Saint Mary's to Honor Five Canadians

More than 450 graduates will receive degrees from Saint Mary's University at Convocation on Monday, May 12, 1980.

Besides the undergraduate and master's degrees conferred on that date, five honorary degrees will be conferred.

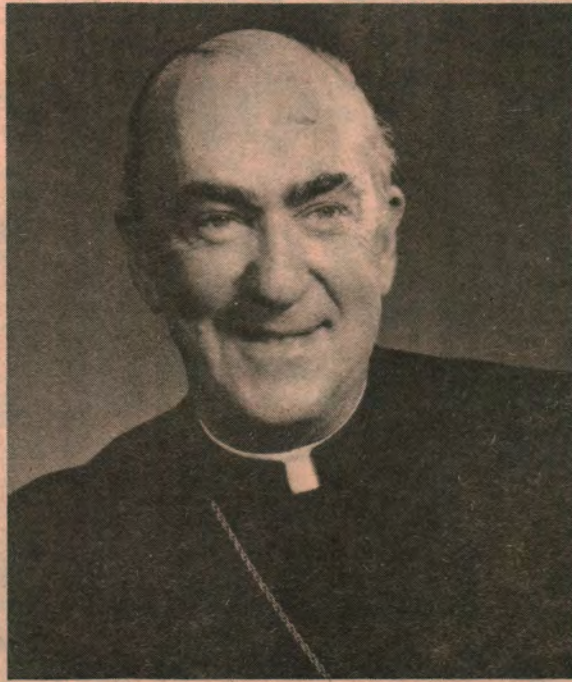

The honorary degree recipients include His Eminence, G. Emmett, Cardinal Carter; Mr. John H. Dickey, Q.C.; Mr. Austin E. Hayes; Mr. David S.H. MacDonald; and Dr. Antonine Maillet.

His Eminence, G. Emmett, Cardinal Carter will have conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Letters.

Cardinal Carter was born in Montréal, and was educated at the Grand Seminary of Montréal and the University of Montréal. He was ordained in 1937 and spent the first 25 years of his priesthood working in various areas of education. Some of his many noteworthy accomplishments are that he was the founder and first president of St. Joseph's Teachers College in Montréal and in 1945 he became the first president of the Thomas More Institute for Adult Education.

His brilliant career in the Church was given its ultimate recognition when in June 1979 he was created Canada's fourth Cardinal by Pope John Paul II.

John H. Dickey, Q.C., will have conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Laws. He is an alumnus of Saint Mary's. He graduated Bachelor of Arts from the then St. Mary's College in 1936 and proceeded to Dalhousie where he completed his LL.B. in 1940. He was created Queen's Counsel in 1957. Mr. Dickey was elected to the House of Commons in 1947 and re-elected in 1948 and 1953. As a Member of Parliament he was a Canadian delegate to the United Nations in 1950. Prior to joining the government, Mr. Dickey served as a major in the Canadian Army during the Second World War. Since leaving politics Mr. Dickey has been prominent in law and business in Nova Scotia and has served with distinction on the boards of many organizations and institutions including a term as a member of the Board of Governors of Saint Mary's University.

The third honorary degree recipient, Austin Hayes, will have conferred on him a Doctor of Laws degree. He was born in Halifax and is an alumnus of Saint Mary's. He graduated as a Bachelor of Commerce in 1937, and has remained closely associated ever since. In fact, for many, his name is synonymous with the modern growth and development of the University. Mr. Hayes was Chairman of the Board of Governors during what was perhaps the most significant period in the history of Saint Mary's. It was he who guided the University through its greatest changes, the culmination of which was the transfer of the University from private to public hands as signified by the proclamation of the new charter of Saint Mary's University in 1970.

An honorary Doctor of Laws degree will be conferred on David MacDonald.

Mr. MacDonald was born on Prince Edward Island in 1936, and received his early education in that province. Upon completion of his formal education at Dalhousie and Pine Hill Divinity Hall, he was ordained a Minister of the United Church of Canada in 1961.

