appearances on campus. Both bands are native to Nova Scotia and showcased the talent that we have in this province. Slowcoaster is an indie rock band from Sydney, NS and the Mellotones originate from right here in Halifax and have a great Funk, Soul, and R&B style.

Concerts

As part of Pride Week, organized by the SMUQ society on campus, Love is Love was an event that evoked acceptance and reinforced the notion that no matter who we choose to share it with... Love is Love.

Battle of the floors

Which floor is truly the best floor in residence?

Battle of the floors is one of the best attended residence events all year. With a record breaking 150+ participants this event wasn't one to miss. Together, floors unite to compete against one another for the title of 'Best Floor in Residence'. Residence Coordinators Thene Cress, Ashley Nixon and Karianne Wellington, alongside Assistant Director of Housing and Residence Life, Kati Kilfoil, judged the competition. Instead of the usual country/Olympic themed day like it had been in prior years, the coordinators decided to switch it up and made a new theme: Welcome to the Jungle. Each team chose their own animal and dressed up accordingly. The Flamingos dressed up in pink feather boas, the Cobras painted scales on their skin, and how could we forget about the adorable white Polar Bear t-shirts? Needless to say, everyone went all out for their costumes.

The day began with the Parade of Flags, where each team, sporting their animal attire, presented their animal flag. Following this was an array of different competitions where teams went head-to-head to compete. Some of these games included Balloon Pop (where everyone tied a balloon to their foot and tried to pop their competitors' balloon before their own was popped), Name That Tune (a short animal-themed song was played briefly, points were given to the team that could name the most), Feather Relay (who knew throwing a feather could be so hard?), Paper Airplane Competition and more! In the end, Tigers (Vanier B3, B4 & D4) came in third, the Llamas (Loyola 12 & 15) in second and the Bunnies (Vanier B2) came in first! The Polar Bears (Loyola 6 & 20) won the Spirit Award.

It's hard to believe that in a short 5 hour event, floors can become so close, new friends can be made and such team spirit can be built. But, during Battle of the Floors this does happen! In some cases, this is the first time since Orientation Week that this kind of new and old friendship building has had the chance to happen.

Movember

Movember is an annual event to raise awareness of men's health. SMUdents showed their support by repping the 'stache for the cause.

Africa night

Africa Night is an annual event that is organized by both Saint Mary's University and Dalhousie University. This year, the event was held at the World Trade and Convention Center. The idea is to showcase the diversity that is Africa and to celebrate African Heritage as it is a part of Nova Scotia's history. It does this by introducing various performances from all parts of Africa. There was also a meal based in traditional African cuisine.

Burke-Gaffney Observatory

The Burke-Gaffney Observatory was installed in December of 2013. Named in honour of Reverend M.W. Burke-Gaffney, S. J, the founder of the Department of Astrology at SMU, this new installment is used primarily for education in regards to undergraduate astronomy work. This observatory can be found at the very top of SMU's tallest building, Loyola Residence. Originally, this observatory opened in 1972 and consisted a 16-inch Ealing telescope. Needless to say, the new renovations done in 2013 made vast improvements, thanks to the investment by the University as well as a remarkable gift from Dr. Ralph and Mrs. Shirlee Medjuck. The main instrument that now calls the observatory its home is a PlaneWave CDK24, a 0.61-metre diameter reflecting telescope. This telescope is motor driven in order to compensate for the constant rotation of Earth and a computer-controlled positioning system. Included in the observatory is a portable 40-cm diameter reflecting telescope, ten 20-cm diameter reflecting telescopes (with several white light solar filters), and a dedicated solar telescope with a narrowband hydrogen alpha filter.

Reverend M.W. Burke-Gaffney, S. J. founded the Department of Astronomy at Saint Mary's University. As well as having the observatory named in his honour, the Halifax Chapter of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada presents the Burke-Gaffney Award annually to the best paper of the year in Nova Notes.

Michael Walter Burke-Gaffney was born in Dublin in 1896 and graduated with a B. Eng. from Dublin National University in 1917. Post university he worked for the War Office and then the Air Ministry in London. In 1920 he came to Manitoba, Canada as a bridge engineer. Due to his prior studies in theology in both Ireland and France he became involved in the Society of Jesus and in 1930 was ordained a priest. He then obtained a Doctorate in Astronomy in 1935 from Georgetown University, and lectured in astronomy in many locations across Canada.

His work with Saint Mary's University included being appointed Dean of Engineering, Dean of Science, and a Professor of Applied Science and Astronomy from 1948-1955.

He was a remarkable man that was involved in many associations, authored many journal articles, received many awards and diplomas.

International Exchange

Saint Mary's is partnered with over 80 universities across the globe, that provides students with the opportunity to enhance their academic experience by traveling and studying at them. Depending on the institution and the student's preference, students can study for a summer, a semester, or an entire year at these institutions. Not only does this give the student an opportunity to travel, but it can immerse them in an entirely new culture. This means that they may develop new language skills, international knowledge, and acquire experiences that they will talk about for the rest of their life. Want to stay close to home and learn a new language? Montreal might be a nice bet. Are you a little more daring and want to try something completely new? How about Australia?

