

No Room for Students in the S.U.B.

By Nancy Duxbury

The fears of the past are now becoming a reality at SMU.

The space available at the Student Centre for students to hang-out between classes is inadequate for the size of the present student body.

Students like to head to the cafeteria to sit down and relax during the day, that is, providing they can find an empty table. "During rush times—popular times when people don't have classes—the cafeteria is packed," says one student.

In 1970, feelings that the new facilities were not large enough overshadowed the opening of the Centre.

The facilities open to the student body at that time included the cafeteria and two lounges on the first floor as well as a games room, a lounge, and a television-music area on the third floor, each filling a wing of the building.

Today the third floor consists of conference rooms and the alumni office and lounge.

Shrinkage of student space has been an ongoing process. Last year the games room was moved to the first floor from the third. A Quiet Lounge, previously filling this space, was a "complete waste of space" according to one off-campus student, since few people seemed to use it.

Even the games room has useage problems. In the evenings, students must go through the Pub to get to it; "If you can't get into the Pub, you're out of luck," a student complained.

"The only way students have a place to go is if they join a society," affirmed Kim Mitchellmore, News Director at CFMS. Student society offices are all located on the fifth floor, the only other floor designated for control by students.

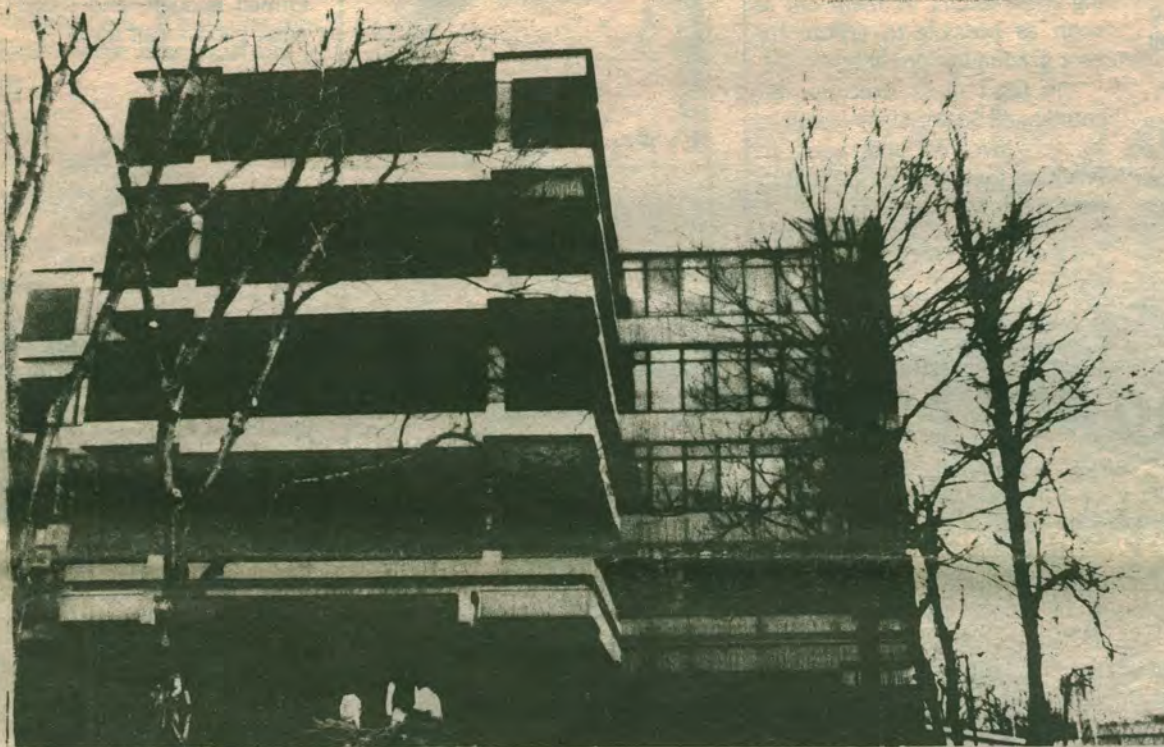

Presently, there is a waiting list of student groups desiring to obtain office space in the SUB.

The building was originally designed to be six stories high, but, due to financial problems, it was cut to five. It's designed structurally to extend another three floors should the need arise.

In 1970, many Santamarians felt that the building's design was not planned too well. Today, both students and staff find the SUB lacking in effectiveness. Debi Woodford, secretary in the Athletics Department, believes there is "not good utilization of space" in the SUB.

The building's lack of facilities led to renovations, converting a conference room to offices, on the fourth floor. This has produced insufficient ventilation and heating control in the Athletics area. In addition, a quiet room or small kitchen for employees is lacking.

A vacancy will develop when the Athletics Department, presently filling eight offices and a reception area, moves to the new Recreation Centre. A representative from Council said the area is under Administration's control.

Tuition and Differential Fees Reassessed

By Raffi Balmanoukian

The much-discussed and widely-vilefied MacLennan Report on Post-Secondary Education has been nothing if not controversial. Now, amid protests against high tuition and differential fees, the report is back in the news.

Among the 115 recommendations of the report is one suggesting that differentials, now set so that foreign students cover 60% of the cost of their education, be increased so that their tuition covers 100% of the cost by the academic year 1990-91. That means that foreign students would have to pay, at today's rates, $7250.00 per year for the average Arts, Commerce, or Science course — a rate higher than many prestigious American or European Universities. Specialized programmes, such as those offered at the Atlantic Veterinary College, can run as high as $29,000.

As it stands, the average Nova Scotian student pays $1464. per year on tuition, or 17.5% of the cost of their education. This is the highest rate in Canada.

Another aspect to the continuing saga of differentials and tuitions is the possibility that differentials will be imposed for non-Atlantic students studying in Nova Scotia. Such action was actually recommended last year for the Atlantic Veterinary College, but the suggestion was quickly dropped in the face of concerted public opposition.

These are only a few of the many financially-related propositions being considered by the government of Nova Scotia. Tuitions, for all students, may almost double. There may be dramatic changes in bursary and student loan plans. Exemptions in differential fees may be implemented for students from nations considered by the OECD to be among the 25 poorest on earth. The MacLennan Commission report is now being considered in detail by the Ministry of Education and action on some or all of the recommendations may be expected within the present school year.