Mr. MacDonald was first elected to the House of Commons in 1965, where he remained until February of this year. During his lengthy tenure in Parliament he served on many committees. His contributions to government and his exceptional abilities were recognized with his appointment to the Federal Cabinet as Secretary of State and Minister of Communications in June 1979.

Mr. MacDonald has long been recognized as an advocate of human rights and a dedicated worker for important public issues. He has recently been appointed to the Institute for Research into Public Policy.

The fifth honorary degree recipient is Dr. Antonine Maillet, who will have conferred on her an honorary Doctor of Letters degree. She is

Father Stewart to Retire

On May 1 Father William Stewart, Acting Academic Vice-President at Saint Mary's University, was honoured at a dinner held at the University. He is retiring after thirty years of service to Saint Mary's.

Last Fall Father Stewart was awarded an honorary degree by Regis College, and the following story was written at that time. However, since it seems to express best all the reasons why Father Stewart will be missed, it was decided to reprint the story.

by Judy Scrimger

If you sat in Father Stewart's office for an hour you would probably meet a cross-section of the University community and you would see in action the warmth, charm and humour that has given Father Stewart almost legendary status at Saint Mary's.

He is more than willing to talk about Saint Mary's as it has developed over the thirty years he has been on campus but he smoothly avoids talking about the man behind the legend. When he does talk about his achievements his enthusiasm for being at the centre of the action comes through clearly, but he is quick to deny that he has played a special role.

"When you have survived as long as I have you realize that what you yourself have to do with things is often very little. It's more the accident of being in a job or a time or a place. Anybody else could have done what I have been doing," he says.

Not just anybody could replace Father Stewart, according to his students, colleagues and friends.

"Maybe a hundred people all together could have done the things he's done," says Mary J. Martin, a member of the Dramatic Society. "He's amazing. He always gets everything done but he never seems to be rushed. He will always take time to talk to a student."

Father Stewart's contribution to the Dramatic Society at Saint Mary's is well known. He constructs the props, dismantles the sets, sweeps the stage and boosts morale. According to Elizabeth Hagen, a second-year student who is secretary of the Society, "He can transform paper bags into roast beef and make lanterns out of soup cans." She adds that "Once you know 'Father Bill', he's a friend for life."

His former students bring their children to visit him and it's no surprise that the Academic Vice-President takes time to make a finger puppet for a visiting five-year-old. But this is no ordinary vice-president and he did not take the usual approach to climbing the administrative ladder.

When he came to Saint Mary's in 1950 he never intended to stay.

"I was heading off to Rome to finish my doctoral studies when my Father Provincial sent me to Halifax to teach Philosophy for a year because a faculty member had become ill. I had my bags packed for the first five or six years I was here, still expecting to go off to finish my degree," he says without a trace of regret.

Since that first assignment as a substitute teacher he has held a variety of administrative posts including Acting President, Dean of Arts, Dean of Studies and University Librarian as well as being a member of the Senate and Board of Governors.

"As an administrator he's immensely energetic. He's a workaholic. I don't think he has ever said no to any job," says Arthur Monahan, Chairman of the Philosophy Department, where Father Stewart is a full professor.

But the man who has held nearly every administrative position at Saint Mary's at one time or another, sees himself as a teacher, first and foremost.

"I never intended to get into administration, but as a Jesuit you don't always have that much choice. Although I don't dislike administration, I find teaching more satisfying because you are dealing with young people. I like young people and the whole educational process. It is, after all, what I set out to do—to make myself a teacher."

And although the demands of the office of Academic Vice-President are substantial, he continues to teach a fourth-year philosophy course.

Has he seen any changes in students over the years?

"I don't think that young people change fundamentally. I think there is still the same generosity and idealism that students have always had. Their focus has changed perhaps."

He puts the blame for student disenchantment with university education on the government leaders of the sixties.

"In a sense they presented a false picture of what university was all about. The government was funding universities to a large extent and as a result they made them more vocationally oriented. You came to university to get a job.