SMU also plays host to many students that are on exchange. Don't be surprised if you run into someone in the hallway and they are excited to see snow for the first time! There are countless reasons to study abroad. Firstly, it's a lot of fun! Exploring a new city with new friends while earning university credits is something many will envy. These students have an enriched academic experience that many others do not acquire. They develop a new perspective of the world while boosting their resume! Portugal, Norway, China, Brazil, Uganda, Taiwan, whatever city, country, or continent you choose, it will be an unforgettable experience!

Residence "The Talk"

Residence community

For many students, especially first year students, being a part of the residence community is a great way to experience SMU in a whole new way. Residence gives an automatic in to meet new friends and be exposed to a variety of different events and ways to get involved on campus. There are three main residences on campus: Vanier, Loyola and Rice. They all have security and residence assistants to make sure the floors remain a safe, fun, and friendly atmosphere and one of the best ways to experience SMU.

Every year the ability for new and returning students to live and enjoy residence is made possible by the residence staff; composed of Residence Assistants, Residence Security Officers, Residence Coordinators, Engagement Coordinators, and office staff, just to name a few. A large part is made possible by numerous student leaders chosen for their positions. In many cases, these students receive 100+ hours of training in terms of community building, leadership, conflict resolution, first aid, and everything involved in making living in residence a fun and memorable experience for students living there. Many of the campus and residence events are organized by these individuals.

▶ OTTAWA SHOOTING On October 22, 2014, Cpl. Nathan Cirillo, 24, was standing guard in front of the National War Memorial in Ottawa, when he was gunned down. The shooter, Michael Zehaf-Bibeau (right), a 32-year-old homeless man with a history of mental illness and drug addiction, was killed soon after on Parliament Hill. Soldiers, politicians and citizens alike mourned Cpl. Cirillo, who was married and had a five-year-old son. Thousands gathered along the Highway of Heroes for the funeral procession that brought his body back to his hometown of Hamilton, Ont.

▶ NATIONAL HEROES The shooting of Cpl. Nathan Cirillo put the spotlight on the brave and caring Canadians who came to the soldier's aid, as well as the man who stopped the gunman's rampage. Lawyer Barbara Winters, nurse Margaret Lerhe, fellow reservist Cpl. Brandon Stevensen and National Defence employee Martin Magnan comforted Cirillo and administered first aid. When the shooter moved inside Parliament's Centre Block, it was House of Commons Sergeant-at-Arms Kevin Vickers who cornered and killed Michael Zehaf-Bibeau, preventing a possible massacre.

▶ ROBOCALL RESOLUTION In August, 2014, a judge ruled that Michael Sona, a 26-year-old former Conservative staffer, was actively involved in the Robocall scheme, and later sentenced Sona to nine months in prison. The scandal dates back to the 2011 federal election in which the Conservatives won a majority. Days before the vote, 7,000 automated calls were made to Guelph residents directing them to the wrong polling stations. Liberal supporters received most of the calls. Though the judge believed Sona did not act alone, no other individuals have ever been charged.

◀ END OF AN ERA In an unexpected turn of events, it wasn't Rob Ford's drug use or embarrassing public outbursts that caused him not to seek re-election as mayor of Toronto, but rather the diagnosis of a rare form of abdominal cancer. As Ford started treatment in September of 2014, his older brother Doug entered the mayoral race instead. The elder Ford had his own controversial moments, including offensive Jewish remarks that made him fodder for late-night talk shows. He ultimately lost to John Tory.

▶ MONCTON SHOOTINGS On June 4, 2014, residents in a suburban neighbourhood in Moncton, N.B., could only watch helplessly as 24-year-old Justin Bourque, armed with a shotgun, targeted RCMP officers in the area. Dressed in fatigues, Bourque killed three Mounties - Dave Ross, Fabrice Gevaudan and Douglas Larche - and injured two others. Moncton was in lockdown during the 30-hour manhunt that ended with Bourque's arrest. During interrogation, Bourque expressed a general hatred for authority. He later apologized to the families, and was sentenced to five life sentences, with no chance of parole for 75 years.

▲ FALL FROM GRACE In October, 2014, Jian Ghomeshi, the popular host of CBC Radio's talk show Q, said his familiar "Well, hi there," for the last time. The public broadcaster announced it had fired him over "information" it received. Over the next few weeks, at least eight women, including Canadian TV star Lucy DeCoutere and lawyer Reva Seth, came forward with accusations of unwanted sexual violence at the hands of the radio personality. So far, Ghomeshi, 47, faces seven charges of sexual assault and one charge of choking — and he maintains his innocence.

► WACKY WEATHER It was early September, 2014, when winter hit Calgary with a vengeance. A cold front caused drizzling rain to turn to snow, creating a winter storm that lasted several days. In total, 11.8 centimetres of snow fell on the city — just one millimetre shy of a record set back in 1921. Half of the city's two million trees were damaged, resulting in power outages in some areas. The cleanup cost the city $18 million.