The Maritime Provinces Higher Education Commission, which recommends differential fees to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island governments, has not, as yet, recommended such drastic action on foreign and non-Atlantic differentials as suggested in the MacLennan report and others. Nevertheless, tuitions and differentials are set by the individual province; and in the face of ever-increasing belt-tightening with regards to education, related action in the coming months may be dramatic.

Tom McInnis Speaks at SMU

By Raffi Balmanoukian

On Tuesday, November 4, about 20 political science and other interested students attended a question-and-answer session with Tom MacInnis, Nova Scotia Minister of Education. Although the hour-and-forty-five-minute session, organized by the political science society, was taken up mostly in answering a wide variety of questions, the minister spent some time discussing the MacLennan Royal Commission Report on Post-Secondary Education, saying that his office is studying each of the recommendations carefully and that action, if any, may possibly be forthcoming in the next three months.

Students of all political persuasions grilled MacInnis on a variety of political and social issues. On the issue of patronage, MacInnis denied that there was any patronage in his riding of Halifax-Eastern Shore, until a student rose to say that he got a job in his riding through the Halifax-Eastern Shore YPCS, an announcement that also made the news in the Metro newspapers' coverage of the event.

Students also asked MacInnis about lack of leadership in Nova Scotia over the recently-awarded F-18 maintenance project, which went to Canadair of Montreal over IMP of Halifax, as well as Premier Buchanan's agreement with Prime Minister Mulroney to limit transfer payments to the provinces.

MacInnis denied this lack of leadership, in addition to dismissing questions regarding a possible run by the minister for Buchanan's job when he retires.

Grad Class Update

by Nikki Creelman
and Faith Drinnan

There was a meeting of the Senior Class on Thursday, November 6. The turnout was fairly impressive (approximately 30) considering the approaching long week-end and the documentary on Bob White being shown at the same time.

Decisions made at the Convocations Committee meeting October 31 were relayed to those present. These decisions included:

1) The Presidents Reception, which kicks off Grad Week, will be held the evening of May 5th. This reception, given by Dr. Ozmon, will take place in the Multi-Purpose Room and only members of the Senior Class (not their guests) are invited. At this time, the graduation list will be posted and grade report forms will be available for graduates to collect.

2) The Grad Ball and Dinner will be held Friday, May 8 at the World Trade and Convnetion Centre. The music and menu have yet to be decided.

3) The Baccalaureate Service will be held Sunday, May 10 at 4:00 p.m. in the Canadian Martyr's Church. This is a 45 minute Ecumenical Service of prayer and song as well as a short (and traiditionally excellent) address. A reception will follow which will be one of the few occasions for many parents and guests to be on campus.

4) Convocation Day is Monday, May 11 and will take place at the Metro Centre, commencing at 9:30 a.m. At this time graduating students of all faculties will receive their diplomas.

Several committees were established to oversee the organization and implementation of activities to be held throughout the year and during grad week.

A letter and questionnaire are being mailed to all potential graduates this week. It is imperative that all students receiving these letters fill them out as soon as possible to ensure the best graduation possible.

The Grad Class Executive encourage all Senior Class Members to get involved and celebrate reaching their goal of graduating from Saint Mary's.

The winning ticket of the 2nd SMUCAPS 50/50 football loto was ticket +59, and we extend our congratulations to the winner. The cash prize is being held at the Information Desk in the SUB, and the winner has until Nov. 21 to claim the prize. The winning ticket must be presented at this time. Thanks to all who supported our society in this event.

CFS Fails at the Hill

OTTAWA (CUP)—Canada's student leaders failed to win significant political points during recent Parliament Hill meetings with representatives of the three major parties.

More than 100 members of the Canadian Federation of Students, holding a semiannual general meeting in Ottawa, confronted caucuses of the Liberal, New Democratic and Progressive Conservative parties Nov. 4, but were given little more than warm promises from the opposition and evasive answers from the government.

Carefully planned questions, on issues such as student aid, federal-provincial funding arrangements and student unemployment, were delivered to each caucus, though no time was given for follow-up questions or debate.

While the Liberals and New Democrats fielded near-full caucuses, with respective leaders

John Turner and Ed Broadbent in attendance, the Conservatives decided to send only Jean Charest, minister of state for youth.

Charest headed a delegation consisting mostly of backbenchers and bureaucrats. Other ministers with portfolios relevant to students and youth, including secretary of state David Crombie and employment minister Benoit Bouchard, declined CFS invitations to hear student concerns.

"We're a little disappointed that other parties were able to bring out more of their caucuses," CFS chair Tony Macerollo told the Tory caucus.

Charest, who answered most questions, talked mostly about student unemployment rates. Macerollo said Charest's lukewarm answers were riddled with inaccuracies, adding "if Charest thinks he's pulling something on us, he's sadly mistaken."

Responses from the Liberal and NDP caucuses, chaired by post-secondary critics Roland de Corneille and Lynn McDonald, were marked by enthusiastic yet predictable answers.

"You're preaching to the converted," said McDonald, adding the Mulroney government is better able to fund post-secondary education and research than it claims.

"Don't buy the line we're living beyond our means. We're not," said McDonald. "We spend less on health and education than most (western) countries — Holland, Italy, England, Ireland — countries with much less resources than Canada."

de Corneille, the head of a Liberal task force on post-secondary education due to report to this month's national party convention, said Canadian youth face "a very serious crisis" with high unemployment rates, rising fees, and skyrocketing student aid debt loads.

"More Canadians are seeing that education is not a cost, but an investment," said de Corneille.

Although opposition MPs were quick to support the federation's causes during caucus meetings, little attention was given to student concerns later in the House of Commons.

During question period, McDonald was the only MP to raise any education-related questions. She asked Crombie if the government is considering a solution to rising debt loads.

"I'll be happy to meet with (anyone) to deal with the situation," Crombie said.

Many CFS delegates found the caucus meetings futile.

"I thought this was the biggest ass-kiss of all," said Chris Spiteri, a student council vice-president at the University of Ottawa.

University of Victoria delegate Keith Piddington described the federation's performance as "very quiet, muted and stodgy".

Piddington said CFS made a poor attempt at attracting media coverage. "I was looking for something with a bit more spark, a bit more drama, and a bit more fire," he said.

"They're going to wonder back home what we're doing here. I think they're (CFS) afraid of offending anyone," he said.