"To me this is not what the university is all about. It's not primarily there to teach you how to do this or that, but to inform you, to educate you, to make you a better person and to transfer knowledge, wherever that knowledge happens to lead you. If it leads to a job, well and good, but that's not the primary aim of the university.

"To make it job-oriented as the government and others tried to do was a mistake and students now realize that leaving the university clutching bits of parchment is not a guarantee of a job. Naturally there is disenchantment on the part of the students."

This disenchantment has led in part to the declining enrolment in universities across the country. Father Stewart believes Saint Mary's will face its most serious challenge in the 1980's.

Although he uses phrases like "operating in the black" and "financial survival" he focuses mainly on what he calls "the human factor". He points out that many universities are already laying off faculty.

"You cannot simply say goodbye to people who have served you well for a number of years. The most important resource the university has is the human element—the faculty and students. How the university is going to cope with this situation so that people are treated fairly and justly is going to require foresight and careful planning."

Although he is retiring, there is little doubt that Father Stewart will, in some way, be part of the planning for the future of Saint Mary's. And it's unlikely that he will "retire" from his support of the Dramatic Society.

He describes his involvement in drama as being "part design and part accident".

"I started in drama as an actor. Because it was always a problem to find people who could drive nails and connect electrical outlets, I found myself doing both acting and the technical things because I am the handyman type.

"When I was at Loyola I was made stage manager of the F.C. Smith Auditorium which gave me considerable experience in working with professionals. However, it became a very time-consuming interest and when I was sent to Halifax, I decided I was not going to get involved in drama and I stuck to that resolution for four years.

"In 1954 the gymnasium was being finished and they decided to put on more elaborate plays than they had been doing at the University and I was asked for advice. When I went down to the stage and saw so many things being done incorrectly I took off my coat and got to work and I have been at it ever since."

In 1965 he was officially put in charge of drama and was asked by the President to involve Saint Mary's in outside organizations and groups. That led to the Nova Scotia Drama League and the Dominion Drama Festival.

According to Father Stewart, "When you get involved in these groups, first thing you know they put you on executive committees. If you hang around long enough you get these jobs."

"These jobs" included being a governor of the Dominion Drama Festival and two terms as Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Cultural Federations of Nova Scotia, an organization which he was instrumental in founding.

It is for this kind of voluntary participation in the life of the community and his dedication to the University that Regis College honoured Father Stewart on November 26, and why he will be missed by everyone in the community.

Exhibition Marks Retirement

Commander C. Anthony Law will retire as Artist-in-Residence at Saint Mary's University on September 1, 1980. His retirement will be marked by a special exhibition of his work in the Saint Mary's Art Gallery. The exhibition, "C. Anthony Law—A Retrospective", will open on June 4 and will run until June 29.

Cdr. Law was appointed Artist-in-Residence in 1967. During his term he has served the Saint Mary's community in a number of ways—from his teaching and his exhibitions to the designing and painting of sets for the Dramatic Society. It is hoped that his retirement will be only an official one and that the unofficial support that he has offered the University over the years will continue.

Cdr. Law's work falls mainly into two categories. Perhaps most well known today are his landscapes and seascapes, the latter especially from his trips to the high Arctic. Among his teachers is included Frederick Varley, one of Canada's well-known group of landscape artists—the Group of Seven.

The other paintings, for which Cdr. Law may be even better known by some, are his naval war paintings. Cdr. Law served in the Royal Canadian Navy from 1940 to 1966. He was appointed official Naval War Artist in 1943, and again in 1945 to 1946.

The works of Cdr. Law have been exhibited across Canada—his first "one man show" being in Quebec City in 1937—and abroad—his most recent exhibition being shown at the Mall Galleries in London in November 1979. His work is also represented in a number of prestigious collections and he has served on a variety of fine arts boards of directors.

The forthcoming Saint Mary's exhibition will include paintings covering forty-two years of work, including early landscapes, war paintings,

Tony Law at work on a Dramatic Society set

Arctic paintings, and very recent works from a trip to Ireland in April of 1980. The paintings will come from various public and private collections.