► #BEENRAPEDNEVERREPORTED The shock of the Jian Ghomeshi allegations brought the topics of sexual assault and consent into the media spotlight. A Facebook conversation between Toronto Star reporter Antonia Zerbisias and Montreal Gazette justice reporter Sue Montgomery — in which they expressed their frustration at the way sexual assault victims are stigmatized — turned into a full-fledged movement for solidarity. Using the Twitter hashtag #BeenRapedNeverReported, women across Canada shared their stories of assault and explained why they never went to the police. Within 24 hours, the hashtag was trending across the world and retweeted eight million times. (sharpen/Shutterstock)

► A DREAM IS REALIZED Though the dream of opening a human rights museum in Canada almost died with media mogul and philanthropist Israel "Izzy" Asper, his daughter, Gail, was determined to carry on. After almost 15 years and $350 million in fundraising, the museum finally opened in Winnipeg in September, 2014. Controversy soon followed. Besides the higher-than-expected costs, Aboriginal groups have threatened to boycott the museum for not calling their historical treatment "genocide," and Ukrainian Canadians decried the exclusion of Holodomir, Stalin's deliberate starvation of Ukrainians, as a permanent exhibit.

▼ NO TO INDEPENDENCE When Scotland held a referendum asking “Should Scotland be an independent country?” more than 3.6 million people turned out to have their say — and the No side won by more than 400,000 votes. It’s believed that the win was due to an increased feeling of Britishness around the time of the referendum, nervousness about taking an unnecessary risk, and uncertainty about what it would mean for the economy. ◀ UKRAINE CONFLICT

In 2014, the conflict between the Ukraine and Russian-backed separatists escalated, in part due to the May election of Petro Poroshenko as president and a landmark trade deal he signed with the EU. Pro-Russian rebels responded to the deal by shooting down a Malaysian Airlines flight, forcing the U.S., Canada and EU to announce new sanctions against Russia. Over 5,000 lives have been lost in the continued conflict, despite a major effort by EU countries to broker a treaty and ceasefire.

▼ SCHOOLGIRL KIDNAPPINGS On April 14, 2014, over 200 Christian schoolgirls were kidnapped from a government-run boarding school in Nigeria. The kidnapers were part of a militant jihadist group known as Boko Haram. Months later, a man named Abubakar Shekau — who claims to be the leader of the group — said the girls were converted to Islam and married off. Boko Haram’s reign of terror has continued, including an attack on the Nigerian town of Baga, where the militants set fires and massacred anywhere from 150 to 2,000 people.

▼ NOBEL FOR MALALA After 16-year-old Malala Yousafzai was shot in the head by the Taliban for going to school, the world learned of her tireless advocacy for education in her home country of Pakistan — and her courageous fight to survive despite all odds. Since then, Malala has published a book on her life, and in October, 2014, she became the youngest person, at 17, to win the Nobel Peace Prize. She stressed the award was not just for her: “It is for those forgotten children who want education. It is for those frightened children who want peace. It is for those voiceless children who want change.”

◀ THE F WORD Recent college graduate and British actor Emma Watson was named UN Women Goodwill Ambassador in 2014. The Harry Potter star kicked off her new position with a passionate speech at the UN headquarters in New York: “Apparently I am among the ranks of women whose expressions are seen as too strong, too aggressive . . . and unattractive,” said Watson, addressing misconceptions of feminism. The speech was part of her HeForShe campaign, to bring one billion men and boys together as advocates for gender equality.

▼ #JeSuisCharlie On Jan. 7, 2014, two gunmen stormed the office of Charlie Hebdo, a French satirical magazine, and opened fire — 12 people were killed, including world-renowned staff cartoonists Charb, Cabu, Honoré, Tignous and Wolinski. The attack, carried out by brothers Cherif and Said Kouachi, was a reaction to the magazine's depictions of the Prophet Muhammad. The shooters were later killed in a gunfight with the police. The world showed its solidarity with the publication through the slogan/hashtag Je Suis Charlie. (© Rex Features [2005] all rights reserved)

▼ AIR TRAGEDIES This year seemed to be one of the worst in aviation history. In March, 2014, a Malaysia Airlines flight went missing with 239 people on board, while en route from Kuala Lumpur to Beijing. (Months later, there was still no trace of the plane.) In July, another Malaysia Airlines flight was shot down as it flew through a conflict zone in eastern Ukraine, close to the border of Russia. Then in December, an AirAsia flight from Indonesia went missing in bad weather — though the crash site was found days later. Of the 162 passengers, there were no survivors. (AP Photo/Vincent Thian)

▲ A NEW EVIL On Aug. 19, 2014, the Islamic State jihadist group known as ISIS released a video of the beheading of American journalist James Foley. More brutal video killings followed. And ISIS made rapid advances and takeovers in Iraq and Syria. The United States responded with airstrikes, and joined with 60 other countries in a coalition against ISIS. At the same time, Western governments struggled to prevent the group from recruiting young people online with their strong social media presence.

▼ A POPE'S PROGRESS During an October, 2014, mass, Pope Francis stated that "God is not afraid of new things." This Pope has turned out to be a modernizing leader, who is asking the church to broaden its views on sexuality, contraception and divorce. He's also denounced capitalism, against Islam, and doesn't go in for the pomp and circumstance of his lofty position. He's ushered in a new era for the church, bringing to a head the split between reformers and conservatives. To top it off, he helped foster the political thaw between the U.S. and Cuba.