But Allan Sharp, president of the Canadian Association of University Teachers, which coached students on lobbying techniques, said students should not have expected too much to come from the caucus meetings.

"I don't think debate is an effective lobby tool," he said. "The crucial thing is that students hear the clear disinformation and the lack of knowledge that exists (in the government)."

Macerollo, who was re-elected CFS chair during the federation meetings, promised to change the lobby format for next year's meeting.

Nazi Skin Head Punks Invade Montreal

MONTREAL (CUP) — A recent series of violent attacks on Montrealers by a group of skinhead punks have prompted Concordia University students to form a coalition to fight back.

The skinheads, who are said to be from Toronto and numbered at close to 30, have a nazi philosophy. They are reportedly interested in taking over Montreal's hardcore punk community.

The coalition against the skinheads was formed by the Lesbian and Gay Friends of Concordia (LGFC) and the Psychology Student Association (CUPA) after three LGFC members were attacked.

"I never thought it would happen in Montreal," said one of the victims, who wished to remain anonymous.

The three victims were wailing by a nightclub when insults were shouted at them.

The three victims were walking by a nightclub when insults were shouted at them.

"Are you fellow faggots?" yelled one skinhead, according to the victim. When he answered, the skinhead attacked them with a wooden club and then the others joined the beating.

They escaped to the hospital for emergency treatment. One victim received a slight concussion and another suffered cracked ribs.

"It is essential to let people know there is an organized group of concerned individuals opposed to such violence, and we are prepared to act against it," said Andrew Schmitz of CUPA.

The skinheads, or boneheads as they are sometimes called, have shown a preference to attack minorities, especially blacks, Indians, Jews and sometimes women.

LGFC coordinator Thomas Burnside said skinheads stand around in large numbers and yell insults at passersby.

"Any attempt to defend yourself, even verbally, can result in a severe beating," he said.

Burnside believes they are a well-organized wing of the National Front, an England-based neo-nazi organization.

"What is striking is that not all of their members are in fact skinheads," said Schmitz. "Their source of membership are young members of the hardcore community. They corrupt the minds of young individuals trying to find themselves."

Constable Andre Giroux of the Montreal police force said skinheads are organized, but said he doesn't consider them dangerous enough to take special measures.

After the latest attack, four skinheads were taken into custody and charged with assault. Police refused to comment on the case.

The coalition is urging other Montreal groups to help educate the public.

Separate Church Needed for Gay Needs, says Minister

VANCOUVER (CUP)— Intolerance of gays, lesbians, and other sexual minorities creates the need for a separate church, according to the minister of Vancouver's Universal Fellowship.

Speaking recently to an audience at the University of British Columbia, pastor Ernie Lacasse recalled how the fellowship's founder, Troy Perry, explained separate churches to a woman who believed them unnecessary.

"If I come to church and hold my lover's hand, you're scandalized — I can't come to your church," Perry said.

Reverend Perry began the fellowship, which operates through Metropolitan Community churches, with 12 people at his Los Angeles home in 1968. Since then it has grown to serve 40,000 people with 240 churches in 13 countries. Canada has 11 congregations, and this year new churches opened in Indonesia and Costa Rica.

Vancouver minister Lacasse said many of his parishioners come from other Christian denominations which refuse to accept them.

"A lot of gays and lesbians are excommunicated from their religious background and I have to deal with that pain over and over again," he said.

One of the Metropolitan Church's positive aspects is the good atmosphere it provides for socializing and friendship.

"We have been accused of being a pick-up joint," joked Lacasse. "When the church was forming, the members were single, but now there are a lot of couples — what better place to meet someone than in church?"

Lacasse, a graduate of UBC's Union College, now the Vancouver School of Theology, is no stranger to discrimination himself — in 1977, he was fired as assistant minister at a United Church in Ottawa for being gay. And this fall, he was denied membership in the West End ministers' association, despite support from both the Anglican and United Churches.

Lacasse said attitudes towards gay and lesbian ministers are changing, with the Disciples of Christ Church ordaining homosexual ministers, and a gay pastor in a Denver Methodist church successfully fighting an attempt to fire him.

Likewise, attitudes towards gay congregation members are slowly changing although many churches still wish to "cure" homosexuality.

But the Metropolitan Church is working to develop an acceptance of and theology of human sexuality, said Lacasse.

"One of the errors of Christianity has been to put the material and sexual world over here, where they are supposedly dirty, and God and religion over here, where they are good," he said. The Metropolitan church's one distinguishing feature is its high proportion of female clergy — 52 per cent — which Lacasse said is higher than other Christian congregations.

Another characteristic is the effort to avoid exclusive or patriarchal language, thus becoming more accessible to believers, regardless of their gender, race, sexual orientation or physical ability.

Laurention Council Fires Argus Staff

THUNDER BAY (CUP) — A student council committee at Laurentian University has suspended publication and fired the staff of the student newspaper, The Argus.

Argus editor John King said he returned to classes Nov. 10 to find the office door padlocked, and received a note from the council's Judicial Committee explaining that the three-member committee would appoint a board to hire a new staff.

But council president Wayne Ivey says the committee had no jurisdiction to take such action, as it was expected "to investigate irregularities in Argus editorial elections and report back (to council)."

Ivey said "no one was consulted" by the committee before the shutdown.

Much of the dispute arose from a Sept. 18 Argus article about a fight that took place in the council-managed pub.

Councillors had asked King not to publish the article, and subsequently tried to demiss Argus staff.

Shelly Lundquist, the chief justice of the Judicial Committee, is a councillor who was also an unsuccessful candidate in last spring's Argus editorial board elections.

Alleged improprieties in board elections concerned proxy voting and the election of non-student Daryl MacArthur as entertainment editor. MacArthur has since become a student.

"I've been hired and fired four times since March," said MacArthur. He said Lundquist has repeatedly harassed him about the possibility of losing his job.

Argus staff claim Lundquist's position is a severe conflict of interest. Council president Ivey agrees.

"This is a problem," Ivey said. He said he will urge Lundquist to resign from the committee.

The Judicial Committee has also recommended that students who contribute to the paper be required to pay a "membership fee" which will partially subsidize the paper's costs. Argus expenses are covered through a student levy and advertising revenue.

Editor King said the five students chosen by the Judicial Committee to hire the new Argus staff were "hand-picked and have demonstrated a bias" against fired staff.