Father William Stewart, a good friend and colleague of Cdr. Law's, will open the exhibition on June 4. For many years the Dramatic Society sets have been designed and painted by Cdr. Law, and built by Father Stewart. The exhibition is being supported by The Naval Officers' Association.

"C. Anthony Law—A Retrospective" will open on June 4 at 8:00 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

Early job search pays off

Many Saint Mary's University students who will be receiving their diplomas at the May 12 Convocation will not have to worry about looking for employment after graduation. Jobs may be scarce and the economic situation not too bright, but for many of those students who signed up for interviews at the Canada Employment Centre on Campus as early as last October 15, their employment worries are now over.

Recruiters, 71 of them, began visiting the Canada Employment Centre early last fall. By January 15 many students had received and accepted job offers after attending interviews with a variety of employers. Several large national employers were looking for graduating students to work in various parts of Canada. The majority of students will be staying in Nova Scotia to work. Salaries being offered ranged from $11,000 to $20,000 a year depending upon the particular company, the student's degree and the location of the job. Employers from as far west as Alberta were on campus this past year according to John Rodgers, Manager of the Canada Employment Centre on Campus at Saint Mary's.

Accounting majors, marketing, commerce, computer science, engineering, geology, and Master of Business Administration students were most in demand by employers this year.

A freeze on hirings by most Federal Government Departments meant that fewer students would be going to work with the civil service this year. But no decrease was noticed in the number of employers from the private sector who recruited at Saint Mary's this year according to the campus employment office manager.

Graduating students who obtained employment were not confined to one faculty. A Bachelor of Science graduate majoring in Geology will be working in Newfoundland with Shell Canada while another Science graduate majoring in Mathematics will be working in Ontario with Monsanto (Canada) Limited. A Bachelor of Arts student who has Sociology for a major has accepted employment with Collins Barrow, an Accounting firm, while a Bachelor of Commerce student with Accounting as a major will be working in the Halifax office of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company. One 1980 M.B.A. graduate will be starting his career with Imperial Oil Limited in Halifax this year. Canada Starch Limited hired a Bachelor of Commerce student in Business Administration while another Bachelor of Commerce majoring in Management will be working at the Bank of Nova Scotia in Sydney.

Banks, oil companies, department stores, insurance companies, mineral exploration companies, finance organizations, accounting firms, chemical companies, manufacturing and transportation companies, food processors and distributors, industrial and transportation firms as well as a few government departments made up the bulk of the recruiters who recruited this past year at Saint Mary's.

Convocation notes to grads

Invitations—To Convocation and Grad Week Events:

—May be obtained from Mavis LaRocque or Paula McGrath, Student Services, 4th floor, O'Donnell-Hennessey Student Centre.

—will be available until Thursday, May 8.

—each graduate is entitled to receive three single invitations to Convocation which must be presented by guest(s); if you require more than three invitations your name will be placed on a waiting list and additional invitations can be picked up the week of Monday, May 5.

Academic Hoods and Gowns:

—are available on loan, and may be collected on Thursday, May 8 and Friday, May 9 from 1:00 p.m.-7:00 p.m. in Room L172. Master's grads are encouraged to pick up their academic attire on Thursday, May 8.

—grads are advised to please ensure that they pick up their Dean's card at the same time.

—gowns must be returned to this same room (L172) by 5:00 p.m. on Monday, May 12.

Note: Gowns returned after Convocation day do not go to L172, but are to be returned directly to the Registrar's Office. Be sure to have your name marked off the list when you return your attire.

Posting of Grad List and President's Reception:

—invitations are extended only to graduating students.

—the grad list will be posted immediately prior to the reception and will include the names of those students who successfully completed the program requirements in May, 1980.

—marks will be available at the same time from the Information Desk in the Student Centre Lobby.

—marks will not be available for students with any outstanding debts to the University—Business Office, Residence, Library, etc.