▲ THE UMBRELLA REVOLUTION When Beijing reversed its position on holding a democratic election in Hong Kong by 2017, tens of thousands of students took to the streets in protest. What started as an organized sit-in in Hong Kong's business district, quickly escalated into what's become known as the Umbrella Revolution. In clashes with police, protestors used umbrellas to protect themselves against water hoses and pepper spray. The protests, which started in September, 2014, lasted nearly three months — and for the most part the students' pro-democratic demands went unanswered. (© Rex Features [2005] all rights reserved)

▼ DOWNLOAD DEBACLE The public outcry was deafening when, on Sept. 9, 2014, U2's new album, Songs of Innocence, was automatically added to Apple users' iTunes libraries. Bono explained the rationale as "a drop of megalomania, a touch of generosity, a dash of self-promotion and deep fear that these songs that we poured our life into over the last few years might not be heard." Others called it "rude." Bono apologized, but was still the winner: 33-million people "experienced" the album.

▲ BRITISH INVASION The North American charts were dominated by Brit acts in 2014, especially Ed Sheeran (center) and Sam Smith (right). The soulful singer-songwriters saw their respective albums, x, and In the Lonely Hour, top the charts. While their singles, Sing, and Stay with Me, were two of the most popular songs of the year — although it was Smith's Stay with Me that officially won the title at the Grammys. Smith walked away with four awards in total, including best new artist. Following in their wake, another soulful Brit, George Ezra (left), arrived on the scene in 2015.

▲ NO FAKE PLASTIC BARRIE DOLL Meghan Trainor got her record deal by playing her now-famous song, All About That Bass, to producer L.A. Reid on a ukulele. The love-your-body-just-the-way-it-is single became a smash No. 1 hit and earned Trainor, a singer-songwriter from Massachusetts, two Grammy nominations. It also led to a duet with Harry Styles of One Direction. They composed a new song together on — you guessed it — a ukulele.

▼ FANCY MEETING YOU HERE With the goal of changing the face of hip hop, leotard-wearing Australian rapper Iggy Azalea blew up the charts in 2014. While some slammed her for ignoring black issues and appropriating black culture, others defended her, including rappers Will.i.am and Lupe Fiasco. And the charts were on her side. At one point, her single Fancy was No. 1, and Azalea was a guest star on the No. 2 song, Ariana Grande's Problem.

► SHAKERS GOTTA SHAKE In 2014, Taylor Swift proved her dominance over pop music was no fluke, with another No. 1 record, 1989, a Dick Clark Award of Excellence at the American Music Awards, and that irresistible single, Shake It Off. The catchy song had everyone singing along — including a burly Delaware police officer who became a viral video sensation. Never one to shy away from personal lyrics, Swift acknowledged what the haters had been saying about her brains, talent and personal life, and then proceeded to ... shake it off. ► ALL 4 LOVE One Direction celebrated four years of being together with the November, 2014, release of their fourth album, Four — which of course became their fourth No. 1. Four months later, 1D fans had their worlds turned upside down as member Zayn Malik unexpectedly quit the band during a world tour, saying he wanted to be a “normal 22-year-old.” He immediately started working on solo music — drawing ire from his former bandmates and fans.

► DANCING WITH SHARKS

Katy Perry rode an animatronic tiger, danced with adorable sharks and piloted a shooting star across the length of a football field during her 2015 Super Bowl halftime performance. While solidifying the fact that she always puts on a good show, Perry was somewhat upstaged musically by her guests, Lenny Kravitz, and in particular Missy Elliott.

◀ ONE-TAKE WONDER Canadian singer Kiesza landed on the music scene in 2014 with the Hideaway video, in which she melds multiple dancing styles in a four-minute, one-take, back-alley routine. The singer, with the flaming red steamhawk hairdo, knows a little about discipline and getting it right — she was a trained ballerina and a Canadian navy reservist, who was voted “top shot” at boot camp for her gun skills.

◀ RED LOBSTER RAP

This was the year Nicki Minaj showed her softer side. In a 2015 MTV special, the usually tough-as-steel rapper admitted she was once a struggling Red Lobster waitress. And in her Pinkprint album/movie, she detailed the breakup of her 11-year relationship. She continued to try to be a role model to young women — in true Nicki Minaj fashion — telling Rolling Stone magazine: “If you got a big ol’ butt? Shake it! Who cares? That doesn’t mean you shouldn’t be graduating from college.”

▲ WAS BEY ROBBED? Beyoncé was expected to win album of the year at the 2015 Grammys for her critically acclaimed, chart-topping, audio-visual masterpiece Beyoncé. But it was Beck who walked away with the golden gramophone, for his 12th album, the quietly contemplative Morning Phase. Never one to hold back his opinion, Kanye West (below, right) jokingly stormed the stage during Beck’s acceptance speech, but did tell reporters afterward: “Beck needs to respect artistry and he should have given his award to Beyoncé.” It took just over two weeks, but Kanye eventually apologized via Twitter.