"They want to run the paper," said MacArthur. "They wanted us to be their puppets, and we were not, so now they're trying to get us out of there."

"They're making a mockery of everything up here. (The council's) credibility has been shot," said King.

Ivey blames the Judicial Committee's decision "on naivete", and said committee members have overstepped their mandate.

"We have a bunch of people who are ignorant about what a committee is supposed to do," said Ivey, adding council will publish a four-page newsletter in place of The Argus to explain council's actions to students.

Ivey expects the paper to resume regular publishing by January. Student council as publisher of The Argus, stands to lose thousands of dollars in booked advertising revenue because of interruption in the publishing schedule.

Ontario Booze Laws Discussed

TORONTO (CUP) — Students may have missed a golden opportunity to lower the Ontario drinking age, says one member of the Ontario Advisory Committee on Liquor Regulations, which has just completed a two-month provincial tour.

The committee visited 18 centres soliciting public opinion on the province's liquor laws, liquor advertising and the suitability of the current drinking age of 19. The committee must submit report to Monte Kwinter, minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations by Dec. 31.

"A lot of student groups have presented very rational arguments about why it would be a bad move to raise the drinking age," said committee member Frank D'Andrea. "I'm asking students why they didn't present something about lowering it."

"I have not heard any really strong arguments for having a drinking age at all," said D'Andrea, "Why haven't students given us ammunition to ask the minister to lower the age? Even if we on the committee saw fit to recommend a lowering of the age, we have seen no evidence that there would be any support for that."

The only group that said the drinking age should drop was the Ontario Progressive Conservative Youth Association, who suggest a drinking age of 18.

"Drawing the line at 19 or 21 is arbitrary," said OPCYA vice-president Guy Giorno. "There is no statistical basis for that discrimination. One can't pin the blame for drunk driving on any one age group."

The OPCYA brief cited evidence that 18 to 21 year olds are statistically less likely to drive while impaired than those in the 30 to 39 age group.

All you have to do is go to the board.

Anti Nukes Bleed for Peace

OTTAWA (CUP)—More than 100 anti-nuclear activists marked Remembrance Day this year with a somewhat unconventional ceremony, when 58 protesters splattered their own blood on the headquarters of the Department of National Defence and blocked one of the building's entrances for almost an hour.

Demonstrators blocking a major entrance during the morning rush hour Nov. 12 were dragged away from a sit-in protest by Ottawa police, while supporters chanted "hold the next test at the White House" and "DND — you've got blood on your hands."

The 58 were quickly photographed by police, lifted into paddy wagons and taken to Ottawa's only police station for processing.

All 58 no-violent protesters were charged with public mischief and causing a disturbance, said Ottawa police inspector Matthew Boyle.

Staff inspector Brian Ford said the demonstrators, many of whom had come from Toronto, Montreal, Kingston and Peterborough, were released as soon as they had been processed.

Organizer Peter Dundas said the group was trying to make Canadians "aware of the tremendous increase in Canadian involvement in the testing of new weapons systems and technologies."

"We're linking our protest to Remembrance Day because it's important for people remember the many wars that are going on around the world today," said Dundas, "so they can be stopped along with preparations for future wars."

He said the protestors, all members of a loose coalition of peace and human rights activists called the Alliance for Non-Violent Action are demanding that the Canadian government immediately halt:

- testing of the Cruise Missile in Cold Lake, Alberta, due to begin again this winter
- testing of new anti-submarine weaponry, including missiles designed to carry nuclear warheads, at Nanoose Bay, British Columbia
- upcoming testing of new U.S. strategic bombers the B-1, F-111, and newly re-fitted B-52s — over Northern Alberta, Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories, due to begin early next year; and
- low-level military test flights over Labrador and Northern Quebec, on land presently and traditionally occupied by native Innu.

Supersonic aircraft fly as low as 100 feet over the Innu in Goose Bay, says Dundas. "The flights are a tremendously disruptive occurrence for the Innu, who have lived there for centuries."

ANVA also opposes the proposed NATO Tactical Weapons Training Centre in Labrador, says Dundas.

Major Norbert Cyr, a DND public affairs officer, said he's not sure how much damage was done to the building. "The whole front of it was splashed with blood-like material and a few things were scrawled on the concrete pillars in crayon — you know, skull and crossbones, slogans — that kind of thing," he said.

Cyr says DND actually "benefitted" from the protest. "It livened up the usually boring days of building security officers, and gave us the opportunity to test our communications and work closely with the various police forces in town," said Cyr.

He added that it was "unfortunate" DND was targeted by the peace group as "makers of war." "In fact, we are the official peace group of the government," said Cyr. "We're defending our free and democratic country well," he added.

Dundas says ANVA will continue to "disrupt business as usual" at DND until their requests are met. "Next year, the police will have to drag away 200 of us."

Concordia V.P. Not Funny

MONTREAL (CUP)—A practical joke played on students two years ago has cost Concordia University student Robert Johnston a job on the student council.

The hiring committee of Concordia's student council discovered that while at Vanier College, Johnston allegedly took part in the lacing of a batch of brownies with $34 worth of laxatives.

A background check also determined that Johnston was involved in the organizing of a beer bash where one student fell out of a window.

The brownies were given to unsuspecting students in the college lounge.

Johnston admitted knowing about the laced brownies, but denied having made or distributed them. He also said that the only problem with his beer bashes was that he was overzealous and let too many people in.

Concordia student councillor Bettina Rosnberg said that when Johnson was nominated, no one was aware of his college history and it was only during a reference check that the information surfaced.

After a 20-minute closed session debate, student councillors told Johnston they had decided to withdraw his nomination.

Johnston said he is considering legal action against the board for defamation of character.

The Nihilists Niche (Nietzsche?)

I am forgoing my usual column of nihilistic tendencies this week to present something which is a refreshing change. That is, an actual pro-American attitude.

I have noticed that anti-American propaganda has filtered its way into the very fabric of this paper with alarming regularity.

I wish to state that I am not a lover of Americans, nor Americanism, but something must be done. A consistent anti-American attitude is as distressing as a consistent anti-Soviet one. The beliefs of one, or a small group of persons, should not be used to create the fabric of an entire paper.

Therefore, I admire the Americans this week. I salute them. It was they who created the assembly-line, it was they who invented the adding machine, and hey, isn't Bruce Springsteen American?