—since the several offices involved will not be open when the grades are being distributed and since the details of the problem are not made available to the Registrar (only a list of names), it will not be possible to check the validity of the information which resulted in the grades being withheld. Therefore, to avoid any disappointment students are urged to ensure that they are not indebted to any of the offices noted prior to the posting of the graduate list.

Convocation Program:

—names added to the grad list after the Senate meeting of May 8, 1980 will not appear in the program.

On the list of potential May graduates are a number of students from the families of the Saint Mary's community.

These include three students graduating with Bachelor of Arts degrees. Martha Mary Hayes is a twin daughter of Austin E. Hayes, former Chairman of the Board of Governors of Saint Mary's University, and one of the five honorary degree recipients for this year. Patricia Erickson is the wife of Anthropology professor, Dr. Paul Erickson, who will soon assume the Chairmanship of that department. David Delahunt is the son of Dr. Austin Delahunt, one of the doctors in Saint Mary's health service.

Graduating with a Bachelor of Commerce degree is Cynthia Hallett, niece of Professor G.B. Hallett, Chairman of the English Department. Anne Marie Bridgeo, also graduating in Commerce, is the daughter of the former Dean of Science, Dr. W. Bridgeo, who now teaches Chemistry.

Prakash Kabe, son of Mathematics professor, Dr. D.G. Kabe, will graduate with a Diploma in Engineering.

Saint Mary's Alumni Named Sexton Scholars

Three graduates from the Saint Mary's Engineering Division have been named in this year's list of Sexton Scholars at the Nova Scotia Technical College. Bimal Kumar and K.S. Tiong, both in their Junior year of the Civil Engineering Program, and John Porter, in his Senior year of the Mechanical Engineering Program, were honoured.

The distinction of being Sexton Scholars is awarded by faculty members to those who have obtained a cumulative academic standing of 85% or higher in the "Tech" portion of the engineering program. Bimal Kumar, K.S. Tiong, and John Porter began their engineering program with a Diploma in Engineering from Saint Mary's University.

Angus Capstick

Angus Capstick, who will be graduating with a Bachelor of Commerce degree, has been chosen as Valedictorian for the morning convocation ceremony. As valedictorian at the morning ceremony, he will represent the graduating classes of the Commerce and Education faculties.

Mr. Capstick is the son of Angus and Annie Capstick of East Bay, Cape Breton. He graduated from Riverview High School in Coxheath, Cape Breton.

Mr. Capstick is well known on the Saint Mary's campus, being very active in student politics and other activities. He served as SRC Treasurer in 1978-79 and as SRC President in 1979-80. He has also served as manager of the Saint Mary's Hockey Huskies, as a campus police officer, and as a member of The Presidential Search Committee. At this year's Charter Day Awards Mr. Capstick won the Father Hennessey Award.

Upon graduation, Mr. Capstick will take a position with The Bank of Nova Scotia in Sydney. Another area of interest for the future is politics.

Phyllis Flemming, graduating with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, Honours, has been chosen Valedictorian for the afternoon convocation ceremony. She will be representing the graduating classes of the Arts and Science faculties. Ms. Flemming is the daughter of Rose Flemming of Anguilla, West Indies and graduated from The Valley Secondary School.

Ms. Flemming's major is in Sociology and she plans to go on to graduate school in that field. Her academic record at Saint Mary's has been high, being placed on the Dean's List every year and receiving an Honourable Mention for academic achievement at this year's Charter Day awards. Outside the classroom, Ms. Flemming has been active in track and field and intramural sports, the Caribbean and Sociology societies, and activities for children at the Izaak Walton Killam Hospital.

Students being Hooded at Convocation

Lena Scallion

Lena Scallion and Francine Chiasson will represent the Saint Mary's graduating class of 1980 in the symbolic hooding ceremony at this year's Convocation.

The symbolic hooding of students at Convocation is not only a significant historical ceremony, but is today one of the ways in which particular students are honoured. Two students from the graduating class are chosen by a selection committee comprised of students and faculty and administration members to represent the class—one at morning Convocation; one in the afternoon.