► NORMAL IS THE NEW BLACK

The fashion trend most searched on Google in 2014 was 'Normcore,' a style that was first reported by KHole, a New York-based trendspotting group. According to the New York magazine article that brought Normcore to the mainstream masses, it's "embracing sameness deliberately as a new way of being cool... In fashion, this manifests itself in ardently ordinary clothes." Those looking for normcore role models found inspiration in Jerry Seinfeld, President Barack Obama (when not in a suit) and Tina Fey's 30 Rock character, Liz Lemon.

► PUT THE KETTLE ON

While weights with handles have been used for exercise in Russia since the 1700s, kettlebells have only recently caught on in the rest of the world. Penélope Cruz, Jennifer Aniston, Vanessa Hudgens and the Indianapolis Colts all work out with kettlebells, which look like small bowling balls with handles. It was also one of the most searched fitness trends on Google in 2014. A study showed that using kettlebells for training can reduce pain in the head, neck and shoulders, and in a 20-minute workout kettlebells can help burn 21 calories a minute. ► IPHONE SLIMS DOWN

The iPhone has come a long way from the chunky brick it was when first released in 2007. Responding to critics who've said Apple's done little to change its designs in the fast-paced smartphone market, the company released the iPhone 6 and iPhone 6 plus (on Sept. 19, 2014), with a larger screen and slimmer profile. Clearly Apple fans were satisfied — the company sold 10 million the first weekend out, breaking all previous sales records. (Zeynep Demir/Shutterstock)

▲ #SOCIALMOVEMENTS In 2014, Twitter showed its potential as an instrument for social change. When Boko Haram kidnapped 200 girls in Nigeria in April, the hashtag #BringBackOurGirls was retweeted millions of times — even First Lady Michelle Obama posted a picture in support. And after the August murder of Canadian Aboriginal teen, Tina Fontaine, other Aboriginal women took to Twitter asking #AmiNext. Also hashtags like #BlackLivesMatter and #UmbrellaRevolution brought citizens together and shone a light on social injustice.

◀ $10 BILLION AND COUNTING

Call of Duty, the wildly successful video game franchise from Activision, hit a huge milestone in 2014: The series officially reached $10 billion in lifetime sales since it was launched in 2003. Plus, the latest release, Call of Duty: Advanced Warfare, was the top-selling game of the year. Fans got a pleasant surprise when they discovered that Kevin Spacey was cast as the game's main villain, Jonathan Irons — a warmonger obsessed with power.

▲ TUBE TREND The YouTube "unboxing" trend is as simple as this: post a video of yourself opening the latest tech gadget or consumer product, while narrating your appreciation of its packaging and design. Then people watch it — lots of people. In 2014, "unboxing" became a bona fide craze, with searches rocketing up 57 per cent from the year before. Some of the most popular "unboxed" products include, anything made by Apple, beauty boxes, American Girl dolls and Kinder Surprise eggs. (Romazur)

▲ GET FIT, BIT BY BIT A tiny fitness gadget may just be the personal trainer of the century. Dominating 50 per cent of the wearables market this year, FitBit is a portable clip or bracelet that gives stats on how well you sleep, how active you are, and how well-rounded your diet is. It calculates your basal metabolic rate using your age, height and sex to determine if you're moving enough, and how well you've slept — giving the wearer an impetus to develop healthier habits.

SERIAL

◀ SERIAL SUCCESS This American Life journalist Sarah Koenig pulled in at least five million listeners to her addictive 2014 podcast, Serial. Koenig investigated a 15-year-old crime involving a Baltimore teenager, Adnan Syed, who was convicted of murdering his 18-year-old ex-girlfriend Hae Min Lee. Koenig's research and on-air interviews with witnesses reveals possible loose ends and missed evidence in the state's case against Syed. The podcast was so popular that a new witness has stepped forward with a possible alibi for Syed — making him eligible for appeal later in 2015. (Courtesy Serial)

▲ BREAK THE INTERNET The November 2014 edition of Paper magazine had a very cheeky cover of Kim Kardashian — in which she shows off her world-famous, voluptuous butt, with a headline challenge to "Break the Internet." Within the issue's pages were other risqué photos. While the Internet survived, the photo shoot had everyone talking, and the online version of the photos amassed over 34 million unique page views.

△ ORBS AND OCTOCOPTERS Analysts predict that the global market for personal drones will reach $130 million by the end of 2015 — up a whopping 55 per cent from the year before. It was certainly the must-have gift of Christmas 2014. Meanwhile, governments are barely keeping up; while consumer drone use is legal, the growing popularity and rapid pace of the technology is raising questions about air safety and privacy.

◀▶ A QUEEN, A TEEN, A PITT AND A POPE

It was an eventful year for Angelina Jolie. On Aug. 23, 2014, the 39-year-old Hollywood star married Brad Pitt in France in front of their six children; in October, she was bestowed an honorary damehood by the Queen of England for her humanitarian work on sexual violence; she directed the war film Unbroken, which was released in November; and in January, 2015, Jolie met the Pope. But when she was asked about her most memorable moment, she said it was her oldest child, Maddox, becoming a teenager.