Lee Iacocca conceived the Ford Mustang, still my favorite sports car (especially the 1955 model, an exceptionally good year).

Therefore, I feel that Americans are good for more than keeping Mexico from easily invading Canada. I propose that you shake the hand of the next American you meet. All Americans may not be the victims of bad press, but any man who judges an entire country on the actions of a few detestable people is a fool.

Thank You.

P.S. Fuck Reagan

Richard Smith @

Bower Senile?

Dear Editor,

I would like to correct a few errors in the lead story of the Journal of Thursday, Nov. 6 (Saint Mary's Leaves SUNS)

My major problem with the article is that it presents president Mark Bower's view on SUNS as objective fact. The article virtually quotes Bower, listing the problems with SUNS as poor organization, excessive costs, and centralization of power.

I will ignore the fact that the article bore no signs of objectivity and confine my remarks to president Mark Bower's alleged problems with SUNS.

First, Bower claims that SUNS is not organized in a way which makes it representative of student views. It cannot be denied that without SMUSA's representation this is certainly the case. However, the article fails to mention problems inherent in the structure of SUNS that make it anything but representative. I will admit that SUNS does not allow for "rep by pop" voting as each member institution is given one vote. However, it should be obvious that weighted voting scheme would not be feasible as it would give Dalhousie virtual veto power. Any changes in SUNS' voting rules would come at the expense of SMU. Bower should realize this.

Second, the article claims that costs vs benefits for the smaller schools are too high. This is a ridiculous assumption. All of the benefits of SUNS are shared equally by every student in N.S. Fees paid to SUNS are established on a per capita basis ($1.50 per student). In Bower's proposal to SUNS, he argues for a sloped fee structure in which larger schools would pay a greater per capita fee. Once again this would hurt SMU as it is the second largest institution in N.S. One must wonder if Bower realizes that he is supposed to represent SMU's interests. Then again, we may note that Reagan has become senile in his second term. Has Bower?

Third, Bower claims that the problem with SUNS is that it emphasizes universal rather than particular interests. What, pray tell, should the aims of such an organization be? Bower argues that SUNS power should rest in the hands of the student union presidents of member institutions. This is virtually the case at present as voting delegates are either S.U. presidents or appointees of same. The current structure of SUNS also allows for non-voting representation by students from SUNS committees at member institutions. This is certainly more democratic than the summit style meetings that Bower proposes.

Bower should explain himself. Why don't you ask him to?

Unhappy with "Skirts"

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to an advertisement for Old Scotia Ale that appeared in The Journal (October 23/86). The ad is entitled "Great Skirts on Campus" and features four women posing seductively in short skirts alongside a man dressed in a kilt, carrying a case of beer.

I object to this ad on sexist grounds. The reference to women as "skirts" is certainly not new, and can be likened to other terms used to describe women, such as "broads" "pieces", and "bits of fluff". Such terms are degrading as they depict women solely in terms of their physical/sexual characteristics, and hence reinforce the notion that women are primarily passive sexual objects. In turn, women frequently become devalued in nonsexual contexts.

At a time when women are making tremendous strides in improving their status, an advertisement such as the one in question seems anachronistic. It is relevant to point out to readers that the majority of Canadian universities chose to ban this ad on similar grounds as outlined here. I hope that The Journal will follow suit and not continue to set itself apart in such an unfavourable manner.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,
Sharon Greene

Dot Forced to Retire

We all know that mandatory retirement has been abolished. So why should one of our most respected staff members have to retire at 65?

Dot, has been working at Saint Mary's as a maid for the past 10 years. Many of you have met her in the alley many of us never see here until she says "Hi!" and brighten up our day. The sad part of it all is that she has to retire next month when her contract runs out.

Forgetting the constitutional aspect of this situation, if you have ever seen Dot you would never believe that she is indeed 65. She looks like she could be my mother or yours also. In a way she is our mother, to the people who know her. How many people encourage you through your stay here: meet her and you'll know what I mean.

Dot, you're special to me. I don't want to see you go and many other people share my feelings also. We have one month to save her career, no...her life. This is her family, the people who live here on campus, and those who live off it also. I hope the president of Saint Mary's University can get a copy of this Journal. Better still, drop off a letter to Dr. Kenneth Ozmon or to whom it may concern in the Journal.

Your friend always Dot...

Love,
Ron.

Have Some Respect

Dear Editor,

I would like to take this time to tell you about something that is bothering me a lot on campus. It seems as though a lot of students that come in and out of the Student Centre, that aren't handicapped, are using the doors that are specifically for disabled people. What is the problem with these students? Are they too lazy to even open a door? Of course it's not just the students but also delivery people that find it a lot easier to use.

If these modifications were not on campus, then they would have to open the door for themselves. These people that use these doors, that aren't disabled, would probably take handicapped parking space at a shopping centre because it was close and use a ramp because it was easier than the stairs. I think these people are totally lazy.

Huskies Rally to Beat Mounties

By Shane Ross

The Saint Mary's Hockey Huskies won for the second time in their seventh game of the season last Sunday when they downed the Mt. Allison Mounties by a score of 6 to 4.

The Mounties appeared to have control of the game early as they went on to build a 4-2 lead after the second period, but the Huskies showed admirable determination in scoring four unanswered goals in the third period.

They won their first game against UNB last November 8 in similar fashion, rebounding from a 3-1 deficit to squeak out a 4-3 victory.

Cal Bussey put in a strong performance against the Mt. Allison team. He scored the team's first goal and was also named the "Coca-Cola Player of the Game".

The momentum shifted to the Huskies' side midway through the second period. They outshot their opponents 37-31 in the game, and 28-13 in the last two periods.

Ray Cummings tied the score at four when he knocked the puck into a wide open net after Huskies' captain Frank Gladiator's shot ricocheted off the glass right into the crease.

The defence came up big for the Huskies in the late stages of the game. Despite being short-handed much of the time, they limited Mt. A. to just three shots on goal in the whole third period.

It was Steve Short's goal with 4:55 left in the third period that proved to be the winner. After taking a pass from behind the net, he raffled a quick wrist shot off the post on a sharp angle.

The Huskies continued to pressure the Mounties. Just 20 seconds later Bussey went in on a breakaway but was topped on a great save by the Mt. A. goaltender.

Meanwhile, time was running out on the Mounties. Glen Peveril scored with just 14 seconds left to secure the win. Scott Bower, John Gladiator, and Ray Cummings provided the other markers.