Lena Scallion of Lower Sackville will be graduating with a Bachelor of Commerce degree. A mature student, Ms. Scallion is the mother of two teenaged children. Like many mature students she came to Saint Mary's having to pick up a high school course during her first year of university. Since then Ms. Scallion has not only gained the respect of faculty and fellow students, this year she won the Society of Management Accountants bursary award. Ms. Scallion plans to continue with a C.A. after graduation. She will be hooded at morning Convocation.

Francine Chiasson will be hooded at the afternoon Convocation ceremony. Ms. Chiasson is the daughter of Gerard and Imelda Chiasson of South West Margaree, Cape Breton. She graduated from Margaree Forks District High. While at Saint Mary's she has participated in a number of activities, particularly Saint Mary's Kamp, in which she held the positions of Counsellor and Co-Director. Kamp is a recreational program for underprivileged children. Ms. Chiasson was honoured as Sophomore of the Year in 1977-78, received a Charter Day Certificate of Merit, and presently serves on the Senior Class Committee. With a major in Atlantic Canada Studies, she hopes to work in a related field and has interests in rural Nova Scotia.

Symbolic Hooding Ceremony

To help explain the significance of the hooding of one student at each of the Convocation ceremonies, the text of the Symbolic Hooding Ceremony is provided here.

The academic hood is the universal symbol of academic achievement. It is part of a long and venerable tradition. European universities are known to have had statutes specifying academic costume as early as the 12th century. In medieval times education was largely the province of certain religious orders, and the image of the monk, whose very functional robe and hood protected him from the inclemency of the weather or the drafts of his stoney retreats, is very familiar. Those worsted robes have given way to the decorative gown of poplin or silk, and the hood has become a symbolic flag, denoting by the color and size of its lining and trim the institution and degree of its bearer.

The Saint Mary's bachelor's hood is lined with the University colours—red satin with a white chevron—while the master's hood is lined with red satin only. The outer edge is trimmed with white for Arts, gold for Science, grey for Commerce, and white with pale blue for Education, colours which are internationally recognized to signify these faculties. The hood, then, symbolizes the degree conferred.

The placing of the hood upon the shoulders of the candidate also has come to have a symbolic significance. Like the dubbing of a knight, hooding is the symbolic gesture with which the honour is conferred. It marks the ritualistic acceptance of the student into an international community of scholars. In placing this hood upon the shoulders of a representative of the graduating class, the entire class is welcomed to the company and responsibility of that academic community.

Noteworthy Notes

PROFESSOR GAVIN BOYD (Political Science) gave papers on "U.S. Policy towards Indochina" and on "The Association of Southeast Asian Nations" at the International Studies Association meeting in Los Angeles March 19-22. The paper on U.S. policy towards Indochina will be incorporated into a study of East Asian politics for the International Public Policy Research Corporation, Washington D.C. The paper on the Association of Southeast Asian Nations will be a chapter in a volume on Region Building in the Pacific which Professor Boyd is preparing for Pergamon Press, New York. An earlier paper on China, given at the New England Asian Studies Conference last October, will appear in a volume on Political Change and Foreign Policies which will be edited by Professor Boyd with Charles Hermann, Director of the Mershon Center at Ohio State University.

DR. V.M. CATANO (Psychology) presented a paper entitled "A comparison of housewives' and working wives' job satisfaction" at the Eastern Psychological Association in Hartford, Connecticut in April of 1980.

DR. CATANO also made a presentation of his paper "Industrial / organizational Psychology: Toward public accountability" to the Association of Psychologists in Nova Scotia, in Halifax in April.

JIM GODIN, a student in the Chemistry Department (graduating Honors Chemistry), has been awarded an $8,500 / year NSERC Post-graduate Scholarship for 1980-81.

JIM LOVEYS, a student in the Mathematics Department (graduating Honors Mathematics), has been awarded an $8,500 / year NSERC Post-graduate Scholarship for 1980-81.