▲ RIP On Aug. 11, 2014, the entertainment world mourned the passing of Robin Williams. A standup comic and master of improvisation, Williams became a television star in the 1970s, playing an alien on Mork & Mindy. From there, Williams went on to a successful career in film; he made comedies (Mrs. Doubtfire), animated films (Happy Feet), and dramas, winning an Oscar for Good Will Hunting in 1998.

▲ TO VENICE WITH LOVE It's official: Hollywood's most eligible bachelor is finally off the market. Historic parts of Venice were shut down over three days in September for George Clooney and Amal Alamuddin's wedding extravaganza. There were pre-parties, bachelor and bachelorette celebrations, and, of course, the wedding ceremony and reception. And it all ended with a civil service. The movie star and British human rights lawyer surrounded themselves with family and plenty of celebrity friends, including Matt Damon and Bono. All the guests received iPods preloaded with a wedding playlist.

◀ DIVA DIVORCE After six years of marriage, Mariah Carey and TV star Nick Cannon (America's Got Talent) filed for divorce in December, 2014. While the couple has tried to keep things amicable for their twin three-year-olds, there have been harsh words around settlements and custody. Soon after the split, Carey announced a residency at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, where she'll perform all of her 18 No. 1 hit songs.

▶ OUT OF CONTROL

Perennial bad boy Justin Bieber had another year of scandalous headlines. While driving a three-wheeled motorcycle, Bieber nearly ran down an elderly woman with a walker. He also threw eggs at a house on his street, causing an estimated $20,000 in damages — though he ended up having to pay $80,000. Bieber attempted to turn it all around with a videotaped apology for his strange year of stunts. Going as far as to say that he's been pretending to be someone he is not. Then he dyed his hair brown.

► LEGO BART In the 25th anniversary special of The Simpsons, "Brick Like Me," Springfield and its residents are turned into Lego characters. Homer is torn between his old life and the new Lego-fied one, where he can finally bond with Lisa and live in a world where "everything fits together and no one gets hurt." Eventually, Lisa ditches him to see the new Survival Games movie, a spoof of The Hunger Games, and Homer must find a way to return to his previous life. D'oh!

▼ NEW GIRL Disney's breakout hit show of 2014 was Girl Meets World — a spinoff of 1990s series Boy Meets World. In the sequel, Cory Matthews and Topanga Lawrence live in New York City — and the plot revolves around the antics of their tween daughter Riley Matthews (Rowan Blanchard) and her best friend Maya Hart (Sabrina Carpenter). Teen stars Blanchard and Carpenter created a buzz as besties both on screen and off, and became style icons thanks to their popular Instagram accounts.

▲ REVOLVING DOORS Late-night television hosts played musical chairs in 2014/2015, with Craig Ferguson, David Letterman and The Daily Show's Jon Stewart vacating their seats. Stephen Colbert took over Letterman's spot and Seth Meyers grabbed the gig at NBC's Late Night (replacing Jimmy Fallon, who had jumped to The Tonight Show early in 2014). The biggest splash was made by English satirist and Daily Show alum John Oliver, who launched HBO's Last Week Tonight. His rants on everything from sugar to net neutrality made him a viral video superstar. (Helga Esteb / Shutterstock.com)

▼ GOODBYE GLEE They laughed, they cried, they sang over 700 songs — but all good Glee must come to an end. In its six seasons, the show made glee club and "gleeks" cool again, introduced young audiences to music from every decade, set the standard for realistic gay youth storylines, and made stars out of Lea Michele, Darren Criss, Chris Colfer — and even non-teen actors Jane Lynch and Matthew Morrison. The final episodes saw plenty of emotion, including an homage to the late actor Cory Monteith, who, for the first four seasons, played quarterback-turned-singer Finn.

► THE FALL OF A FATHER FIGURE

The entertainment world was rocked by the ongoing Bill Cosby scandal, in which over 20 women have gone public with sexual assault allegations, dating back to the 1960s. While no charges have been laid, NBC and Netflix both halted upcoming TV specials with the comedian. Through his lawyer, Cosby refuted all claims and carried on with a standup tour—although protesters disrupted many shows.

▲ AUTOBOTS VS. DECEPTICONS Transformers: Age of Extinction was the only film to pass $1 billion this year — and was the No. 1 movie worldwide. Directed by expert-city-destroyer Michael Bay, the fourth Transformers featured an impressive cast, including Mark Wahlberg, Kelsey Grammer and Stanley Tucci. Even with these “respectable” actors, the movie was widely panned and garnered a slew of Razzie nominations. Yet not surprisingly, the fifth Transformers is expected to land in theatres in 2016. ▲ SILLY SUPERHEROES It seems the world was ready for a superhero who doesn't take himself too seriously. Enter Star Lord from Marvel's Guardians of the Galaxy, played by lovable doofus Chris Pratt. The movie also had an irresistible soundtrack (full of hits from the '70s), a gun-toting raccoon voiced by Bradley Cooper and a dancing Baby Groot. No wonder it left the year's other big-screen superheroes — including Captain America, Spider-Man and X-Men — all eating its dust.