The Huskies' next game is this Sunday at 2:00 p.m. when they host the U de M Blue Eagles.

Oilers to Aid SMU Hockey Fund

Nova Scotia Oilers, Saint Mary's University and the Nova Scotia Hockey Association have joined hands for a major promotion scheduled December 7 at Halifax Metro Centre. In a joint announcement at a noon press conference, the three groups disclosed establishment of the first annual Pro-Am event designed to generate interest in and raise money for collegiate and amateur hockey activities in the province.

The first Pro-Am event on December 7 will feature a doubleheader beginning at 3:30 with a game between Saint Mary's Huskies and Nova Scotia's Canada Games Team, with Nova Scotia Oilers meeting Moncton Golden Flames in a regular American Hockey League game at 7 p.m. One dollar from each ticket sold, other than season subscribers, will be contributed to Saint Mary's Hockey Scholarship Fund.

in making the announcement on behalf of the Oilers, local owners spokesman Mike Wheatley said, "This is the kind of positive action we had in mind when we said the Oilers would grow closer to the community. We're very pleased to co-operate with both the college and amateur people to further their interests and to establish our commitment to improving and developing hockey at all levels in the province. This is just the first step in that direction."

Saint Mary's coach Randy Nesbitt, who fostered the idea initially, said he was delighted with the immediate response the Oilers made to his proposition. "They are indeed committed to the community and we are Saint Mary's are extremely pleased to have this opportunity of working with the Oilers in what we hope will be the first of many such events."

Huskies Place Third

The Huskies basketball squad ran into some stiff competition last weekend at the McGill Redmen Invitational.

Against #2-ranked Waterloo, the Huskies played a strong game but lost 77-73. The host McGill team, who won the tournament, edged the Huskies by just three points, 74-71. SMU got into deep foul trouble in that game, slapping them 27 times.

The Huskies lone win was against Ryerson by a score of 74-71, running their preseason record to five wins and three losses.

"The reason we enter tournaments is to experiment and make changes, which is exactly what we did," remarked coach Allan Waye. "Everybody on the team got a chance to play."

The Huskies' regular season opens this Saturday at 3:00 p.m. when they host UNB. The women's basketball team play first game of the season immediately prior to the men's.

SMU Gets Burned

Field Hockey Controversy

By Carol A. Skillen

You'll notice a byline on my article this week because this story isn't to entertain the team; it's to inform people of a new version of Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors.

On October 3, 1986 field hockey coach Helen Castonguay contacted the office of the AUAA and requested clarification of a ruling that states that one's primary occupation has to be that of a student in order to be eligible to play varsity sports at the university level. Not only did the AUAA confirm this, but the CIAU office did as well.

On October 10, 1986, the AUAA

office was notified that a player on the Memorial field hockey team was working full time apart from her studies. Nothing was really done to acknowledge this matter except that SMU (who brought the situation up in the first place) and Memorial were to work it out themselves.

Finding the solution unacceptable a formal ruling was requested and on October 15 (or 16), 1986 the members that be in the AUAA got together over a conference call and came decided that they thought the girl was ineligible but they would pass the final decision making duty onto the CIAU. Memorial was allowed to continue playing until the CIAU made their decision.

On October 22, 1986 (only one short week later) the office of CIAU (Bob Pugh, Executive Vice President) declared the Memorial player ineligible and Memorial was to forfeit all games. Standard procedure. The following day Memorial exercised their right to appeal the decision and another conference call (this time between the powers that be for the CIAU Judicial Review Committee) was scheduled for the next day (October 24, 1986).

The call was later rescheduled for Monday, October 27, but this didn't really matter because they had previously said that any decision that came down would not take effect until the Monday anyway.

The weekend over which this decision was waiting in the wings was the AUAA Playoff weekend. There is a rule that states that any team that has been declared ineligible and subsequently filed an appeal is suspended from any play until the appeal has been finalized.

Now, theoretically, Memorial should not have gone to the AUAA playoffs even if the league standings showed them to be in first place. They had been suspended from play by the rules under which University Athletics operates but the AUAA did not enforce these rules so Memorial showed up to play.

This is where it gets tricky so follow close. If Memorial had not come the SMU team would have been in first place (instead of second behind Memorial) and St. F.X. would have placed second. This would have put St. F.X. against UNB in the first playoff game and SMU against UdeM in the second. But, since Memorial showed up SMU played UNB first and Memorial played UdeM. The results of these games was a 4-0 loss for SMU to UNB and a 1-0 loss for Memorial to UdeM.

It was decided that because there was question of Memorial's eligibility status SMU would be given the chance to play UdeM the next day in place of a championship game to see who would finish second in the AUAA (and then go to Toronto for the CIAU's). Later it was decided that the championship game between UdeM and UNB would be played and if Memorial's appeal was denied SMU would play the loser of that game on Monday to see who would be second.

On Monday the SMU team and the UdeM team prepared to meet on the field as soon as the decision was made. The game was to played at 3:00 p.m. and at approximately 2:30 p.m. word came down that the Memorial player was eligible after all but this will never happen again. Needless to say we were quite pissed off.

Call it sour grapes if you want but I believe that if Memorial had won on Saturday over UdeM, the ineligible player would have stayed ineligible because she would never have been allowed to play in the CIAU finals. Also, I would like to know how long the decision making process would have been if the sport involved were men's basketball or football.

All this kind of makes you wonder about how this are run in an organization that has ultimate say over all of Canadian University school athletics. Rules are bent

(if not ignored first) and there seems to be two sets of standards. For an organization that is supposedly based on its credibility, I think it's built on sand.

The Other Guy

By Henry Lee

The Annual Atlantic Bowl was played at SMU stadium last Saturday with a strong squad from Ontario advancing with the rights to play in the Vanier Cup. The host AUAA champs, the Acadia Axemen, lost to the Western Ontario Mustangs by a score of 29-22.

The score was no indication of how the game was played. The Axemen were only in the game in the first half, and in the second half suffered through the defensive dominance of the Mustangs. Western fullback Blake Marshall was given the game MVP award after tearing Acadia for 115 yards on 13 carries. The score was 29-14 with two minutes left, and Western gave Acadia a consolation touchdown in the dying seconds of the game.