DR. JOHN R. MACCORMACK (History / Director of the Institute of Human Values), gave the Keynote Address at the Philadelphia Society's Sixteenth National Meeting held in Chicago, April 11-12, 1980. The theme of the Conference was "Religion in the Contemporary Free Society."

DR. MACCORMACK then proceeded to Calgary to attend a Conference on "Advanced Study and Research in the Humanities: Directions and Problems", sponsored by the Calgary Institute for the Humanities, at which ten Directors of Canadian Ethics Institutes and other resource persons were in attendance to discuss matters of common concern.

DR. ROGER MACDONALD (English) contributed a paper entitled "Human Imperfection and the Administration of Secular Justice" to a seminar on Shakespeare's Measure for Measure at the annual meeting of the Shakespeare Association of America in Cambridge, Massachusetts on April 5.

D.S. MAZMANIAN, a student in the Psychology Department (graduating Honors Psychology) and DR. V.M. CATANO (Psychology) presented a paper entitled "Observational learning of a lever-press response when conspecifics operate on different schedules of reinforcement" at the Atlantic Provinces Inter-University Committee of Science, Undergraduate Psychology Conference in St. John's, Newfoundland, April, 1980.

DR. EARL J. ROBINSON and DR. STEPHEN J. TURNER (Finance and Management Science) have had a paper, entitled "Improving Library Effectiveness: A Proposal for Applying Fuzzy Set Concepts in the Management of Large Collections", reviewed and accepted for presentation at the ALA / LAMA Preconference to be held in New York; it will be published in the conference proceedings.

DR. HERMANN F. SCHWIND (Management) attended the Spring Research conference of the Association for University Business and Economic Research, on March 21 and 22 in Washington, D.C.

DEBRA A. WILKINSON, a first-year student majoring in Geology at Saint Mary's, won a pair of binoculars, a prize awarded by Zeiss Jena Instruments of Toronto for proficiency in optical mineralogy.

Institute to host workshop

Saint Mary's University will play host to an Atlantic regional workshop on May 17 and 18, to examine recent research and suggest future directions in the study of the relations between technology and society. Sponsored by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada and organized by the Institute of Human Values at Saint Mary's, the meeting will bring together about thirty academics, government officials, businessmen, professionals, and journalists from the four Atlantic provinces.

Subjects to be dealt with under the general heading "The Human Context for Science and Technology" (HCST) include: genetic engineering and other bio-ethical issues; the combined revolution in computers and telecommunications; the challenge of the limits-to-growth, conserver-society, and appropriate-technology movements; the place of public inquiries, technology assessments, and social science techniques in formulating public policy in complex technical issues like nuclear power, frontier energy developments, and telecommunications.

Papers will not be read at this meeting. Instead, people from a variety of backgrounds will exchange views. This workshop is part of an effort by the Council to map out a burgeoning new field of study and to establish strategic funding priorities for future research.

Dr. J.R. MacCormack, director of the Institute of Human Values at Saint Mary's, is Atlantic regional coordinator for the HCST project and organizer of the May workshop. He regards this as a natural extension of the work of the Institute over the past several years at Saint Mary's, in particular the problem seminars on work and alienation, and computers and society.

Mace New Addition to Saint Mary's Convocation

Besides having a new President and a new graduating class, this year's Convocation will have another new addition. The Saint Mary's University mace will be put to its first ceremonial use at the 1980 Convocation. The mace itself is brand new, with the University receiving it officially from its makers at H.M.C. Dockyard in a ceremony on Thursday, May 8.

The mace was originally an offensive weapon made of iron or steel—a strong, heavy, and often specialized club, capable of breaking through armour. About the sixteenth century the mace began undergoing a change in its usage—from a weapon to a ceremonial symbol. Basically, it became a symbol of royal authority, and then a symbol of other forms of authority. In the case of a university the mace symbolizes primarily the authority to grant degrees and for this reason it is customarily carried at the lead of the convocation procession and rests in a prominent place during the conferring of degrees.