► REEL REVOLUTION If you thought the first two Hunger Games movies were dark, 2014's The Hunger Games: Mockingjay - Part 1 took it to a whole new level. Katniss is living underground, wearing a drab revolutionary uniform and completely estranged from Peeta. But that didn't deter moviegoers. Mockingjay - Part 1 was the year's highest-grossing movie in the U.S. and No. 6 in the worldwide box office. (Murray Close)

► LONG ROAD TO VICTORY It took 12 years to make Boyhood, but Richard Linklater's experiment in patience paid off — in the way of critical acclaim, a Golden Globe for Best Drama and a Best Actress Oscar for Patricia Arquette. Linklater's film, shot from 2002 to 2013 with the same actors, tells the story of a boy growing up with divorced parents in Texas. The music, acting and honesty hit home with audiences — and showed the movie industry that good things come to those who wait.

▲ STRANGER THAN FICTION James Franco and Seth Rogen made a comedy about assassinating Kim Jong-un, called The Interview — and North Koreans took it way too seriously. The country was allegedly behind the cyber attack on the film's studio, Sony Pictures, which leaked employee and celebrity information. Theatres pulled The Interview for fear of repercussions, so Sony released it digitally. Despite bad reviews, way more people saw the film out of curiosity and patriotism than if North Korea had just left well enough alone.

► GRAB A TISSUE The Fault in Our Stars was a major box-office success, thanks to popular source material (John Green's 2012 YA novel of the same name) and two actors with chemistry. Shailene Woodley and Ansel Elgort were perfect as teen cancer patients taking off to Amsterdam. The film pulled in over $300 million at the box office and propelled the book to the top of the bestseller charts again. As the film's characters say, that's "okay." (James Bridges/20th Century Fox/TNS)

▲ SOARING SUCCESS The Academy Award for Best Picture of 2014 went to Birdman. In the film, Michael Keaton plays a washed-up movie superhero attempting to make a comeback on Broadway, while dealing with a narcissistic co-star (Edward Norton) and a recovering addict daughter (Emma Stone). Keaton himself was once a movie superhero, playing Batman in the late 1980s and early 1990s. While Birdman has garnered Keaton critical acclaim, he lost the Oscar for Best Actor to Eddie Redmayne, who played Stephen Hawking in The Theory of Everything.

◀ THE VILLAIN'S TALE Maleficent is the story of Sleeping Beauty, told from the perspective of the evil fairy godmother — played by Angelina Jolie at her villainous best. With sharp black horns, bold red lips and fantastically fierce wings, Jolie was breathtaking. While she was snubbed at the Oscars, the film picked up Best Picture at the People's Choice Awards.

► BYE BYE BILBO It's the end of an era for J.R.R. Tolkien fans. With the release of The Hobbit: Battle of the Five Armies, all of the fantasy writer's middle earth books have been adapted. But fans have had trouble letting go of Bilbo, often asking the actor who played him, Martin Freeman, if he misses the character. Freeman (of BBC's The Office and Sherlock) politely responds, "No, I don't think he's real. And I don't think I am him." So much for fantasy.

▼ ► OFF-SIDE It was a scandal-plagued season for the NFL, beginning with the video of Baltimore Raven Ray Rice knocking out his fiancée in an Atlantic City casino elevator. After initially giving Rice a light sentence, the league changed its policy on domestic violence and began to address it more seriously. Next up was Minnesota Vikings running back Adrian Peterson, who was sent before a grand jury for whipping his four-year-old son with a tree branch. And the season ended with Deflategate, the alleged cheating scandal that cast a pall over Super Bowl winners the New England Patriots.

► HOMETOWN HERO It was the ultimate homecoming when basketball superstar LeBron James announced in July, 2014, that he'd opt out of his contract with the Miami Heat and return to the Cleveland Cavaliers. His home state of Ohio welcomed James back with open arms, despite all the harsh words directed at him when he left in 2010. James won two NBA Championships with the Heat, but cited the desire to someday bring a trophy to Northeast Ohio as the reason for his return.

▼ BRAZIL GETS THE FEVER

Brazil put on an exuberant FIFA World Cup in the summer of 2014. But the host country lost to Germany in the semifinals, before Germany went on to win the tournament. There were plenty of memorable moments, including the U.S. coach, Jürgen Klinsmann, telling American soccer fans to keep their expectations low, dance, and Uruguayan striker Luis Suarez, who was banned from any football-related activity for four months after biting an Italian player on the shoulder.

▲ THROWS LIKE A GIRL

One of the biggest sports celebrities of 2014 was 13-year-old baseball phenom Mo'ne Davis, who landed on the cover of Sports Illustrated after pitching a shutout in the Mid-Atlantic final that sent her Philadelphia team to the Little League World Series. Davis, who throws an impressive 70 miles per hour fastball, was also the first girl to pitch a shutout at the World Series tournament. Meanwhile, baseball isn't even her main sport, as she hopes to go to University of Connecticut on a basketball scholarship and eventually play in the WNBA.

▲ WE STAND ON GUARD FOR THEE
 For the first time in history, O Canada was sung before an NHL game where only U.S. teams were playing. When Pittsburgh hosted Philadelphia at the CONSOL Energy Center — on Oct. 22, 2014, the day of the Ottawa shooting — the audience stood for the Canadian anthem as two maple leaves shone on the ice.