Western will play the UBC Thunderbirds this Saturday for the Canadian Championships. UBC is ranked 1 and 2 with Western and should provide for an entertaining afternoon. UBC advanced to the finals with a 32-30 victory over Bishops. Both teams are undefeated but somehow the Thunderbirds are so much better than the Mustangs.

The pick of the week will be UBC over Western by a converted touchdown.

Now on to the NFL, the NY Jets continue on their merry way, improving to 10-1, after destroying the winless Colts by a score of 31-16. The Bears win another close one dropping the Falcons 13-10. Some other scores: Packers 31, Buccaneers 7; Raiders 27, Browns 14; Cowboys 24, Chargers 21.

Now on to something a little different. On November 22, WBC Heavyweight Champ Trevor Berbick will defend his crown against undefeated challenger Mike Tyson. While Tyson has only been scrapping professionally for about 20 months, he's a product of ABC-TV sports, who have broadcasted just about every one of his fights, and has made Tyson one of the most visible fighters in the world. Tyson is just a 'kid' so to speak, being only 20 years old.

While Berbick is the defending champ, I'll have to go along with the odds makers in Vegas and call him the underdog. Berbick is a big slab of beef that pretends to fight when he gets in the ring. I've seen him fight in Halifax, and my most memorable moment of Berbick's career was his one punch destruction at the hands of Bernardo Mercado. Berbick hit the canvass face first being tagged by a wicked right hook to the jaw. Tyson hits much harder than Mercado. You should see Berbick in lala land inside 4 rounds.

The other big item in boxing is old news by now, but here goes anyway. Sugar Ray Leonard is unretiring for the second time to take on Middleweight King, Marvelous Marvin Hagler. Hagler is the most vicious fighter in the world right now and hasn't lost a fight in 11 years. He's taken out everybody worth fighting and Leonard is the last big challenge of an impressive career.

Sugar Ray was one of the most exciting fighters of his day, but let's be serious for a second. Does he really expect to beat Hagler without testing his rusty skills against a top rated middleweight. While being a Leonard fan for many years, I'm not selling out, but Leonard will fall in 6 rounds or less by one of the best. Let's go with Marvin with a KO in six.

Fashion Splash Life Itself

by Kim Mitchelmore

What happens when the Saint Mary's Caribbean Society collaborates with the societies of Dalhousie and Mount Allison? Well, in the case of Fashion Splash '86, the result is a night of good music and great fashions.

Held in the M.P.R. on Saturday, November 8th, Fashion Splash was a gala event complete with dancers, lip syncs and door prizes. Fashions which were supplied by local retailers, ranged from the loose and casual look to all out glamour.

The models, most of whom were students, were surprisingly poised, professional, and relaxed. Spurred on by the enthusiastic crowd, they began having fun with the presentations. The unanimous choice for best presentation of the evening went to City Streets, where 'streetwear is chicwear'. This presentation, accompanied by music from the Timex Social Club, gave the models a chance to strut their stuff. Whether it was the dancing or the Stevie Wonder impression, this presentation was enjoyed by all.

Coreographed by Jessica Bowden and Co-ordinated by Paul Aflak, Fashion Splash '86 was an enjoyable evening of culture and fashion. If this event is anything to go by Caribanza '87 will be a runner for event of the year.

Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?

By Allison O'Sullivan

The Setting:

The living room of a wealthy home situated on the campus of a small New England college.

The Time:

Set back to an evening in September of the year 1962.

This opening scene sets the stage for the beginnings of a most powerful and mind intriguing play entitled, "Who's afraid of Virginia Woolf," which is now being featured at the Neptune Theatre from Nov. 7-30.

The play begins with Martha (Susan Wright) and George (Allen Grey) arriving home from a long social evening at Martha's father's place. Martha's father is president of the university and the social evening was in honor of a newcomer to the college faculty.

As soon as dialogue begins between Martha and George it is evident that both characters cannot talk to one another without snide accusations, dry humor, and 'stab in the back' comments and the speed at which they change gears is incredible.

The strangeness of the play and the characters does not stop here. Martha has evidently invited the new couple back to their house for drinks. So at the odd hour of two o'clock in the evening Nick (Kimble Hall) and Honey, (Camille Mitchell) arrive at Martha and George's home. From that point on the evening progresses into various situations and phases of strangeness.

The couples begin playing a sort of 'psychologic strip poker' with each others minds. They play games such as 'get the guest' and, eventually, with excessive drinking, become loose and abusive and even resort to the soap-like exchange of partners. Throughout all of this, the audience is tested to separate illusion from reality. The play results in a crisis and total change in both marriages and relationships.

The play itself, has weaved together brilliantly, dry, often hidden humor and extremes of emotion and deep inner meaning so that technically the play is well represented. Neptune has managed to form a cast of accomplished actors and actresses whose performances were without a doubt superb.

The play is however, complicated and difficult to understand. This sometimes takes away from the mere enjoyment of the play as often the audience is left confused and empty. It is for this reason that not everyone would enjoy this play.

Let It Rain!

By Al Dugas

Studies have shown that only about 35% of music listeners are aware of the lyrics. Finally, comes a group that will appeal to that small percentage and hopefully help to raise it.

The Rainmakers are a quartet from the state of Missouri ("misery," as they call it) who play straight ahead rock in roll and tackle everything on their debut album from suicide ("Doomsville") to the welfare system ("Government Cheese"). What makes them special is their honest (sometimes to the point of being offensive) tongue-in-cheek lyrics that make the listener think about what is being said.

Formed by Steve Phillips (guitar, vocals), Bob Walkenhorst (lead vocals, guitar), and Rich Ruth (bass, vocals) with the addition of Pat Tomek on drums. The Rainmakers are one of the few bands around today who actually have something intelligent to say in their lyrics.

Their album starts off with "Rockin at the T — Dance," which takes a stab at the 'made-in-the-U.S.A.' dogma that has been so prevalent but not necessarily genuine; which is a good example of their music.

The second cut "Downstream" is interesting simply because the vocals by Walkenhorst sound more like Murray McLauchlan than McLauchlan does. The lyrics set Mark Twain, Harry Truman and Chuck Berry fishing on the Mississippi and discussing history and life in general.

The first hit off the album, "Let My People Go - Go" is a tongue-in-cheek look at religion, more specifically, Bible stories. This has to be the most humorous song on the album; God sings Little Richard and Jesus wonders why "...everybody's always pickin' on me?". With a horn section in back of all this, the song is not only thought provoking but danceable.