In the Saint Mary's University Convocation procession the mace will be carried by the Marshal of Convocation, Chairman of Senate, Dr. Arthur Monahan.

Saint Mary's mace is made of oak, with a cast brass crown, and brass plates carrying traditional ceremonial engravings. The prominent head of the mace features a cross—an extension of the oak body—which extends above the brass crown which encircles it.

The mace was designed by George Somers, Director of the Physical Plant, and drawn by Clement Rodrigue. It was made in the Ship Repair Atlantic workshops by Don Wright, Bob Mills, and Bob Stoneman, under the supervision of Gerry Arnold. Vice-Admiral John Allan, Commander Maritime Command, will present the mace to Dr. Monahan on May 8.

Saint Mary's to Welcome Chinese Students

Three students from the People's Republic of China will be studying at Saint Mary's University this summer. Mr. Tang Chung-hua, Mr. Yao Erh-hsien, and Mr. Yuan Dong-bin have been studying English language and literature at the University of Toronto under the program of cultural exchanges administered by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council. This is the same exchange program which sponsored Professor Mary Boyd's two years of study in the People's Republic of China.

The three students will arrive in Halifax in late June and will attend courses in the second summer session. Anyone who is interested in offering hospitality to these students is asked to call Mary Boyd at 422-7331, extension 267.

Group Equity Values

For the information of Saint Mary's faculty and staff concerned with pension contributions, the following figures are provided by Dr. J.J. Vorstermans, Department of Economics.

Multi-Cultural Youth of Nova Scotia Conference

More than 200 young people between the ages of 15 and 25 will be attending a provincial conference on "Youth Inter-Cultural Growth in Nova Scotia" at the International Education Centre, Saint Mary's University from May 15 to 18.

The Conference is being sponsored by the Multi-Cultural Youth of Nova Scotia, an association of young people who are interested in learning more about their cultural heritages.

Sunil Dhar, an engineering student at Nova Scotia Technical College and one of the conference organizers, said there will be several workshops on a variety of topics including multi-cultural education in the schools, human rights, and the problems of young people who are recent immigrants or the sons and daughters of recent immigrants to Canada.

The Association includes young people of Scottish, Irish, Greek, Caribbean, Ukrainian, American, German, Italian, Indonesian, Malaysian, Chinese and black North American descent. Anyone between the ages of 15 and 25 who is interested in learning more about his / her cultural heritage is welcome to attend the conference, and become a member of the Association.

The Conference is being funded by the Secretary of State and there will be a small registration fee of two dollars which covers the cost of the sessions, meals and accommodation. Late registration will take place from six p.m. to nine p.m. on May 15.

For further details call the International Education Centre, Saint Mary's University, 422-7361 ext. 262.

Saint Mary's to Honor Five Canadians

considered by some to be the leading personage in the Acadian cultural renaissance of recent years. She is also considered by some, as her 1979 receipt of the Prix Goncourt indicates, to be the most outstanding literary talent in Canada today.

She was born in Bouctouche, New Brunswick, and educated there, in Memramcook, Moncton, Montréal and at Laval where she did a doctoral thesis on Rabelais, the 16th century writer whose language and idiom has affinities with traditional Acadian speech. Dr. Maillet taught in universities of her native province and Québec until 1977 when she began to devote herself exclusively to her writing. While her plays, her stories, her six novels, and above all "Pelagie-le-Charette", which won her the Goncourt, gather much of their strength from her evocation of the linguistic, folkloric, and other traditions of "Acadie", her greatest appeal is based on "La Sagouine". "La Sagouine" is a series of monologues by a loguacious charwoman whom many have seen as an "anti-Evangeline" figure reflecting the present drama of Acadian society which is striving no longer for mere survival but for renewal and creativity as well.

His Eminence, G. Emmett, Cardinal Carter, will speak at Convocation in the morning when degrees will be conferred on the graduates of the Faculties of Commerce and Education.

Mr. David MacDonald will speak at Convocation in the afternoon when degrees will be conferred on the graduates of the Faculties of Arts and Science.