▶ ALL HAIL THE KINGS

The Los Angeles Kings worked hard to make it to the Stanley Cup Finals, coming from behind in the first two playoff series, and playing three consecutive Game 7s, all on the road. So it was a surprise when, in the Finals, they handily beat the New York Rangers four games to one, to win their second Stanley Cup championship in three seasons. Kings right wing Justin Williams won the Conn Smythe Trophy for Stanley Cup MVP for his nine goals and 16 assists in the post-season.

◀ CANADIAN COURT ROYALTY

The world took notice of Canadian tennis in 2014, when the country's two best singles players, Eugenie Bouchard and Milos Raonic, reached the Wimbledon finals and semifinals respectively. The Wimbledon website reported: "Canadian tennis: Something to talk about." While both players lost their matches, it was no less historic — as it was the first time a Canadian man reached the semis at Wimbledon in more than 100 years and the first time a Canadian woman reached the finals of any Grand Slam tournament. At the end of the season, Bouchard was named the WTA's Most Improved Player.

▶ WELCOME TO THE CFL

The summer of 2014 saw the introduction of the Ottawa RedBlacks to the Canadian Football League, the third CFL team to call the capital city home. In its first year out, the RedBlacks struggled and finished last in the league. Meanwhile, the Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Calgary Stampeders met in the 102nd Grey Cup in Vancouver. Thanks to an electric performance from Stampeders' quarterback Bo Levi Mitchell, a six-foot-two, 196-lb. Texan, Calgary bested Hamilton 20-16, and the Ticats' 15-year Grey Cup trophy drought continues.

▲ AN ENGAGING YEAR

In May, 2014, the golf world was focused on Rory McIlroy's private life, after he called off his wedding engagement to tennis pro Caroline Wozniacki. But that was quickly forgotten when he started racking up tournament wins, including his third major (the 2014 Open Championship) before the age of 25 — something only Jack Nicklaus and Tiger Woods have done before him. He went on to win the PGA championship, and was named PGA Player of the Year. He says he'll play for Ireland in the 2016 Olympics, where golf will be a medal event for the first time since 1904.

◀ ROOKIE FROM THE NORTH

Thornhill, Ont.'s Andrew Wiggins was picked No. 1 in the 2014 NBA draft, after an impressive season at the University of Kansas. Wiggins was selected by the Cleveland Cavaliers and for a brief period looked like he was going to play with LeBron James — but the Cavs traded him to the Minnesota Timberwolves for Kevin Love. In Minnesota, Wiggins had a great rookie year, matching up against James, Kevin Durant, and Kobe Bryant, who said of Wiggins: "It was like looking at a reflection of myself 19 years ago."

◀ A JURASSIC DISCOVERY

Dinosaurs were big news in 2014: In May, a farmer in Argentina discovered a new species of titanosaur. By studying the creature's thigh bone, paleontologists determined it was the largest animal known to have walked the Earth: 130 feet long and 65 feet tall. Months later, researchers studying the Pelagornis sandersi, an ancient extinct bird fossil found in South Carolina in 1983, announced that the albatross-like bird had the largest wingspan in recorded history — at 21 feet.

▲▼◀ ONE GIANT LEAP FOR MANKIND

In 2004, the European Space Agency launched the Rosetta spacecraft, armed with the Philae probe, with the goal of landing on a comet in 10 years. On Nov. 12, 2014, Philae made contact with comet 67P/Churyumov-Gerasimenko — and immediately sent back data for scientists to analyze. Unfortunately, the three systems designed to keep Philae in place failed to deploy, and it bounced across the comet, coming to rest in an area too dark for its solar-powered batteries. There is hope it will power up again as the comet moves closer to the sun.

◀ IT'S GETTING HOT HERE

Giving climate-change deniers a run for their money, scientists announced that 2014 was the hottest year on record. According to NASA, the US National Oceanic and Atmospheric Association and the UK Met Office, the global temperature was higher than the 1961-1990 average. The findings were released in a report called "Status of The Global Climate," which was presented to the United Nations in Lima, Peru, as they discussed a new global climate deal to be signed in Paris in 2015.

▲◀◀ THE EBOLA CRISIS

According to the Centers For Disease Control and Prevention, the Ebola outbreak that shocked the world in 2014 was the largest outbreak in history. The first case was a toddler in Guinea who died in December, 2013 — but the number of people infected increased rapidly by March. As the virus spread further away to countries like the United States, the World Health Organization scrambled to find a vaccine. While some parts of Africa have been declared Ebola free, others continue to be affected. At least 9,000 people in West Africa have died because of the virus.

▼ A MATHEMATICAL MILESTONE

For the first time since it was established in 1936, the Fields Medal for mathematics went to a woman. Maryam Mirzakhani, an Iranian-born mathematics professor at Stanford University, was recognized for her contributions to understanding the symmetry of curved surfaces. The medal is often regarded as the mathematics version of the Nobel Prize and is handed out every four years. "I will be happy if it encourages young female scientists and mathematicians," Mirzakhani said of her award.