"Big Fat Blonde" is a satirical look at the male ego and chauvinistic attitudes towards women. The lyrics have Walkenhorst looking for a "...6 ft. Swede...40-30-40, Amazon bombshell, tall, damp and dirty." The song not only is very humorous, like the others, but is simply a good song with one of the most ballsy bass lines I've ever heard.

Possibly the most controversial song on the album is "Government Cheese" which strongly attacks the welfare system and blames the President and clergy for making it too easy to receive social assistance, saying "...they'll turn us all into beggars cause they're easier to please."

"Drinking on the Job" is about what the title suggests, abuse of alcohol and drugs, more importantly, the extent that it is occurring in society at all levels (from the C.I.A. to taxi drivers). The band says nothing is going to change, and that nobody seems to care about this problem—so it will continue.

It has been quite some time since a new band has emerged that, not only plays very good straightforward rock, but actually have something intelligent to say lyrically.

Walkenhorst feels that the reason that most people don't listen to the lyrics that they hear is because that most are not worth listening to; the Rainmakers are trying to change that. They force the listener to think... something a record has not done in quite a while. BUY THIS ALBUM!

Packaging is Crucial . . . Clarity is the Aim

By Richard Smith

Ron Cocker.

Halifax's own branch of the CBC recently held a press luncheon to present the "NEW TEAM," the key people the CBC is using to battle ATV during the November ratings period and beyond. First Edition, Inquiry and Land and Sea have all undergone facelifts, the concentration going from issues to actual events, a change initiated by CBC Halifax's nw miracle-worker, Mr.

Despite a severe drop in funding, the CBC has, if the previews are any indication, set itself up as the news service of the late eighties and early nineties, with a greater reliance on technical aspects, and greater emphasis on travel.

Newcomer to the First Edition staff, after stints in Winnipeg and Toronto, Ms. Susan Ormiston adds "We've got an hour of television no matter which way you look at it, and if everybody doesn't do more than their share, the show is going to suffer. . . I felt I could work well with Jim Nunn as a good co-host. I'm really excited about the program . . . you can see the enthusiasm to change." In the words of Ron Cocker, "packaging is crucial . . . clarity is the aim."

Disco Revisited

By Al Dugas

Remember Bronski Beat? (I bet you tried to forget!) Well in 1985 lead vocalist Jimmy Somerville left the group to form his own band, The Communards. Their debut album is one of the worst I've heard in years!

Refusing to admit that disco is dead, Somerville has teamed up with Richard Coles to exercise his God given right to make terrible music.

The entire album is filled with insane disco ooziings, all of which are sung by Somerville in his irritating falsetto. Backing him is a drum machine, a piano, and sometimes even a cello!

The album begins with a remake of an old disco tune "Don't Leave Me This Way", this is the shape of things to come, as the listener is assaulted by one disco song after another, (all of which have silly lyrics that are very unimaginative) and more of that damned falsetto!

Already, the boys have gotten themselves into some trouble, their first British release, "You are my World", has been banned by the BBC because it is about homosexual love; their second release "Disenchanted" met the same fate for the same reason.

Records this bad do actually serve two purposes: firstly, they provide a good argument for the appreciation of Motorhead, and secondly, they come in handy during the holidays when the party is running late. All you have to do is put this album on, and the last few of those hangers-on will quickly leave so you can get to bed. If you have a better plan to stop the party, then for God's sake stay away from this album!

If the names Woody Allen and Humphrey Bogart don't mean anything to you then how about a n d

They're the two principal actors in the SMUDS romantic comedy presentation, "Play It Again Sam." Others in the play constitute this very funny production of a male's quest for female partners. Add to this the fact that the male in question is a consistent "under-achiever" and you have his humorous dilemma. Throw in the imagined advice of a macho-epitome-tough guy like Humphrey Bogart and the play takes off.

The SMUDS have a winner here. Well seasoned director Jim Spurway makes full use of that fact. —Plan to be there. You won't regret it!

Tickets are available at the door or from any SMUDS member. They range from $3.00 students to $4.00 non students. The play goes on from Wednesday, Nov. 19 to Saturday, Nov. 22 at 8:00 each night. Saint Mary's Theatre Auditorium just inside the main building lobby is the location for this enjoyable comedy of romance.

Iggy Grows Up

By Al Dugas

Over the past 15 years Iggy Pop has performed sundry acts of perversion and self-abuse, but recently he has been faced with a very different situation—a hit single.

His latest album (the first in 4 years) "Blah-Blah-Blah" is currently climbing the charts, and Iggy is enjoying the success of 2 hit singles, "Wild Child" and "Cry For Love."

On "Blah-Blah-Blah" Iggy once again enlisted the help of David Bowie to write 5 songs with him and produce the album. In addition to Bowie, Iggy also got some help from ex-Sex Pistol Steve Jones, who played lead guitar on "Cry For Love" (which he co-wrote along with two others).

"Blah-Blah-Blah" is a good album, but worlds away from Iggy's older stuff. The album has loads of keyboard and electronic drums, but all songs have lots of guitar underneath which gives the feeling that this new material is going to really kick ass live.

It is obvious that Iggy is not satisfied with being a cult hero, and wants to widen his audience (not to mention making a few bucks in the process). With this album he may just do that.

There will be those who bitch that His Iggness has sold out, but after 15 years of knocking his head against the wall, (literally), to no avail, it seems that he should finally reap some rewards.

"Blah-Blah-Blah" shows a much different side of Iggy, that of a man who has matured and (contrary to what some may think) is not much different from most; a man with human feelings. This side is also much different from his image, but seems to be genuine; possibly due to the fact that he has gotten married and has taken to doing housework when he isn't touring. One of the best examples of this is the song "Shades."

Those who may have doubted that Iggy could have put out a good commercial album are very wrong. This is a good album, and the new and improved 1986 version of Iggy Pop is a mature person destined for success.

Folks come from all over to see how we make our whiskey. Then, as often as not, they remark as how they wish they could get Jack Daniel's Tennessee Whiskey at home. Truth is, it's easier to get our whiskey in Canada than it is here in Lynchburg. You see, we're in Moore County and that's a dry county. So we just tell everyone to look for Jack Daniel's Tennessee Whiskey back home. It's real easy to find, and real easy to enjoy, especially with friends.
